New Agency Will Direct Price-Wage Stabilization

President to Set Up Office for Controls To Plan for Action If Needed in Future

Copyright, 1950, The Washington Post

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The President has decided to create a new Federal agency with authority to stabilize prices and wages, it was learned last night.

The agency will be called the Economic Stabilization Agency and it will be headed by a Director of Price Stabilization. A Wage Stabilization Board will be set up within the agency.

The President will delegate to the new and independent agency the powers to stabilize prices and wages given him by Congress in approving the economic controls bill.

To Issue Agency Orders

Mr. Truman today is expected to sign the control measure into law. At the same time, he will issue an order to direct half a dozen Federal agencies to assume the authority for home-front controls under the bill.

A "final draft" of the executive order that reached a few top Federal officials yesterday revealed the President's plan to set up the new agency to stabilize prices and wages.

However, it was learned that several of the President's top economic advisers urged him to veto the bill because of their objections to Title 4, the provision that authorizes price and wage stabilization. These advisers are said to have cautioned that the section is ineffective and can't be made to work for a variety of reasons. The President is reported to have overruled them and decided to sign the bill.

The President also is drafting a radio report to the people in which he will explain his price and wage stabilization policies.

Confined to Planning Now

For the present, the Economic Stabilization Agency is expected to be ordered to confine its activities to planning for all-out wage and price controls, if and when the President deems them necessary. Later on, an official explained, the agency may order "selective" price controls on scarce strategic materials such as copper, steel, aluminum, etc. Full wage and price controls wouldn't come until there is full mobilization, if ever, the official said.

If widespread controls do become necessary, the stabilization agency would hire anywhere from 5000 to 10,000 employes.

The final draft of the executive order circulated yesterday also revealed these presidential plans:

To set up a National Production Authority in the Commerce Department to channel scarce materials into war goods;

To give the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to mobilize rail, truck, and all other forms of transportation except air and ocean travel which would go to Commerce;

To give the Labor Department the task of mobilizing manpower;

To give the Interior Department control over electric power, public as well as private; oil, gas, solid fuels, and other natural resources, and,

To give the Agriculture Department the authority to mobilize food and related farm products.

15,000 'Slots' Listed by U. S. In D. C., Md.

Taxes Collected For That Number; 600 in Virginia

Federal tax has been paid on some 15,000 slot machines in Maryland and the District, the Baltimore office of the Bureau of Internal Revenue revealed last night.

In Virginia, the Richmond office of the Bureau said the $100 annual tax was paid on 600 machines. The period of the tax is the current fiscal year—July 31, 1950, to June 30, 1951.

District and Virginia laws ban slot machines. The one-armed bandits are legal in three Maryland counties: Anne Arundel, St. Marys and Charles Counties.

The Baltimore office said it did not have a breakdown on the location of the estimated 15,000 slots. An official explained that Bureau lists contain 3000 names of tax applicants, with each application averaging five machines.

The Richmond office gave this breakdown of the location of the slots in nearby Virginia, with the number of machines in each establishment in parentheses:

Arlington Hall Officers Club, 4000 Lee blvd., Arlington (5); Engineer Mess, Mackenzie Hall, Ft. Belvoir (18); Ft. Belvoir Golf Club, Ft. Belvoir (5); Gravelly Point Air Force Officers Mess, National Airport (7); Noncommissioned AFCRS Mess, National Airport (6); Noncommissioned Officers Mess, Ft. Belvoir (11), and 62d Noncommissioned Officers Mess, Ft. Belvoir (4).

The Virginia total includes 415 slots in officers' and noncoms' clubs in military and naval locations throughout the State; 35 taxed machines in Richmond; 72 at Virginia Beach; 25 in Norfolk; 2 at the Suffolk Elks Club and 2 in the Moose clubhouse in Winchester.

In Richmond, officials of the Office of Collector of Internal Revenue said they expected additional sales of the $100 stamp tax on slots as the result of an enforcement drive under way.

Federal law specifies that the tax stamps in no way sanction use of machines where they are banned by law.

Commandant Calls 'Police Force' Letter A Closed Issue

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

President Truman's apology for calling the Marine Corps the Navy's "police force" was greeted with cheers and catcalls yesterday by 1200 delegates to the Marine Corps League convention here.

In a letter to the massed Leatherneck delegates at the Statler, President Truman "sincerely regretted" statements he made a week ago in a letter to a Congressman, in which he said the Marine had a propaganda machine "almost equal to Stalin's."

One reading of Truman's letter didn't satisfy the Gyrenes: they made National Commandant Clay Nixon read again its opening sentence—the one which said: I sincerely regret my unfortunate choice of language. . ."

Marine delegates groaned and "oh'd" in unison when Truman explained that by "police force," he only meant a body of men always ready when trouble arose.

But delegates rose almost to

Fate of District Defense Fund in Truman's Hands

Only President Truman's signature stands between the District and at least $30,000 of civil defense money.

This is because Congress last Thursday passed a joint resolution permitting the expenditure of money in the supplemental appropriation bill, up to the amount voted by the House, pending final approval of the measure.

The Commissioners already have asked the Senate Appropriations Committee to raise the amount to the $290,000 originally requested. The House slashed it to $30,000.

Engineering Commissioner Gordon R. Young said yesterday the new civil defense director will be hired "when we get the money." The $30,000 figure would permit little more than hiring a director and making paper plans. The $290,000 figure would permit a start on a full scale program.

Member of Ring, Police Say

Watchmaker Held in Illegal Operation on Wife of GI

A 56-year-old watchmaker, described by police as "one of the most active abortionists in the city," was arrested yesterday and charged with performing an illegal operation on a beautiful 22-year-old typist.

Walter J. Quantz, 1311 20th st., nw., was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence and jailed when he was unable to make $7500 bond.

The woman is married to an infantryman in Japan, but is seeking a divorce, police said. The father of the unborn child, police said, is another soldier, now stationed in Alaska.

Police said Quantz is a member of an interstate abortion ring, who served time for the offense in a Pennsylvania penitentiary.

Detective Sergts. Lloyd B. Furr and G. W. Chapman, who arrested Quantz at his rooming house, said they had known about the self-styled watchmaker for more than a year.

The operation was performed in the rooming house on September 2, police charged. The girl became

Navy Police Force Remark Termed 'Unfortunate' to Commandant

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman made a public apology to the United States Marine Corps late yesterday.

"I sincerely regret," he said, "the unfortunate choice of language which I used in my letter of August 29 to Congressman McDonough concerning the Marine Corps."

He was referring to his statements that the Marine Corps was the "Navy's police force" and had "a propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's."

Mr. Truman made his amends in a letter to General Clifton B. Cates, commandant of the Marine Corps. This he personally handed to Cates after asking him to be at the White House at 5 p. m. A copy was sent by White House messenger to Clay Nixon, who was presiding at an angry meeting of the Marine Corps League at the Statler.

The Chief Executive explained that, when he mentioned propaganda in his August 29 letter, he had in mind individuals who were trying to have the Marine Corps represented on the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This agitation, he said, had "disturbed" him. He said he was certain the Marine Corps itself had not indulged in such propaganda.

"Police Force" Explained

He said that when he used the expression "Navy's police force" he had in mind its immediate readiness for any emergency.

In praising the magnificent history of the Marines and their heroic deeds since 1775, Mr. Truman referred indirectly to his own World War I experience when he commanded an artillery battery in France.

"I personally learned," he said, "of the splendid combat spirit of the Marines when the Fourth Marine Brigade of the Second Infantry Division fought in France in 1918."

General Cates took part in the fighting at Chateau Thierry and elsewhere in France as a young lieutenant, and was wearing the French fourragere around his shoulder when he arrived at the White House yesterday.

Cates Calls Letter "Gratifying"

As he was leaving, a reporter asked him if he thought the President's letter would "end the incident."

"I can't answer that," he said.

After a pause, General Cates said:

"I'd say that the Marine Corps is very gratified to receive this letter."

Mr. Truman began drafting his letter to General Cates after conferring with members of the White House staff in the morning.

Meantime, his letter to Representative Gordon L. McDonough (R., Calif.) on August 29 was kicking up a tremendous furore. Democrats as well as Republicans were jumping on the President for his "insult" to the far-famed Leathernecks.

U. S. Resolution To Block Help to Invader Killed; Vote 9 to 1 for It

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. Sept. 6 (U.P.)—Russia used its 44th veto tonight to kill an American resolution calling on United Nations members to refrain from helping the North Koreans or taking action that might spread the war.

The vote was nine in favor, only Russia against, and Yugoslavia abstaining.

It was this proposal for localizing the Korean war that was suspended in air throughout the month of August because Soviet delegate Jacob A. Malik, chairman of the Council that month, held the Council in a procedural snarl.

In addition to recommending that the Korean war be kept in strict bounds, it also would have:

1. Condemned the Red Korean invaders for defying the Council's June 25 resolution calling on them to cease fire and pull back to the 38th Parallel.

2. Requested all U. N. members to 'use their influence to prevail on the authorities of North Korea to cease this defiance."

Immediately after defeat of the American proposal, the Council beat down Russia's counter-proposal calling for a cease-fire in Korea and withdrawal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's United Nations forces. Only Russia voted for it, eight voted against and Yugoslavia and Egypt abstained.

The resolution, labeled a "peace" proposal, would have left the Red invaders in possession of all the territory they have gobbled up since launching their attack June 25. It also called for admission of North Korean and Chinese Communist representatives to take part in the Korean debate.

The Council then adjourned until Thursday morning, when it will turn to another Soviet proposal demanding an end to American bombing of Korean "towns and populated areas."

Held 'Victory' for West

Despite the fact that Russia's veto kept the American resolution out of the U. N. record books, the 9-to-1 vote was regarded by observers as a propaganda victory for the West. In their view, it did Russia no good in the fight for world public opinion to stand alone in voting against the U. N.'s Korean war effort.

In debate leading up to the long-delayed tally, Nationalist China charged that two North Korean divisions formerly were part of the Chinese Communist army.

In making the charge, Nationalist Delegate Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang failed to make it clear whether the two divisions were comprised of Chinese or Korean citizens.

Tsiang told the Security Council that the North Korean Fifth Division "fought in Manchuria as the 164th Division of the Chinese Red army," and that the North Korean Sixth Division "is the 166th Division of Red China in Manchuria."

Tsiang told newsmen who questioned him later that Chinese Na-

Amid Barrage of Kisses

First 47 Draftees From District Are Given a Tearful Send-Off

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The first District contingent of draftees called up during the Korean war—47 men in the 24-25-year-old age groups—was inducted into the Army yesterday amid speeches, tears, and kisses.

Salutes and tributes by civilian and military dignitaries, tears by the mothers and sisters of the solemn-faced draftees, marked the 40-minute mass induction and oath-taking ceremony on the front steps of the District Building.

The scheduled exercises were followed by 10 minutes of unscheduled kissing and hugging of the selectees by their parents and kinfolk, as the new soldiers boarded two Army buses for the short trip to Arlington Farms, Va., to be followed by a long trip, by train, to Fort Jackson, S. C.

A crowd of around 500 persons, mostly relatives, was on hand to participate in the District's sendoff salute.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service system and principal speaker made it clear, however, that the real significance of the exercises related not so much to the men called to the colors as to the folks back on the home front.

The important thing about the ceremony, the Selective Service chief, declared, is that it underscores the fact that the civilians back home have a job to do in backing up the men at the front.

On this score, William E. Leahy, director of District Selective Service, promised the inductees that "nothing we can do will be left undone." John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, declared the District "must be alert to all the needs of the families" of the draftees.

The induction was conducted by Lieut. James F. Schilt, of the Army-Air Force recruiting station. As he called out the name of each of the 47 men, the selectee took one step forward and automatically stepped into the enlisted ranks of the Army. The first to do so was William Walter Miller, 25, of 1111 Third st. ne., a former employe of the United Ice Co. He was called up by Board No. 13.

Others participating in yesterday's ceremony included Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, commanding general, District National Guard; Dr. Bernard Braskamp, chaplain, House of Representatives; and the Metropolitan Police Band, directed by Capt. Charles Benter. A guard of honor and flag-bearers were provided by the local veterans organizations.

Warns of Potentialities

Soviet Says U. S. Shot Down Red Bomber Without Cause

By Thomas P. Whitney

MOSCOW, Sept. 6 (AP).—Russia charged tonight that a Soviet bomber shot down in Korea Bay Monday was the victim of an unprovoked attack by 11 American fighter planes. It said three Russian fliers lost their lives.

A Soviet note to the American Government broadcast by Moscow radio said the Russian plane was on a training flight and carried "neither bombing nor torpedo armament." It did not say the plane was unarmed, but said it did not fire on the American planes or even approach American warships.

U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk declined at the Foreign Ministry to receive the note on grounds the incident was a United Nations matter, the radio said, but the Russians later sent a copy to the U. S. embassy.

North of 38th Parallel

The note said the two-engined craft was shot down in flames five miles south of Haiyang Island (Hai-Yun-Tao). The island lies about 75 miles north of the 38th parallel, 87 miles west of the nearest Korean coast, and about midway between Korea and the Soviet naval base of Port Arthur in Manchuria.

Warning of the possibly "serious consequences" of such incidents, the note demanded:

1. A strict investigation.
2. Punishment of the persons responsible.
3. Compensation for the loss of the three fliers and the destruction of their plane.

Soviet Protest Note Rushed Back by U. S.

The Soviet Embassy delivered to the State Department yesterday Moscow's protest over the shooting down of a Russian plane off Korea.

The Department returned it almost immediately.

Officials said a woman messenger from the Embassy who spoke no English handed the note in a white envelope to a receptionist on the first floor and departed. As soon as responsible officials of the Russian section upstairs saw what it was, they sent it back to the Embassy by a messenger who spoke no Russian.

Big 3 to Seek Asia's Aid on Tense Issues

Acheson Promises Full Consultative Study On Korea, Formosa

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Secretary Acheson promised yesterday that the Big Three foreign ministers would consult Asian governments before reaching decisions on Korea and Formosa.

He told his press conference that he was sure the Foreign Ministers would seek Asian views at their meetings in New York next week, although he did not know at the moment just how they would do it.

There are ample precedents for giving such a hearing to interested governments. When the four-power Council of Foreign Ministers discussed Trieste four years ago, for example, it heard the official spokesman of neighboring Italy and Yugoslavia.

The Secretary's announcement yesterday was primarily a concession to India and to Prime Minister Nehru, who felt aggrieved because he had not been consulted or even informed before the United States

Bay Fishing Party Saved by 2-Mile Swim of Librarian

George R. Houston, 32-year-old assistant librarian at the Supreme Court, yesterday swam 2 miles of Chesapeake Bay to bring rescuers to three friends clinging to an overturned rowboat off North Beach.

All four were kept overnight at Prince Frederick Hospital.

Besides Houston, who lives at 6412 Madawaska rd., Glen Echo Heights, Md., they are William M. Stone, 33, of 1310 Park rd. nw., an employe at Andrews Air Force Base, his son Billy, 8, and Edward Fairfax, 45, an accountant for the Philadelphia Bulletin.

The 15-foot boat flipped over after "we just shipped too much water," Houston said. The trio, Billy dressed in a waterlogged life preserver and supported by his father, clung to the boat for three hours, while Houston stroked toward North Beach.

35 No. Korean Tanks Blasted By Navy Planes

At Least 5 Destroyed Monday 25 Miles East of Pyongyang

The Navy said yesterday an estimated 35 North Korean tanks were heavily damaged by Navy planes on September 4 about 25 miles east of the Communists' capital at Pyongyang.

A Navy spokesman told reporters the tanks, although well camouflaged, were discovered by fliers seeking targets of opportunity. He said at least five tanks were destroyed.

The spokesman said Navy planes flew a total of 175 sorties on September 4. In addition to the tanks, they hammered a number of railroad bridges and bombed and strafed trains.

Allied Plane Attack Leaves Pohang Afire

TOKYO (Thursday), Sept. 7 (AP).—The greatest air strike of the Korean war—625 sorties—of all types—hit the Communists yesterday. About 40 Korean Red tanks were damaged, an air summary reported today.

The record strike included a two-hour fire bomb attack which set ablaze the Communist-captured port of Pohang.

Announcement of the big bag of tanks was made at a time when the Communists were reported to have sent 84 new Russian-built armored giants to help their blazing offensive.

Favored by good weather, jets and Mustang fighters were out early today to resume the aerial slugging.

Pohang burned fiercely, reported Capt. Eliot Wolfsen of Sacramento, Calif. He said air strikes helped South Korean ground forces break up a Communist road block north and east of Yongchon, key highway junction 20 miles east of menaced Taegu.

An Air Force summary said four flights of B-26 Invader bombers raked North Korean positions in a 40-square-mile area near Pohang with 16,600 rounds of 50-caliber ammunition, 32 fragmentation bombs which splatter into deadly steel needles on contact, and six tanks of jellied gasoline fire bombs.

Signs Omnibus Funds Bill

Truman Rejects 'Directive' By Congress for Franco Loan

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday signed the 36-billion-dollar one-package appropriations bill, but he stated bluntly he would not be bound by Congressional instructions to him to make a $62,500,000 loan to Spain.

The omnibus money bill, the first of its kind, contains a total of $36,153,600,425. It provides for almost all of the activities of all branches of the Federal Government for the fiscal year ending next June 30. In addition, it contains defense and foreign economic and military assistance funds.

From the outset, Mr. Truman vigorously opposed the bill's provision to require him to extend a loan, through the Economic Cooperation Administration, to Spain. He, and top White House advisers and Cabinet members, feel such a loan would create the most hostile reaction by the other western Eu-

GIs Dig Foxholes In City; Yongchon Retaken by Allies; Foe Loses Heavily

TOKYO, (Thursday) Sept. 7 (AP)—Defenders of imperiled Taegu dug foxholes in the city today while swarms of United Nations planes attacked Korean Communist mountain positions within sight of that keystone supply base.

The planes, which shot up nearly 40 tanks yesterday, went after Reds who had pushed the United States First Cavalry Division back 2 miles on the north to within 7 miles of Taegu.

Disregarding soaring losses in men and armor, the Reds exploded new power drives today toward Taegu and at the southern end of the battle perimeter.

But the Reds were taking a bloody beating in the Changyong sector, 23 miles southwest of Taegu. There United States Marines and Second Division Infantrymen who have killed or wounded an estimated 7300 Reds in a week, pushed a large force of Communists back to the banks of the rain-swollen Naktong River.

Rifles Used As Clubs

Associated Press Correspondent Don Huth reported the Leathernecks and doughboys seized two dominating heights in fighting so close that rifles were used as clubs. American casualties also were reported heavy.

The Americans were eating up a Communist bridgehead which a week ago extended east of the Naktong for 8½ miles.

Moving in fresh reinforcements last night, the Communists attacked in force this morning against the U. S. Twenty-fifth Division near the south coast. The attack, which achieved a slight penetration in its early stages, was made at the confluence of the Nam and Naktong Rivers, more than 35 miles west of the lifeline port of Pusan.

Although many casualty reports probably overlapped, it appeared the North Korean losses in a week since their offensive began were nearing 20,000.

Allies Recapture Yongchon

Key to the fight for Taegu was the town of Yongchon, 20 miles to the northeast, controlling vital supply highways. It was recaptured by U. N. forces Wednesday. Today's U. S. Eighth Army communique said that South Korean troops, "driving east from Yongchon have stopped the enemy's progress toward this city."

Another critical sector was near Kyongju, another highway junction, 35 miles east of Taegu. The communique said two South Korean regiments were forced to withdraw today south of Angang which is 10 miles north of Kyongju.

3 INS Newsmen Among 11 Killed In Crash in Japan

TOKYO (Thursday), Sept. 7 (AP). An Air Force transport plane exploded on takeoff today from an airfield in southern Japan. Eleven persons, including three correspondents for International News Service, were believed killed.

The three INS correspondents were Frank Emery, Charles Rosecrans and Ken Inouye. They boarded the twin-engined C-47 in Tokyo last night and the passenger manifest showed they had not left the plane.

Four crewmen and 10 passengers were on the plane when it left Tokyo. Three persons got off before the ill-fated takeoff from the southern Japan field.

An earlier announcement from the public information office had said four crewmen and two passengers were killed in the crash.

Rubber Stockpiling Lag Laid to Pentagon

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense chiefs yesterday were charged with having a "business as usual" attitude and failing to take adequate steps to prevent another serious war-time rubber shortage.

The Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, in its first "watchdog" report on the mobilization program, sharply criticized Pentagon officials and the Munitions Board for still operating on a pre-Korean war basis as to disposal of surplus World War II stocks and rubber stockpiling.

Declaring that the Munitions Board is unwisely cutting its rubber stockpiling program instead of expanding it, the committee suggested that the board's present leaders should be replaced by "more imaginative and far-sighted men."

"If we find in the other fields into which we move," commented Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Tex.), "the same siesta psychology that we found in surplus property and rubber, our work is certainly cut out for us."

The seven-man subcommittee—set up to function much as did the Truman Committee during World War II—declared that after the Korean fighting started, Defense continued with plans to sell war stocks and "vital Government-owned productive facilities."

Despite successful efforts of the Senate group to step up synthetic rubber production, it was said, both that output and the stockpiling of natural rubber is "inadequate."

"Major steps must be taken, as rapidly as feasible," it was said, "To augment our rubber supply and production and to make more natural rubber available to our strategic stockpile.

Slow to Realities

"As in the case of surplus sales, we have found that the Government agencies responsible for our rubber supply and stockpile have been slow to adjust their thinking and actions to the realities of the post-Korean world.

"Menacing events in the Far East are an obvious threat to our natural-rubber supply line. It will be too late, if hostilities begin spreading in the Far East, to augment our stocks—but until very recently this fact did not materially disturb complacency on the Potomac as to rubber."

The report said the Air Force had given the committee a "polite brush-off" when questions were asked about sales of surplus property at the Robins AF Base, Ga. Later, it said, sales were suspended, and a further investigation into the situation is planned.

The subcommittee also said that it has had to fight at every Government level to bring about a step-up in American synthetic-rubber production. The RFC was raked over the coals for arguing "as late as August 17" that it should be allowed to proceed with the sale of a "significant" Government plant at Akron to the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. for conversion to production of plastic.

Sales Blocked

As a result of the subcommittee's efforts, said the report, sale of this and three other synthetic rubber plants was blocked this summer.

The Department of Defense was declared to lack "any real central policy" on surplus property sales. While since the Korean war started, sales have been frozen, there seems to have been no "reappraisal on a high policy level" of the standards governing such disposals, it was said.

But the subcommittee's sharpest criticism was leveled at the Pentagon's Munitions Board. It charged that the board's past program for stockpiling natural rubber has been "meagerly conceived and meagerly executed."

And, the committee expressed "serious concern" on finding that the board has "substantially" cut its current rubber procurement plans "during the last few weeks."

The committee urged that the following seven-point program be adopted to assure adequate rubber:

(1) Adoption of a "firm, aggressive" natural rubber stockpiling program, plus review of the present cut.

(2) Immediate reactivation at capacity operation of all Government synthetic rubber plants, plus maximum use of privately owned plants.

(3) Complete ban on further sale of Government plants, and a prompt review of all recapture clauses where the factories have been sold.

4. Use of allocation, specification and inventory controls in the Rubber Act to conserve more natural rubber for stockpiling.

5. More aggressive research into synthetic rubber.

6. Preparation of plans for additional such plants.

7. Investigation of the possibility of growing natural rubber in the United States and getting natural rubber from the Western Hemisphere.

Alaska, Hawaii

Truman Aids 2 Statehood Measures

President Truman yesterday entered the fight to obtain Senate passage of Alaskan and Hawaiian Statehood bills before adjournment of this session of Congress.

E. L. Bartlett, Delegate from Alaska, and Joseph Farrington, Delegate from Hawaii, announced Mr. Truman's decision following a call at the White House.

They said the President assured them he will "use every possible influence" to get a vote before adjournment.

They told newsmen Mr. Truman authorized them to make the statement.

Both Statehood bills have passed the House.

The two delegates said Mr. Truman assured them that he would get in touch with Administration leaders in advance of a meeting of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee, which will decide whether to press for Senate action.

"The President," Farrington said, "feels it is vital to the war effort and our position in the Pacific that this recognition be extended to the people in our Pacific outposts of Hawaii and Alaska."

Farrington said Mr. Truman felt that the burden of the fighting in Korea "has fallen heavily on the people of Hawaii."

He said he told the President that the rate of casualties among troops from Hawaii is "almost five times greater than the rate among troops from the country as a whole."

a man to support Commandant Nixon when he urged that Truman's "police force" letter be considered "a closed issue."

Nixon said he appreciated the President's "coming to us as a man and as a member of the Marine Corps League"—of which he is an honorary member. He said he considered yesterday's letter a retraction of Truman's earlier statement.

Nixon had to gavel the convention to a recess after the rising vote to cut off one or two last-ditchers who still had loud views to express.

Earlier yesterday afternoon, before it was known the President had a statement to make, Marine after Marine delegate waded into him verbally from the floor and in the Statler corridors.

Most blistering floor speech came from William C. Harris of Savannah, Ga., a past regional vice commandant of the League.

In language occasionally reminiscent of the barracks, he described Truman as "this creature in the White House," and said that "when Harry opened his mouth he put both feet in it."

Referring to Truman's views on Marine "propaganda," Harris said the President has a good propaganda agency of his own—"every damned Government agency."

From time to time as convention business progressed, a delegate would pop to his feet and shout: "Are we going to give Truman hell now?"

Art Edelstein, a Detroit delegate, said he was going to send "Haberdasher Harry" a copy of the Marine Corps history, "One Hundred and Seventy-five Years with the Corps."

Commandant Nixon himself called the earlier Truman letter "unseemly" and thought it led to "disharmony in the United States."

But he tossed a note of caution to the irate convention, recalling that Truman was their Commander in Chief and "entitled to our respect." He urged delegates to "hold their tempers."

Delegate Melvin Maas, former Republican congressman from Minnesota and president of the Marine Reserve Officers Association, "regretted" the first Truman statement and said it might be "our fault" for not having "sold the real worth of the Marines" to the Nation.

Marines should not be ashamed of the title of "police," he said, because "so long as there is a Marine Corps there will be a United States."

Another delegate, John C. Vivian of Colorado and former Governor of that State, was "amazed" at the Truman statement and urged that the League "have a seminar on Marine Corps history and invite Harry Truman."

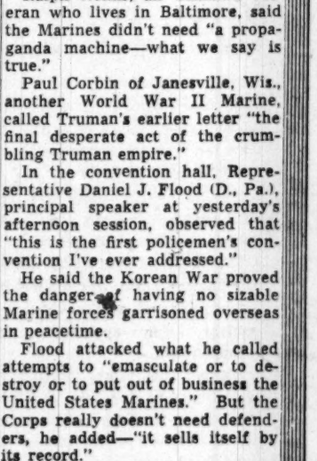
Off the floor, before hearing the Truman apology, league delegates—veterans of the last three wars and some now in the corps—had their own personal views on the President's earlier letter.

Herbert Baldwin, 70, of New York City—"national bugler" of the league and an old-time Marine, called it "the wrong time to come out with an assinine statement."

Baldwin fought the Spanish-American War as a Marine Corps "music boy" in the Philippines.

Matthew A. Whelan, 79-year-old veteran of the Spanish-American War and of the Boxer Rebellion in China, called it "a very unfortunate statement for a man of breeding and education to make."

Hyman Rosen of Brighton, Mass., commandant of the league in that State, called Truman's police-force statement "humiliating."



Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post
HERBERT BALDWIN
". . . an asinine statement"

BETTY JEAN MONEY
". . . I'm ready to fight"

A veteran of Carlson's Marine Raiders in the Pacific in World War II, he added: "We weren't called police then."

And a lady Marine vet of World War II, Betty Jean Money of San Francisco, Calif., summed up her views simply: "I'm ready to fight," she said.

Ralph Nelms, an Okinawa veteran who lives in Baltimore, said the Marines didn't need "a propaganda machine—what we say is true."

Paul Corbin of Janesville, Wis., another World War II Marine, called Truman's earlier letter "the final desperate act of the crumbling Truman empire."

In the convention hall, Representative Daniel J. Flood (D., Pa.), principal speaker at yesterday's afternoon session, observed that "this is the first policemen's convention I've ever addressed."

He said the Korean War proved the danger of having no sizable Marine forces garrisoned overseas in peacetime.

Flood attacked what he called attempts to "emasculate or to destroy or to put out of business the United States Marines." But the Corps really doesn't need defenders, he added—"it sells itself by its record."

Yesterday morning league delegates held special services at Arlington Cemetery for the Unknown Soldier. The memorial service oration was given by the league's national chaplain, the Rev. Father Michael J. Haley.

Wreaths were placed at the tomb by the league, its Women's Auxiliary, and by the Military Order of the Devil Dogs—an honorary group within the league. The Marine Band played at the ceremony.

Today convention committees will report during a business session beginning at 9:30 a. m. The convention resolutions committee is due to report at 1:50 p. m., and new officials will be nominated at 4 p. m.

The convention winds up Friday with election of officers, selection of a new convention city, and a 7:30 p. m. banquet.

Hearing Set September 12 On O'Dwyer

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday set September 12 for a hearing on the nomination of New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer to be Ambassador to Mexico.

O'Dwyer now is vacationing in California. Committee Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said he will be notified that "at least one" committee member, Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) wants him here for the hearing.

The committee has received 20 or more protests against the appointment. Connally said anyone who wants to testify will be heard but he hoped the hearing will not take longer than one day. It may be a closed session.

Among those protesting is Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y., who charged that it was part of a political deal between President Truman and Edward J. Flynn, New York Democratic leader.

Labor Youth Body Called Subversive By Loyalty Board

The Government's Loyalty Review Board told all executive departments and agencies yesterday that the Labor Youth League is a Communist organization.

The board acted after being informed by Attorney General J. Howard McGrath that the League has taken over the functions of two groups previously classified as subversive, the Young Communist League and the American Youth for Democracy.

Yesterday's notice to department heads was for their guidance in considering cases of any employes whose loyalty might be in question.

Taft Sees Brain Lack In Administration

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said yesterday the Truman Administration has so many conflicts within itself that it is like a man with "no brain" who is unable to develop "a consistent course of action."

In his weekly column for Ohio newspapers, he said that election of a Republican Congress in November is the only hope "for some kind of consistent action from an Administration divided within itself."

He said the Korean war has brought out clearly "the conflicts and the lack of a directing principle."

"The entire Government seems to be like a man who can feel one thing with his right hand, another thing with his left, and can see other events before his eyes, but has no brain in his head to put together his various sensations and develop a consistent course of action," he said.

As an example, Taft cited defense spending. He said Defense Secretary Louis Johnson has been talking "privately" of spending 45 billion dollars a year to contain communism—more than three times the amount he thought was adequate six months ago.

"The threat today is the same threat that existed six months ago," Taft said, adding that he would vote more "enthusiastically" to double defense spending "if we could also double the intelligence at the top."

Industry Told How to Beat Red Sabotage

Learn the best ways to sabotage your own plant. Then you'll know where to block any sneak punch foreign agents might throw.

That, in effect, was a suggestion made to industry yesterday by the Defense Department.

It was included in a booklet issued by the Department's Munition Board to spell out means of protecting war plants against internal sabotage and outside atomic attacks.

The booklet, "Principles of Plant Protection," charged management with the primary responsibility for defeating any enemy attempts to cripple production and "destroy our ability and will to fight."

It suggested that the best way for management to undertake its security job is to set an official "with a lively imagination" to figuring out the best means of sabotaging his plant to slow down or halt production.

Espionage agents may be expected to use "great ingenuity" in obtaining information and carrying out sabotage, the Munitions Board stated, adding:

"It would be realistic to assume that efforts are being made at present to collect all available information on our industrial plants vital to war."

The board suggested that the most likely forms of sabotage will be the damaging of buildings and equipment by explosives or fire, tampering with gauges and precision tools, and the fomenting of labor unrest.

Plant managers were urged to tighten security checks on all personnel, including loyalty tests for those employed in jobs having to do with secret or vital production.

They also were advised to set up disaster control and relief programs, to avoid panic. "Atomic attack must be anticipated," the booklet warned.

Book Borrowed In 1772 Returned To Columbia U.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6. (AP)—A book barrowed from the library of Columbia University in 1772 was returned to its shelves today.

The borrower was the librarian of Kings College, as Columbia was known then, Robert Harpur. He was also a mathematics professor and tutor to Alexander Hamilton.

Not the least shame-faced was the descendant who brought it back several generations late—Enos M. Johnston of Brooklyn.

Johnston explained he found it while pawing through family heirlooms in the attic of his aunt, Miss Susan Ruggles of Binghampton, N. Y.

The book—"A System of Natural Philosophy" by T. Rutherforth—was accepted by a grateful library staff.

Natsir Sets Up Government In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Sept. 6 (AP).—Mohammed Natsir, 42-year-old Moslem from a remote mountain tribe ruled by women, formed a new government for the young republic of Indonesia today.

His 18-man cabinet is composed of four members of the Masjumi Moslem party, five nonparty members and nine representatives of smaller parties. It excludes the Indonesian Nationalists (PNI), formerly a dominant force in Indonesian politics.

of the 243 seats in the new Parlia-of the 243 seats in the new parliament. With other backing, he expects the cabinet to command a narrow majority.

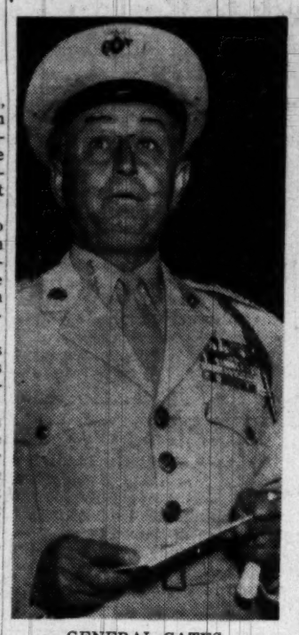
Former Premier Mohammed Hatta, who formed the PNI party 25 years ago to spearhead the fight for independence from the Dutch, resigned the premiership last may become vice president. Hatta month when Indonesia abandoned its federal structure of government in favor of a unified one-state government and changed its name from the United States of Indonesia to the Republic of Indonesia.

Some political leaders feared exclusion of PNI would drive it into the camp of the far left. A few party members already are lined up close to the Communists.

The first test will come September 17, when Natsir asks a vote of confidence in Parliament. The cabinet will be so sworn in tomorrow.

Natsir said his government will prepare for election of a new Assembly to write a permanent constitution, seek a peaceful settlement with the Dutch over West New Guinea, which is not yet a part of the republic, and stress reconstruction. He said it will pursue an independent course in international affairs.

Text of Truman's Apology to Marine Corps



GENERAL CATES
. . . holds Truman letter

The text of President Truman's letter to Gen. Clifton B. Cates, commandant of the Marine Corps, follows:

"Dear General Cates:

"I sincerely regret the unfortunate choice of language which I used in my letter of August 29 to Congressman McDonough concerning the Marine Corps.

"What I had in mind at the time this letter was written was the specific question raised by Mr. McDonough, namely the representation of the Marine Corps on the Joint Chiefs of Staff. I have been disturbed by the number of communications which have been brought to my attention proposing that the Marine Corps have such representation. I feel that inasmuch as the Marine Corps is by law an integral part of the Department of the Navy, it is already represented on the Joint Chiefs of Staff by the Chief of Naval Operations. That the Congress concurs in this point of view is evidenced by the fact that, in passing the national security act of 1947, and again in amending that act in 1949, the Congress considered the question of Marine Corps representation on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and did not provide for it.

"It is my feeling that many of the renewed pleas for such representation are the result of propaganda inspired by individuals who may not be aware of the best interests of our defense establishment as a whole, and it was this feeling which I was expressing to Mr. McDonough. I am certain that the Marine Corps itself does not indulge in such propaganda.

"I am profoundly aware of the magnificent history of the United States Marine Corps, and of the many heroic deeds of the Marines since the corps was established in 1775.

"I personally learned of the splendid combat spirit of the Marines when the Fourth Marine Brigade of the Second Infantry Division fought in France in 1918.

"On numerous occasions since I assumed office, I have stated my conviction that the Marine Corps has a vital role in our organization for national security and I will continue to support and maintain its identity.

"I regard the Marine Corps as a force available for use in any emergency, wherever or whenever necessary. When I spoke of the Marines as the 'Navy's police force,' I had in mind its immediate readiness, and the provision of the national security act which states that 'the Marine Corps shall be organized, trained, and equipped to provide fleet marine forces of combined arms, together with supporting air components, for service with the fleet in the seizure or defense of advanced naval bases and for the conduct of such land operations as may be essential to the prosecution of a naval campaign.'

"The Corps' ability to carry out whatever task may be assigned to it has been splendidly demonstrated many times in our history. It has again been shown by the immediate response of the Marine Corps to a call for duty in Korea.

"Since Marine ground and air forces have arrived in Korea I have received a daily report of their actions. The country may feel sure that the record of the Marines now fighting there will add new laurels to the already illustrious record of the Marine Corps.

"Sincerely Yours,
"HARRY S. TRUMAN."

The President's letter to Clay Nixon, commandant of the Marine Corps League, follows:

"My dear Mr. Nixon:

"I am concerned over the situation which has arisen because of the publishing of my letter of August 29 to Representative McDonough.

"I have this date addressed a letter to the commandant of the Marine Corps, a copy of which I am enclosing.

"I should be happy to have you read my letter to the members of your organization.

"Sincerely Yours,

Marines Get Truman Letter

Committee, said Mr. Truman had "belittled a great, fine organization."

Senator Byrd (D., Va.), said it was a "peculiarly unfortunate" affair and that the Marines "should not be minimized."

"Another Tragic Blunder"

Senator Martin (R., Pa.), said Mr. Truman's "slurring statement is another in a long line of tragic blunders" by the Administration, and a "monstrous insult" to Marine war heroes.

Frank A. Hecht, president of the Navy League of the United States, said that "never has there been such a gratuitous insult from the Commander in Chief to one of our fighting forces," and he demanded an apology to every Marine, every former Marine, and the widows and parents of Marines who had died fighting.

"They don't like being compared to the No. 1 enemy of democracy," Hecht said.

The news that Mr. Truman was drafting a letter was circulated before noon. No information was available as to who would be the recipient. Then, just before 5 o'clock, General Cates arrived at the White House, attired in summer uniform and with six rows of decorations and campaign ribbons on his chest.

When he emerged from Mr. Truman's office, he was accompanied by Rear Admiral Robert Dennison, White House Navy aide.

"Gentlemen," said Cates to the reporters, "I came to the White House at the expressed request of the President. He delivered a letter to me which will be given to the press."

Ayers Issues Copies

Mimeographed copies soon were issued by Eben Ayers, Assistant White House Press Secretary. Ahead of the text of the letter to Cates was the text of a note Mr. Truman had sent to Clay Nixon, commandant of the Marine Corps League, along with a copy of the Cates letter.

The President has aides to help him with his correspondence and his speeches, but he does a good deal of letter writing himself, dictating to a secretary or writing in long-hand. This is especially true in his dealings with members of Congress.

Representative McDonough wrote to Mr. Truman on Aug. 21. He said the Marine Corps, by its action in Korea, was again demonstrating that it was an effective, hard-hitting force that could produce results upon the battlefield.

"In my opinion," McDonough wrote, "the United States Marine Corps is entitled to full recognition as a major branch of the armed services of the United States, and should have its own representative on the Joints Chiefs of Staff in the Department of Defense . . ."

This aroused the President and led him to say in his reply to McDonough that the Marine Corps was the Navy's "police force" and that it had a propaganda machine almost equal to Stalin's.

In his letter to General Cates yesterday, Mr. Truman devoted his longest paragraph to explaining why he has been "disturbed" by the number of communications urging that the Marine Corps be given representation on the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He said he felt that, inasmuch as the Marine Corps is by law an integral part of the Navy Department, it already is represented on the Joint Chiefs of Staff by the Chief of Staff of the Navy. He said that Congress concurred in the view that this was proper, and had given evidence of it in passing the National Security Act of 1947 and again in amending that act in 1949, when it considered but did not provide for Marine Corps representation on the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Mr. Truman concluded his letter to General Cates by saying that the country may be sure that the Leathernecks in Korea will "add new laurels to the already illustrious record of the Marine Corps."

Coast Guard Fills Quota; Recruiting Off Until October

The Washington Coast Guard district announced yesterday that its September quota of recruits is filled and no enlistments will be accepted until October.

The September quota was only six, officials reported. A larger quota is expected for October.

Elsewhere in recruiting offices, the Marine Corps re-enlisted one former Marine and accepted one recruit. Ten applicants were turned down.

Eleven men were enlisted by the Army, and 11 by the Air Force.

Navy recruiting officers are under orders not to disclose enlistment figures.

Television Sets, Many Items Affected by New Hike in Prices

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP).—New price increases on a number of items were announced today.

Price boosts were put into effect by seven television manufacturers, continuing a trend that got under way soon after the start of the Korean fighting.

Two companies raised cement prices, one firm advanced prices on foam rubber pillows, and another company increased prices of a speciality yarn. And shoe price increases of 10 percent next spring were forecast at a showing for buyers here.

The television price increases were by Motorolo, Zenith, Crosley, Hallicrafters, Olympia, Tele-tone and Air King, and ranged from $5 to $55 a set. It was the second round of increases for Zenith, and also on some of the Tele-tone sets.

Zenith also raised prices on some of its radio sets by $2 to $40.

Increased costs of materials or components were given as the principal reason for the radio and television increases. Crosley gave as an added reason its policy of guaranteeing all parts for one year.

The cement price increases were announced by Alpha Portland Cement Co. and the Pennsylvania-Dixie Cement Co. They amount to 10 cents a barrel in bulk and 12 cents a barrel in paper bags, and become effective for delivery on and after October 1.

Industry circles forecast that other cement companies would follow suit.

The higher shoe prices for spring were predicted at the opening of the Allied Shoe Products and style exhibit here. Higher costs for materials were cited as the reason.

Price boosts of some 25 percent on two styles of its Koolfoam pillows were put into effect by the Dayton Rubber Co.

The Dobeckmun Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, raised the price of its "Lurex metallic yarn" by about 6 percent.

China Issue Stirs World Bank Session

PARIS, Sept. 6 (NYHT).—The fifth annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund was opened here today by President Vincent Auriol and promptly became another arena for the Soviet-sponsored fight to oust Nationalist China from all international conferences.

Czechoslovakia's delegate turned up unexpectedly and introduced the issue as soon as the opening ceremonies had been concluded. The Czechs have been the only Communist members of the bank and the fund since the withdrawal of Poland last March in protest against the alleged control of both Bretton Woods institutions by the United States.

Before the Czechs appeared, Auriol had joined with bank and fund spokesmen in setting the theme of the 11-day meeting—how to maintain a stable economy in the Western world while undertaking a large-scale arms program.

Auriol warned the delegates of the 49 nations present that the drive for collective security envisioned in the United Nations charter must "avoid ruining any national economy, hampering or preventing international trade or weakening or altering any currency."

John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury and United States governor for both the bank and the fund, added a plea for "close and effective cooperation" to help fight the inflationary pressures that are bound to come with large-scale rearmament.

Earlier, Snyder told the Anglo-American Press Club at a luncheon that European nations can do worse than to follow the example of the United States in trying to finance added defenses with increased taxation.

As soon as the formal speeches were ended, Jaroslav Docekal, Czech governor of the World Bank, called for a vote to oust Nationalist China on the ground that its participation is "unlawful." The basis of his demand was two cables to the bank and fund from the Chinese Communist government, asking the unseating of the Nationalists—but not, incidentally, requesting representation for the Communists.

Docekal drew a prompt counterblast from Chia Kan-yen, the Chinese governor for the bank and the fund, and from Snyder. The Secretary of the Treasury branded the move as "a highly colored propaganda statement of the type to which we have become accustomed in meetings where the satellite countries are present."

Spy Charges Are Denied By O'Hara

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP).—Archbishop Gerald P. O'Hara of Savannah, Ga., said today that spying charges made against him by the Red-controlled Romanian government "were false from first to last."

O'Hara

The archbishop and two aides were expelled from Romania last July. He had been in Bucharest as the Vatican's diplomatic representative.

Arriving here on the United States liner America, the archbishop said "it is good to be in America, but I regret I am not returning to my mission in Bucharest where so much remains to be done for the church and the Romanian people."

The prelate, who had been the last diplomatic representative of the Vatican in Iron Curtain countries, was raised to the rank of archbishop by Pope Pius XII shortly after his expulsion.

Last July 4, he and two aides, Msgr. Kirk and an Italian, Msgr. Guido del Mestri, were given three days to leave Romania following the trial of seven persons, including the bishop's chauffeur, on espionage charges.

German Trade In War Items Is Restricted

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The allies have revoked German export licensing powers over ball bearings and rubber compounding agents because too many of the critical war-potential items were sent to the Soviet satellites, German trade sources said today.

Allied officials declined comment

It was understood that the Germans in one 10-day period approved a larger quantity of the restricted materials for export to countries behind the Iron Curtain than the allies had in four and a half months.

Ball bearings are key components of any war machine. The rubber compounding agents are carbon black, auto-oxidants and chemical accelerators.

Attlee to Put Defense Issue To Vote Test

LONDON, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—The Labor government, stung by Winston Churchill's charge of laxity in defense, decided today to stake its life on a vote of confidence when Parliament meets in special session next week.

The government's motion has not yet been framed, but is is expected to be in general terms.

The government has a normal seven-seat majority in Commons, but that will be cut to five with the absence of Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, in New York, and Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps, who is ill.

The vote probably will come Thursday night after three days of debate and Prime Minister Clement Attlee and his cabinet will resign if defeated.

Churchill, on August 26, charged Attlee's government with hesitancy in getting troops to Korea. He declared that the government's aid to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's U. N. forces was too little and too late and taken then only after he—Churchill—had prodded the government.

Murphy, Prosecutor of Hiss, Goes Unrewarded; to Resign

New York, Sept. 6 (AP).—Assistant U. S. Attorney Thomas F. Murphy will resign, it was reliably reported today, because his successful prosecution of Alger Hiss went unrewarded.

Murphy himself would not talk about it. But friends and close associates, who declined use of their names, said he is going into private practice in October when Hiss' appeal is concluded.

The 45-year-old Murphy never lost a case for the Government in his eight years as a Federal prosecutor.

He was lauded in law circles for his stubborn, carefully documented and tightly prepared case against Hiss that finally brought a conviction after two trials.

Hiss, former high State Department aide, was convicted of perjury in denying that he passed Government secrets to a Soviet spy ring. He was sentenced to five years.

His appeal from the conviction is to be argued early in October.

Friends said Murphy hoped to win a federal judgeship or some other position of higher rank than he now holds. They added that President Truman praised him for his conduct of the Hiss case but offered him no advancement.

Murphy is a lifelong Democrat but never has belonged to any Democratic organizations. As a result, friends said, Democratic state leaders would not go to bat for him.

In addition, his friends said Murphy was passed over by his own office when it came time to assign prosecutions to other important cases—including pending spy trials.

Sen. Vandenberg Home To Finish Treatments

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 6 (AP).—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) came home today for the first time since Congress opened its present session last January.

He arrived in a private plane, accompanied by his personal secretary and a physician.

The Senator immediately went to Butterworth Hospital to complete his current treatments in his convalescence from major surgery.

"My doctors told me it would take a year to recover my health and strength," Vandenberg said, "and they seem to have been about right."

Japan in U. N. Group

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 6 (AP).—The World Federation of the United Nations Associations formally admitted the United Nations Association of Japan to membership today. Only Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary opposed admission of the Japanese organization.

Total Now 8863

1977 Korean Casualties In New List

Defense officials yesterday reported 1977 more American casualties of the Korean war.

These were for the week of August 25-September 1. They brought the total announced since the war's beginning to at least 8863—599 killed in action, 5366 wounded, 2898 missing.

These figures represent those whose relatives have been notified. The total number of casualties is higher.

Of the wounded, 83 later died. Of those missing in action, 126 are known to have been captured or interned or else have returned since earlier figures were compiled.

Here are the casualties by branches of the armed services:

Army—465 killed in action; 4861 wounded; 2714 missing. Of the wounded, 69 died.

Marines—97 killed; 482 wounded; 10 missing. Of the wounded, 12 died.

Air Force—28 killed; nine wounded; 43 missing. Of the wounded, one died.

Navy—Nine killed; 14 wounded; five missing. Of the wounded, one died.

The figures do not represent every casualty suffered because it takes time to receive reports from the war front and to notify next-of-kin.

Mount Kasan was repulsed by a First Cavalry Division regiment.

An aerial summary today said United Nations planes destroyed 19 tanks and damaged 21 yesterday while flying a record 625 sorties.

Although a field dispatch reporting the Red assault in the south told of a slight penetration, today's Eighth Army communique said the offensive "had made no progress at last reports."

United States warships off the east coast added their guns to the fire power holding of Red troops which captured an air base 6 miles southeast of the fallen port.

Pohang was aflame today from a two-hour fire bomb attack by planes.

A Navy summary today said the warships were pouring "round-the-clock naval gun fire." Last night the warships illuminated the battle area with star shells.

Other warships shelled Red troop concentrations at Paedun on the southeast coast to the left flank of the U. S. Twenty-fifth Division sector.

Weary First Cavalry troops north of Taegu fell back in order to shorten their line. Northwest of Taegu the left flank was anchored about two miles south of Waegwan, which also appears to be in enemy hands, Associated Press Correspondent Jack MacBeth reported. Waegwan is 12 miles northwest of Taegu.

MacBeth said the situation on the First Cavalry's right flank was critical because of deteriorating South Korean positions.

A spokesman for the First Cavalry admitted a "definite threat" to the flank but expressed confidence the present perimeter would be held.

In the northern battle the Reds threw in two tank brigades of 42 tanks each and already Allied planes have knocked out 17 of them.

Although Allied troops have regained Yongchon, a key city in the defense of Taegu, the main supply line to the east was reported cut.

An enemy force there put a South Korean regiment from the Eighth Division to flight. This action was reported by a front dispatch.

Counter-blows 18 miles to the southeast of Yongchon rolled back the enemy nearly 10 miles in one Red breakthrough area, a field dispatch said.

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson reported that the Yongju Road was firmly in Allied hands nearly to Angang.

It was north of Angang that the Communists cracked open the South Korean defenses. In the vicinity of Angang the Red force split. One headed toward Kyongju, 10 miles to the south. The other struck westward toward Yongchon.

At one time advance enemy units were reported in the outskirts of Kyongju, about 53 air miles north of the main supply port of Pusan.

It is in this Eastern sector that one of two Red tank brigades was committed. There were 42 tanks to a brigade, a U. S. intelligence officer said.

The other tank brigade was reported north of Taegu. In this sector the First Cavalry repelled two Red attacks, one within 10 miles of Taegu.

American units tried unsuccessfully to storm hill positions of the Reds near Hyonpung, 14 miles southwest of Taegu. In this area the Reds have had 6000 troops across the Naktong for two weeks.

Eight miles southwest of Taegu and on the left flank of the First Cavalry, British troops in their first action beat off a Red patrol. The British troops from Hongkong include the kilted "Ladies from Hell" Scots.

General MacArthur's war summary reported the Reds had lost 2035 in dead and wounded in the 24-hour period ending Wednesday noon.

Red Korean warplanes made one of their infrequent appearances over the front. Six enemy aircraft strafed and bombed United States positions along the Naktong River.

Communist Party, Agrarians Lose in Danish Balloting

COPENHAGEN, Wednesday, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Complete returns today from Denmark's parliamentary election showed the voters in this Atlantic pact country gave the Conservatives and Georgists (single tax party) a boost and handed the Communists a setback.

The Communists were reduced to the smallest party in Parliament. Results:

Party	Total Vote	Seats in New House	Lower
Socialists	813,590	59.	gain of 2
Conservatives	365,298	27.	gain of 10
Georgists	168,418	12.	gain of 6
Liberals	167,799	12.	gain of 2
Agrarians	437,959	32.	loss of 17
Communists	94,495	7.	loss of 2

GE and CIO Heads Meet Ching Today On Strike Threat

Representatives of General Electric Co. and the CIO's International Union of Electrical Workers will meet here today with Cyrus S. Ching, chief Federal conciliator, in a Government move to resolve their contract dispute and prevent a Nation-wide walkout.

The union had planned to strike 42 GE plants on Monday, but postponed the walkout at the request of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. However, IUE members at six plants were already on strike last week, and these were joined by six more plants on Monday. As a result, half of the IUE's 60,000 members at General Electric were out yesterday, the remainder were working.

The Government is especially interested in settling the GE dispute because the company is engaged in war production. GE and IUE have been unable to come to terms on the union's demands for an increase in wages, and other contract improvements.

Truman Rejects 'Directive' for Loan to Franco Spain

ropean countries in the Marshall Plan.

Furthermore, they believe that to grant a loan, as the Congress ordered, without exacting the same strict obligations which the Marshall Plan nations were required to accept, would be unwise in the extreme.

In a White House statement he issued on signing the appropriations bill yesterday, the President had this to say about the provision:

"I do not regard this provision as a directive, which would be unconstitutional, but instead as an authorization, in addition to the authority already in existence under which loans to Spain may be made.

"Spain is not, and has not been, foreclosed from borrowing money from this Government. Money will be loaned to Spain whenever mutually advantageous arrangements can be made with respect to security, terms of repayment, purposes for which the money is to be spent, and other appropriate factors, and whenever such loans will serve the interests of the United States in the conduct of foreign relations."

Most of the accompanying statement was devoted to denouncing another provision of the bill, which requires that the Executive Branch curtail its spending by 550 million dollars below the bill's 36-billion-dollar total.

This is "an unwise and dangerous departure from proper budgetary practices," the President said. The Congress itself should set the precise amounts of money to be spent, he contended.

"This unusual provision represents a failure by Congress to exercise its proper responsibility," he said. Nevertheless, he promised to make the reduction called for, and "a greater one" if it could be done.

His position on the Spanish loan order—to the effect that the President initiates and directs relations with foreign countries, and that the Congress can only authorize, consent and advise on them—has considerable bi-partisan precedent.

The clearest related to a proviso in the Merchant Marine Act of 1920, directing the President to terminate certain treaties.

President Wilson signed the measure because of many good features he thought it contained. But his Secretary of State, Bainbridge Colby, announced that the President did not consider the directive to abrogate the treaties "an exercise of any Constitutional power possessed by the Congress."

On succeeding Wilson, President Harding took the same position.

In a Supreme Court case on another matter in 1936, Justice Sutherland stated the situation at some length and very explicitly:

"Not only . . . is the Federal power over external affairs in origin and essential character different from that over internal affairs, but participation in the exercise of the power is significantly limited.

"In this vast external realm . . . the President alone has the power to speak or listen as a representative of the Nation. He makes treaties with the advice and consent of the Senate; but he alone negotiates. Into the field of negotiation the Senate cannot intrude; and Congress itself is powerless to invade it."

What is the GE Offer?

10¢ an hour total general wage increase for all GE employees; with an average of 5¢ in effect now, 5¢ more to come on settlement.
This 10¢ compares with 10¢ at Chrysler in August, 8¢ at Ford September 1, and 9¢ at General Motors (4¢ June 1, and 5¢ September 1).

An additional 5¢ to 5½¢ an hour to certain skilled trades; in effect since June.
This is equal to or above the skilled trades increases given by General Motors in June, Chrysler in August, and Ford in September.

A reopening of wage issues within six months of settlement.

$125 a month guaranteed minimum retirement incomes, with no ceilings; pensions go up as pay and service go up.

A GE employee retiring at 65 after averaging $75 a week for 25 years under the plan would get $153 a month; for 30 years, $167; and for 40 years, $196.

Other plans in the news have $100, $104, or $117.50 as the maximum for 25 years service—and some go to $125 for 30 years.

A whole new broad program of life, sickness and accident insurance; hospitalization, surgical and maternity benefits.

These benefits are right up with the best of the recently publicized settlements, or in the rest of major industry.

An extra paid holiday—bringing the total to 7 paid holidays, in addition to vacations up to 3 weeks.

These holidays are on a par with those of other representative companies.

That means 10¢ to 15½¢ an hour in wage increases offered in the 90 days of negotiations.

And the increased pensions and insurance programs in addition are worth still another 15¢ to 28¢ an hour to our employees.

And the new holiday offered—Election Day—means another day's pay without work.

The total of the wage offers and the value of the insurance and pension programs is obviously worth 25¢ to 43½¢ an hour—plus* the extra holiday.

There are many other features of added value in the General Electric offer; extras which are especially attractive and worthwhile.
We will be glad to send full details to all who may be interested—but the paragraphs above should give the main idea.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

From Our Deep South Kitchens We Suggest For Luncheon

CHICKEN a la BAM

Just plain good eating. Half of a plump broiler . . . simmered in butter and its own rich juices and brought to you swimming in a tangy barbecue sauce.

Lynch Seen Heading N. Y. Democrat Slate

Senatorial Nominee

WALLACE F. BENNETT
. . . in Utah's primary election

By The Associated Press

Rep. Walter A. Lynch, now serving his sixth term from the Bronx, appeared headed today toward nomination for governor by New York Democrats—but not without a fight.

Supporters of Lynch, 56-year-old lawyer who by CIO standards has a perfect voting record in this Congress, claimed an easy majority for him in the nominating convention at Rochester.

But Albany County Chairman Daniel P. O'Connell promised a floor contest in an effort to swing the nomination to Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing.

Senator Herbert H. Lehman is unopposed for Democratic renomination.

Republicans, at their Saratoga Springs convention, were all set with their ticket—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for a third term nomination for governor, and Lieut. Gov. Joe R. Hanley for Senator.

Their nominations were a mere formality as Dewey, responding to an 11th-hour draft call because of the war crisis, and Hanley had clear fields. Hanley was to have had the gubernatorial nomination, but bowed out in favor of Dewey, who asked Hanley to run for the Senate nomination.

[The United Press said New York City leaders had agreed to indorse Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora for mayor of New York—Editor's Note.]

Meanwhile, returns from Tuesday's primaries in the West showed that Senator Pat McCarran defeated a war veteran by about 3-to-1 in Nevada's Democratic Senate race. His opponent was 34-year-old George Franklin, jr., a Las Vegas attorney and former bomber pilot.

McCarran, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, did not bother to campaign in person.

Two Nevada Republicans were running a tight race for the right to oppose McCarran November 7. They are Attorneys Kendrick Johnson of Reno and George Marshall of Las Vegas. Johnson appeared the winner.

For Nevada's lone seat in the House, Republicans apparently nominated A. E. Mackenzie, rancher, to oppose Representative Walter Baring (D.), unopposed in the primary . . .

For Governor, Nevada Democrats renominated Gov. Vail Pittman. The Republicans picked Charles Russell, former representative and newspaper publisher.

In Utah, Republicans chose Wallace F. Bennett, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, to oppose Democratic Senator Elbert D. Thomas, in November. Thomas was unchallenged in the primary and Bennett easily beat Rue L. Clegg, lawyer and State Senator.

Jap Envoy's Daughter Wins Citizenship

Mrs. Jaye Kurusu Maddox, daughter of Saburu Kurusu, Japanese "peace" ambassador here at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack, yesterday regained her American citizenship.

President Truman signed a bill to allow Mrs. Maddox to return from Japan with her American husband, Army Lieut. William J. Maddox jr., son of Mrs. Marion Wygant Maddox of 4230 Fessenden st. nw., and be naturalized again.

Born in Chicago of an American mother, Mrs. Jaye Maddox lost her citizenship by voting in the 1946 Japanese election. The State Department so ruled when Maddox, whom she married in 1948, sought to bring her to this country.

Maddox is at present a liaison pilot with the First Cavalry in Korea. He was graduated from Wilson High School here and attended American University for a year.

The bill to restore her daughter-in-law's American citizenship was introduced after Lieutenant Maddox's mother sought congressional help in the project.

Mock Battle at Tidal Basin

AT TIDAL BASIN—Whaleboats fitted out as replicas of the battleships Constitution and Guerriere make a practice run before their sham battle, a reenactment of the famous War of 1812 engagement, which will take place at the Tidal Basin on September 8, 9, 16, 22, and 24, as part of the President's Cup Regatta. It is under auspices of the National Sesquicentennial Commission. The boats were built from surplus whaleboats at the Naval Gun Factory and are approximately 30 feet long and carry a crew of four to six

1812 Naval Battle to Be Fought Again

The War of 1812 battle between "Old Ironsides" 'and the British ship "Guerriere" will be re-enacted at 8:30 p. m. Friday in the Tidal Basin.

The mock battle will be repeated Saturday night and on September 16, 22 and 23. It is sponsored by the Sesquicentennial Commission in connection with the President's Cup Regatta.

Thirty-foot reproductions of the two famous ships have been fashioned by Comdr. Carl M. J. Von Zielinski, USNR, from surplus whaleboats at the Naval Gun Factory.

In the mock battle each boat will carry a crew of from four to six men and will fire its guns using black powder. They will maneuver and otherwise conduct themselves as in the historic battle, said the Sesqui Commission.

Preceding the mock battle a concert will be given Friday and Saturday nights by the United States Naval School of Music band from the Jefferson Memorial steps beginning at 8 p. m.

Chapman's Loyalty Faces Senate Probe

By The Associated Press

An immediate Senate investigation was ordered yesterday into charges that Secretary of the Interior Chapman had had a "close personal alliance" with Russian communism.

Chairman O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) called hearings to begin today before his Senate Interior Committee.

Senator Schoeppel (R., Kans.) leveled the charges against Chapman in a Senate speech Tuesday, declaring that the Cabinet officer once belonged to Communist-front groups and may have left them only to save his "official position."

Straus Also Named

Schoeppel also demanded an investigation of United States Reclamation Commissioner Michael Straus, questioning whether he ever had signed a loyalty oath and, if he did, whether "he confined himself strictly to the truth."

Chairman O'Mahoney invited both Schoeppel and Chapman to attend the initial hearing. He said that others mentioned by Schoeppel in his broadside accusations will be called later.

Schoeppel tried unsuccessfully to get O'Mahoney to postpone the hearings until next Monday or Tuesday.

The Kansas Senator said his administrative assistant, Frank T Bow, had done "a lot of research" on the case and "it would be better if he could attend with me." He said Bow was on a business trip and probably could not return to Washington by this morning.

O'Mahoney made public a letter he sent to Schoeppel declaring "Your charges on the Senate floor are of so serious a nature involving as they do the patriotism, integrity and good faith of a Cabinet officer, that an immediate hearing and investigation is clearly required in the public interest."

O'Mahoney's Letter

"It is the earnest hope of the committee," the letter said, "that you will attend this hearing and bring with you any documents or other evidence you may have which will assist the committee in obtaining all of the facts."

Fair Play Asked

O'Mahoney also made public a letter from Chapman demanding that Schoeppel be there to face him "in keeping with the traditional spirit of fair play which we Americans so cherish."

Chapman already had denied Schoeppel's charges, through an aide, and had asked a chance to testify as to his loyalty "under oath."

Besides Chapman and Straus, Schoeppel brought up the names of Gov. Ernest Gruening of Alaska; E. L. Bartlett, Alaskan delegate to Congress, and Randolph Feltus.

Schoeppel said in his Senate speech that Chapman and Gruening were instrumental in hiring Feltus to lobby for Alaskan statehood.

Schuman Asks Care, Cites War Danger

One Tortured

Americans Used by Reds As Shields

WITH U. S. TWENTY-FIFTH DIVISION, Korea, Sept. 6 (AP).—An American sergeant escaped from Korean Reds who used him as a human shield.

He came back today to tell of hearing a buddy scream for four hours—until he died of torture.

M/Sgt. Clarence Jacobson of Perley, Minn., and another soldier heard, but did not see, the death of their companion. The two were hidden under a hay stack.

Death by Torture

The tortured man kept screaming, "Please kill me," Jacobson said. "Every time he screamed the gooks would laugh and giggle."

The torture death was the aftermath of a ghastly mistake.

The three soldiers had gone to seek help after Reds attacked a group of Americans in the rear. Suddenly two columns of soldiers appeared. One column was directly in front, one behind them.

"Here we are!" shouted the man who was later tortured to death, "Here we are!"

The columns were Korean Reds.

"We gambled they might not shoot us and threw down our guns. A Communist officer came up and put two guards on the man who yelled at them and one to watch the other two of us. He told the guard to use us as a human shield while he searched the village just below.

"The guard had his burp gun hung around his neck and held my .45 automatic on us.

"He used us as a body screen, making us go into each of the houses and alleys where he thought American soldiers might be.

"I kept yelling at the other guy who got away—his last name was Coates but I don't know his first name—as if I was giving him hell. The gook did not understand English. What I really was saying was that I would jump the guard as soon as there was a chance.

"He looked away and I jumped him, pinned him against the wall, and wrestled away my .45. Then we ran like hell and dove into a hay stack.

"We got on our backs and pushed hay over us. We sweated it out for about three minutes and then the gooks came all around us, mad as hell. They tore off the porches of the houses and looked underneath. They were shouting and cursing each other for letting us get away.

Starts Screaming

"Then they moved away to higher ground and shortly after that the third American—the one who yelled at them first and who did not get away—started screaming.

"I don't know what they were doing to that boy but it was something horrible. Then at 10 o'clock that night he must have died. The screams stopped.

"We had nothing to eat or drink. Then God blessed us with rain. We stuck out our hands—that was the second day—got a handful of water and lapped it up.

"Several times the third day I heard voices. They didn't have the high rasp of Koreans. They sounded like that old hillbilly drawl. But we couldn't take a chance. I thought maybe we were hearing things. We stayed in the haystack.

"Then I heard a voice yell out and I recognized it as a squad leader from my outfit. A lieutenant shouted for him to shut up and I knew it was our guys. I shouted, 'give us covering fire. We are coming in!' They yelled, 'come up.' We took off and made it.

"That's about all. I wish I knew the first name of that boy with me—Coates—but I don't know the rest. He is okay. It was a million to one gamble but we won—we are alive and well."

PARIS, Sept. 6, (U.P.).—French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman said today he is convinced "that no nation at the moment wants a third world war."

"But," he warned, "the international situation is explosive and it is not a time for anybody to play with fire."

The foreign minister told a press conference this was his personal conviction—"based on a great number of facts at my disposal."

Schuman indicated that France will accept further increases in Western German police forces and a temporary raising of the ceiling on German steel production to aid North Atlantic rearmament.

He also indicated France no longer objects to creation of a Western German Foreign Office.

But he emphasized that these steps would have to be taken under proper supervision and he said the French government still opposes formation of a Western German army or armaments production.

"The whole question of German security," Schuman said, "is related to that of the Western Allied occupying powers. In defending Western Europe we must necessarily also defend Western Germany.

"Our very presence there already makes Western German defense a reality."

Kurd Revolt Quelled, Iran Officials Report

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 6 (AP).—Prompt military action has crushed a revolt by a small Kurdish band in western Iran and the mopping up should be completed in a few days, Iranian officials said today.

The revolt flared among Javanroodi tribesmen last weekend after a hidden Communist radio station in Azerbaijan Province, adjoining Soviet Russia, called on the Kurds in Iran, Iraq and Turkey to rebel and set up a Soviet state of Kurdistan.

Freedom Bell in U. S.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP).—The Freedom Bell, built as a smybol of American effort to spread the word of democracy in Europe via radio, arrived here today for an exhibition tour. Later, it will be hung permanently at Freedom Shrine in Berlin.

Guinea Pig Trial

Nervousness Laid to Drugs In Childbirth

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 6 (AP).—Suggestive evidence was offered today that certain nervous disorders and mental retardation in children may sometimes stem from overdoses of drugs given their mothers in childbirth.

Dr. R. F. Becker of Philadelphia reported on experiments with guinea pigs. He said the studies demonstrated that lack of oxygen to an infant during the birth process "can result in serious injury to the infant's nervous system and change the course of the normal pattern of development in later life."

He pointed out that it is already known that overdosing of drugs given to an expectant mother to make her delivery comfortable is a prominent cause of asphyxiation (lack of oxygen) of newborn.

And he told how asphyxiation was produced experimentally in guinea pigs just before birth. In their case, however, the condition was produced by mechanically interfering with their oxygen supply from the mother.

"It (the experiment) has not proved at all that obstetrical anesthetics and drugs are responsible for the behavioral changes that were observed in these animals," Dr. Becker said.

"But it stands to reason that any factor which will induce an asphyxial state and delay breathing at birth will produce similar effects in the newborn."

Soviet Vetoes Korean War Curb

tionalist observers in Korea had interviewed 145 Red prisoners and found 50 of them who spoke fluent Chinese. He said it was very unusual for a Korean to speak fluent Chinese and concluded that this must mean Chinese citizens were fighting for North Korea.

At the opening of the session, Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik informed the council of the Russian protest against American downing of a Soviet warplane.

Malik opposed full U. N. discussion on the ground that the United States alone must bear responsibility for the "criminal activities" of its military forces, arguing that the incident had nothing to do with the U. N.

However, American Delegate Warren R. Austin served notice that the United States soon would ask for full Council debate on the incident. He said Russia had been using the argument that the U. N. has no business in Korea since 1947, when the United States first brought the issue to the world organization.

The main business before the Council was the resolution on Korea.

The Chinese Nationalists delegate supported the resolution, but voiced regrets that it did not go further and name the Soviet bloc in demanding a stoppage of aid to the Red Korean invaders.

Tsiang then spelled out his charges that divisions that once fought in the Chinese Communist army were now fighting under the North Korean banner.

"This interchangeability of units may appear in Indo-China and maybe in Europe," he warned. "It is the pattern of the new imperial army of the Soviet Union."

Debate Flurry Follows

When the Soviet protest on destruction of its plane off Korea was read to the Council, a brief but heated flurry of debate ensued when Council President Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain ruled that the note could be considered in the Council's debate of "aggression" in Korea alongside yesterday's U. S. letter giving the American version of the incident.

Malik said Russia was merely conveying information to the U. N. as the U. S. did yesterday and did not intend to have its note to the U. S. discussed by the Council.

Austin snapped back that Russia could not address the U. N. and not address it at the same time. "In due time," he said, "the United States will ask you (the chairman) to recognize its representative for the purpose of discussing this subject . . ."

Malik took the floor again and said it was nothing new to "hear the delegate of the United States attempt to cover all action in Korea since 1947 with the shingle and label of the U. N."

He went on to repeat charges that U. S. planes were killing peaceful Korean citizens and bombing peaceful towns.

He concluded by saying Russia holds the American Government "fully responsible for the criminal activities of U. S. military forces guilty of this crude violation of universally recognized norms of international law." Russia, he said, demands compensation and the "U. N. has no relation to this matter."

Jebb again ruled that the Soviet protest could be considered in the Korean debate, after which Malik accused Jebb of being illogical. But the Russian did not formally challenge the ruling and it stood.

Russia Says U. S. Shot Down Red Bomber Without Cause

cuss the incident and they were together about half an hour.

The Moscow radio then broadcast the text of the note. It said Kirk had refused to receive it on the basis that American forces in the area are under United Nations jurisdiction and the Soviet demands would have to be examined by the U. N., not the United States.

Vishinsky was quoted as saying such a stand was groundless because the incident "is no way related to the military operations in Korea."

"The Soviet government lays on the United States Government all the responsibility for the criminal action of the American military authorities, which have besmirched themselves with this outrageous violation of generally recognized rules of international law," said the note.

(Almost simultaneously with the broadcast, however, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik was handing the United Nations the same protest concerning the incident.

(The United States informed the Security Council Tuesday that a two-engined plane bearing a Red star had been shot down by a United Nations fighter patrol off the west coast of Korea near the thirty-eighth parallel and that the body of a Russian lieutenant had been recovered. The United States announcement said the plane flew over a screening ship toward the center of a naval formation in a hostile manner and fired on the fighter patrol.)

The U. S. S. R.'s note tonight said the plane shot down in Korea Bay was proceeding on a training flight from Port Arthur to Hiayang, accompanied by two other planes also on a training mission.

It said the incident was witnessed by the two other planes as well as a Soviet observation and communications post on the island, which was described as "part of the frontier of Port Arthur naval base."

The island lies almost directly east of Port Arthur. Port Arthur, at the southern tip of the Kwantung Peninsula, was declared a joint Chinese-Russian naval base in an agreement made by Nationalist China in 1945. It once was heavily fortified by Russia in the last century but was awarded to Japan in the Portsmouth Treaty of 1905.

Russia said the United States, "to conceal this totally unjustified attack on a Soviet plane," had given out a 'false version" that the Soviet craft flew with hostile intentions over a screening vessel and fired on American fighters.

In fact, the note declared, the Soviet plane did not even approach the warship and was six miles away when it was shot down in flames.

Britain's TUC Rejects Bomb Resolution

BRIGHTON, Eng., Sept. 6 (AP).—British labor unionists today overwhelmingly rejected a motion urging the scrapping of atom-bomb stockpiles. Instead, they approved the Labor government's over-all anti-Communist program.

The government carried the day by a vote of 6,940,000 to 595,000. Each delegate cast the same number of votes as there are members in his union.

The resolution calling for banning of atomic weapons and destruction of all atom-bomb stocks was knocked down by 5,601,000 votes to 1,972,000.

Arthur Deakin, member of the TUC general council, said before the vote he was sure the congress would not support the proposal "at a time when Russia is not prepared in a realistic manner to face up to the issue" of cooperating in international control of the atom.

Russia has rejected American proposals in the United Nations for control, objecting to inspection provisions.

Walter Padley, a Labor member of Parliament, sponsored the atom-bomb stockpile resolution. It said:

"This congress calls upon the government to exercise a fresh initiative through the United Nations for the reopening of the question of international control and supervision of atomic energy production, the banning of atomic weapons and the destruction of all atom-bomb stocks."

The trade unionists also decided to try to help in the development of free trade union associations in Japan, to avoid the repetition of alleged unfair competition experienced from Japan before the war.

New TV Program To Give Works of Pulitzer Winners

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP). — A new television program showing works of Pulitzer prize winners is to be started next month, it was announced today.

The show, "Pulitzer Prize Playhouse," will be telecast over the American Broadcasting Co. network each Friday from 9 to 10 p. m. (EST) beginning October 6. It will be sponsored by the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. of Milwaukee.

Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Columbia University School of Journalism, who is secretary of the Pulitzer prize advisory board, said the new program was expected to raise television standards and help to encourage "fine literary craftsmanship."

Police at Montevideo Battle 400 Strikers

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Police and troops today blocked an attempt by 400 Communist-led strikers to seize a factory here. No one was injured seriously, but 45 rioters were arrested.

Communist member of Parliament Enrique Rodriguez led the mob of stone-throwing strikers. The guards held their ground, and police reinforcements and cavalry troopers were rushed to the scene. The rioters were a part of the 6000-odd metal workers who have been on a wage strike for three weeks.

Second Try For Citizenship Is Successful

Mrs. Nadine Donovan, who has aspired to American citizenship since her arrival in this country from Belgium in 1946, made it on the second try yesterday.

The attractive, 29-year-old wife of an Arlington Air Force veteran made certain there would be no repetition of an earlier disqualification. That time, she arrived at the Federal Court in Alexandria five minutes too late to take the oath. Yesterday she was on hand in the courtroom with her husband and her father at 1:30 p. m.—an hour ahead of the scheduled ceremony.

She was one of 27 foreign-born petitioners sworn in by Judge Albert V. Bryan at a brief ceremony followed by patriotic exercises conducted by the Dr. Elisha Dick Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Unlike Mrs. Donovan, who met her husband after she arrived in this country, most of the other applicants were war brides.

For Mrs. Donovan, it was the realization of a dream rudely shattered last June, when her late arrival caused her to miss the ceremony. On that occasion, she said, she actually arrived at the right building on time but was misdirected to the Alexandria Police Court when she asked a passerby how to get to the "courthouse." It was too late when she discovered her mistake.

A former receptionist at the Belgian Embassy, she is now an assistant editor of the Disabled American Veterans' semimonthly magazine here. She is the wife of Robert C. Donovan, a former Fifteenth Air Force bombardier, who spent seven months in a German prison camp after being shot down over Italy.

The couple, who now live at 1717 N. Taylor st., Arlington, met at a fraternity party here shortly after her arrival from Belgium. They were married in 1947.

Most Auto Accidents Held Preventable

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Four out of five injuries and deaths listed as accidents are more "invited" than accidental, a national life insurance company reports.

These accidents-by-invitation are caused, according to investigators of the Northwestern National Life Insurance Company, by persons with habits which encourage death and injury.

The study group recommended weeding out such persons from jobs, principally automobile and truck driving, where they endanger others as well as themselves.

The insurance company investigators interviewed the Nation's leading safety experts and surveyed independent and Government-sponsored studies on accidents to reach their conclusions.

Repeater Statistics Cited

A United States Government survey of Connecticut auto driving records, they pointed out, showed that four percent of the State's drvers had 36 percent of traffic accidents during a six-year period.

More recent surveys, the investigators report, show that more than half the total traffic accidents in other States involve only 5 to 10 percent of the drivers.

The investigators summed up British and American studies on accidental casualties of all types during the past 30 years as demonstrating that about 20 percent of the population consistently have 80 percent of the accidents.

When person with accident-producing habits are removed from any group of people, total accidents for the group nose-dive with startling suddenness, they noted.

Accident Rate Cut 80%

One large public utility concern, the investigators said, cut its traffic accident rate 80 percent simply by taking the drivers with bad accident records off their trucks and transferring them to other jobs.

In a driver research clinic in Michigan, they noted, 100 accident repeaters studied had had 528 accidents and had been arrested 769 times for traffic law violations in a 10-year period.

Typical accident repeaters, it was reported, knew less about highway rules, got upset and "rattled" more easily under trying conditions, and tended to resent rules and authority. A "show-off" streak also was frequently found in such drivers.

A certain number of accident repeaters, the insurance company investigators said, are found by the various State clinics to be abnormal personalities needing medical or psychiatric treatment.

The vast majority of such drivers, however, were reported to be persons with bad habits and wrong attitudes of resentment or contempt towards rules, regulations and common courtesy. The typical accident repeater was described as one who ignores safety teachings and figuratively thumbs his nose at safety regulations unless compelled to respect them.

Trust God, Families of Missing Told

SERGEANT MAPES
. . . advises anxious relatives

By S. L. Fishbein
Post Reporter

A tested formula for anxious relatives of missing war casualties comes today from a Bolling Base sergeant who tested it.

The formula: "Never give up hope, for, with God's help, they will make it back."

Six years ago today Sergt. Victor L. Mapes tried it out in the heaving Pacific. It worked so good he's writing a book about it.

On September 7, 1944, Mapes was in the hold of the notorious Jap "Hell Ship" along with 750 other prisoners, all cramped from three weeks in the ship's hold.

Blasted Four Jap Ships

Off the island of Zamboango, Americans closed in and blasted four Jap ships, including the Hell Ship.

Mapes jumped through a hole in the side, started swimming for shore.

Meanwhile, gunners on the Jap ships were playing machine-guns on the swimming prisoners. Mapes took three slugs in his right leg, one in the left. He saw struggling bodies around him sink.

The ocean was rough, especially for a man with shattered legs. "I asked God for calm waters, and before I stopped praying, the waters became still," says Mapes. A flood of oil from one of the sunken Jap tankers had suddenly quieted the waves.

"I thanked God and asked Him if the slick could stay with me until I could reach the shore 10 miles away," Mapes says.

Oil Slick Stayed

The oil slick stayed with him while he swam, guided by the stars, for 17 hours. On the beach, native guerillas took him in sympathetic tow.

Three weeks later, an American sub sneaked in and carried off Mapes and 81 other Americans who had survived the ordeal. Eight operations later, Mapes was ready to go. He had spent 831 days as a prisoner of the Japs.

Mapes was no "foxhole convert." He'd been a regular practitioner for years. His formula, Mapes readily admits, is not original. He just thinks he's a good example.

Stationed at Bolling for the past three years, Mapes works with the public information officer, Capt. William Lookadoo, and lives at 2517 K st. nw.

Cornwell Waives Hearing in Fatal Shooting of Cousin

MANASSAS, Va., Sept. 6 (Spl.).—Andrew Cornwell accused of murdering his cousin last August, waived a preliminary hearing before Trial Justice C. Lacey Compton today.

At the same time charges of murder in connection with the shooting against Richard Watson and Mary E. Dixson were withdrawn. They were released under $1000 bond as material witnesses.

Richard Cornwell, a 61-year-old farmer, died from a severe beating at his home seven miles from Manassas. Police said that Andrew Cornwell, Watson and the Dixson woman were all present when the beating was inflicted.

Albanians Can't Leave Homes During Census

BELGRADE, Sept. 6 (NYHT).—The Communist regime of Albania is holding a national census this week by placing the population under what amounts to house arrest, according to "Nova Makedonia," a leading Yugoslav Communist newspaper.

The Tirana government has officially announced "severe punishments" for Albanians who leave their homes during the 24-hour census-taking, the paper reported. The only persons allowed on the streets are the police and census takers.

According to the paper, no Albanian may step out of his home on the census day even if there is a death in his family.

Candidates Guests Of Democratic Club

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer and all Prince Georges County candidates supported by the Democratic State Central Committee are expected to attend a rally sponsored by the Twenty-first District Democratic Club today at 7:30 p. m. at the Branchville Fire House.

Leland G. Worthington, club president, said "speech making" will not take up the entire evening. Entertainment and refreshments will be on tap, he said.

D. C. Officer Given Battlefield Promotion Wounded in Korea

A Washington lieutenant who last month received a battlefield promotion for valor and a soldier who was scheduled for discharge in August have been wounded in Korea.

Last month Lieut. William M. Kean, 22, was promoted from second to first lieutenant for "outstanding leadership and courage under fire" in a ceremony at which his father, Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, Twenty-fifth Division commander, officiated.

On August 31 he was seriously wounded by a mine explosion, according to an Associated Press dispatch from the Masan Front.

Pfc. Thomas J. Frazier, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frazier, 3821 Beecher st. nw., was scheduled to come home last month, according to his father, a Treasury Department clerk. On August 19 shrapnel fractured both his arms and wounded him in the back and leg.

Lieutenant Kean's grandmother, Mrs. Annette M. Kean, 1629 Columbia rd. nw., said he had been commissioned September 23, 1949, when he graduated from the Fort Riley (Kans.) officers candidate school. He was sent to Japan last spring.

Kean's father and mother have been overseas the past two years, Mrs. Kean said.

A native of Washington, Pfc. Frazier graduated from Western High School in 1947, where he received letters for football and baseball. He enlisted in the Army about two years ago and, after basic training, was sent to Guam.

Frazier worked for a time as a FBI clerk before enlisting, according to his father. He has a brother, John, 13, and two sisters, Joan, 22, and Elizabeth, 12.

Pvt. Edward L. Collier, son of Mrs. Laura Lowery Collier, Route 1, Stephens City, Va., has been killed.

Pfc. Carl E. Miles, son of Mrs. Edna M. Miles, Hagerstown, and Pfc. Harry L. Poole, son of Mrs. Mable Poole, Dickerson, Md., were wounded.

Invasion of Paracels Reported 'Imminent'

HONGKONG, Sept. 6 (AP).—The long-expected Chinese Communist invasion of the Paracel Islands again was reported "imminent" today.

The Paracels are a group of about 11 islands, some 200 miles southeast of Hainan and 150 miles due east of Indo-China. The invasion probably will coincide, a Press report said, with an offensive by Communist Ho Chi Minh in Indo-China.

Retraction

The President has taken the only possible course out of a regrettable situation by apologizing to the Marines for what he called his "unfortunate choice of language." It was an inexplicable incident which is explained only in part by the President's irritation over the pressure to admit the Marines to the Chiefs of Staff. However, Presidents before Mr. Truman have pulled boners, and an "I am guilty" is the only way out. President Roosevelt, after such an error, would simply anticipate a question by saying that his head was on the block, and that the newsmen could cut it off. It was the answer that usually turned away wrath—or, rather, nipped it in the bud. The public man who really capitalized on an apology, however, was Fiorello H. LaGuardia, with his classic comment: "When I make a mistake, it's a beaut." (Incidentally, LaGuardia was the man who once saved the Marines when President Hoover wanted to merge them into the Army.) In the present case the Marines come out of the affair with honor, even with profit, for the occasion has been taken to repeat the story of Marine achievements, including their pioneering of amphibious warfare which the President had seemingly forgotten.

Gas To Formosa

Secretary Acheson said yesterday that we are doing nothing in Formosa to mount, encourage or to permit a Nationalist attack on mainland China. Yet the shipment of aviation gasoline—now at last acknowledged—to Chiang's headquarters does not bear out his assurance. Chiang is reported to have plenty of aviation gasoline, and use of it has come to an end, since he has been told to stop his idle air strikes. His stocks are thus ample to defend himself in case the Seventh Fleet is circumvented by the Chinese Communists, and, of course, the Seventh Fleet would by no means be idle in that contingency. It was not in the spirit of the Truman policy, we contend, to supply Chiang Kai-shek. If aviation gasoline were needed on the island, it should have been held there in the name of the United States, ready to supplement the air arm of the Seventh Fleet.

The Truman policy of neutralization of Formosa will always look one-sided as long as the United States supplies Chiang Kai-shek—as long, moreover, as he is recognized as the government of China. This, no doubt, will be stated to Secretary Acheson when he goes to New York for the Foreign Ministers' meeting. When the United States decided to neutralize Formosa, it was saying to the world that the island was to be kept out of the war, with this country holding the scales even. That should have been the occasion for both a withdrawal of recognition as well as help from Chiang and a diplomatic effort at the United Nations to declare the Chinese seat vacant, preparatory to a fresh consideration of the problem of China when the Korean aggression has been repelled and the United Nations has taken its bearings in Formosa.

Production Loans

An important provision of the defense production bill that has received little attention so far authorizes the President to introduce a loan guarantee program similar to the so-called V-Loan program of World War II. The Federal Reserve Board explains that this proposal should not be confused with plans for the peacetime guarantee of business loans. The guarantors would be various Government procurement agencies, and the guaranteed loans would be used solely to finance the production of defense materials.

The V-Loan program, set up by executive order, was highly successful. It gave contractors with limited financial resources access to funds not otherwise obtainable from private financing institutions by guaranteeing the latter against loss. The Federal Reserve Board says that 10.5 billion dollars of V-Loans were guaranteed, and more than 90 percent of these loans (in number) were obtained by small and medium-size businesses. Owing to this program, the amount of direct Government lending required to finance war production was greatly reduced, and financing was also expedited.

The defense production bill authorizes the Federal Reserve Board, at the request of the President, to designate any Federal agency or Federal Reserve Bank to serve as fiscal agent of the agencies guaranteeing defense loans. Under the V-Loan program the Federal Reserve Banks served in that capacity, analyzing loan applications and deciding on the character of the financing needed, while the Federal Reserve Board set the interest rates to be charged on the guaranteed portions of the loans, after consultation with the agencies concerned. The experience acquired during the war years makes the Reserve Banks and the board logical selections for the work of supervising and coordinating the administration of the new guarantee program applicable to defense production loans.

"Recalled To Life"

Governor Dewey has changed his mind about becoming a candidate for reelection as Governor of New York. In a letter last Monday to Mr. Joe R. Hanley, Lieutenant Governor, and made public at the same time, Mr. Dewey explained that the radical alteration in the state of world affairs has obliged him to reconsider his decision, announced nearly three months ago, not to seek another term. In this letter Mr. Dewey observed that he would soon be calling for hundreds of thousands of volunteers to serve in the civil defense of New York and added that, "in good conscience I cannot ask others to serve unless I am willing to serve myself."

What all this probably means is that Mr. Dewey has also changed his mind about his chances of being renominated to the Presidency in 1952, and elected. To say this of course is not to suggest the slightest insincerity on Mr. Dewey's part. Indeed it is altogether probable that Mr. Dewey's change of heart was prompted as much by patriotic motives as by ambition. He asserts and believes that the Nation is in great peril, and since he is, like all successful politicians, a man of self-confidence, he believes that in such a crisis it will be better served by his own party under his own leadership.

Mr. Dewey promises to make an aggressive and vigorous campaign. In the 1948 presidential campaign Mr. Dewey, unreasonably confident of victory, was reluctant to commit himself on any important question, and on the whole was satisfied to assert that anything the Democratic Administration might have done or intended to do, a Republican Administration would do better. Now, well aware of the question that has arisen over the Truman Administration's conduct of foreign policy, he has swung around to the doctrine that the principal duty of an opposition party is to oppose. He wrote to Mr. Hanley that,

> We will not survive this crisis unless we have a strong and constructive opposition party to force correction of the errors and incompetence of the National Administration, and to compel it to take a larger view of our dangers and more effective action to meet them.

And on this ground he demanded, as a prior condition to his own candidacy, that Mr. Hanley (who had been mentioned as a possible successor to Mr. Dewey in the Governor's chair) seek the seat in Washington now held by Senator Lehman.

Both candidates, of course, must be ratified by the Republican State Convention, but there is little doubt that this will be done. Mr. Dewey's chances of reelection as Governor appear to be bright, although, needless to say, they will be somewhat modified or enhanced according to the character of his Democratic opponent. Meanwhile, the decision of Mr. Dewey to remain, if he can, in official harness, has greatly altered and enlivened the climate of national politics.

Aiding Russia

The unfavorable impression on American public opinion which was created by Mr. Churchill's charge that machine tools suitable for repair of tanks are being shipped to Russia has been heightened by Prime Minister Attlee's maladroit defense of the business. According to Mr. Attlee, exports of machine tools "regarded as of key importance for strategic purposes" were halted a year and a half ago, except in case of contracts already concluded before that date. However, as a spokesman for American machine tool manufacturers explains, "all machine tools, of whatever nature, are used in war production . . . the types withheld can be built on the machines received." Moreover, the British are still shipping tools of high strategic value under contracts entered into before April, 1948, and they also permit Russian inspectors to enter plants manufacturing these tools for the Soviet Union.

More than two years ago the United States stopped shipments of all types of American machine tools to Russia and her satellites. Since then this country has spent billions of dollars to assist the economic recovery of Great Britain and other western European countries, and is preparing to pour out additional billions to strengthen their defenses against Russian aggression. Consequently, when the British use scarce labor and raw materials to manufacture goods having military value for the use of a potential enemy, the United States has a right to protest.

The most alarming aspect of the disclosures in regard to Anglo-Russian trade is the patent reluctance of the Labor government to put a stop to these shipments for fear of being accused of reneging on its trade agreement with Russia. What an excuse when Russian tanks may be killing British soldiers at this moment in Korea! Russia's reaction certainly can be disregarded in view of the critical international situation. And a country dependent on outside aid to strengthen its defenses should, as a matter of self-interest, either forgo exports of strategic materials and equipment or else confine its exports of such goods to friendly nations. Since the Anglo-Russian trade deal was concluded, the world picture has undergone a transformation. Any government that continues to encourage trade expansion in these times for the sake of income, in disregard of political consequences, betrays "infirmity and disconnection of thought and action in shaping defense plans," to quote Mr. Churchill.

No doubt the Labor government, prodded by American officials and under political attack on the home front, will take steps to halt machine tool shipments to Russia, possibly by requisitioning them for home use But that is a minor concesson to public clamor, since Great Britain and her colonies export many other products that have high strategic value to Russia and her satellites. Unless trade in all such products ceases, Great Britain will unwittingly become an economic ally of the country against which the Atlantic Pact nations are arming for self-defense. What does the North Atlantic Treaty organization mean if the members of it cannot even develop a common policy on trade with aggressive Russia?

Day Care Centers

The perennial problem of the day care centers has come up again, although we had supposed it to be definitively settled when Congress more than a year ago authorized the continuance of this much-needed local program for a three-year period. But the House Appropriations Committee intervened and cut the funds for operation of the program from the $100,000 authorized and required to a mere $30,000. And the House, having before it matters it deemed more important than the affairs of the District of Columbia—over which it persists in acting as a municipal council—adopted the Appropriations Committee cut. The effect is to nullify the day care program almost as effectively as if the enabling legislation had been rescinded.

The day care centers fill a vital need for mothers who are obliged to work in order to support young children whom they cannot leave at home untended and cannot afford to send to private nurseries. As the rearmament program gathers headway and calls more and more District women into Government and other jobs, the centers will fill an increasingly important role. They cannot be operated on the meager sum made available by the House. A year ago the House cut the appropriation for the program with similar capriciousness. But happily the Senate repaired the damage, thanks to the wise counsel of Senators Neely, Hoey and Smith. We hope most heartily that it will do so again. The matter is one of real urgency for the District of Columbia.

Below The Belt

Another mean and shabby hoax in the McCarthy manner has been perpetrated on the Senate of the United States. The author—or at least the instrument—on this occasion was Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel of Kansas. His target was the Secretary of the Interior. His method—made painfully familiar by Senator McCarthy—was to distort wholly innocent acts and impute to them disloyal motives. Fortunately Secretary Chapman will have an opportunity this morning in his appearance before the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs to show the absurdity of Mr. Schoeppel's allegations. We have no doubt that he will do so with complete credit to himself.

The most sensational portion of Mr. Schoeppel's speech in the Senate on Tuesday was an assertion that Secretary Chapman struck out the loyalty affidavit section of the oath of office when he became Undersecretary of the Interior Department on March 27, 1946. The Senator implied plainly that this represented on Mr. Chapman's part an attempt to conceal subversive affiliations. Of course, it represented nothing of the kind. It is common practice when high officials are sworn into office in the Government to mark the occasion with a ceremony attended by friends and well-wishers. To keep the ceremony from becoming tedious, it is customary to read only the first paragraph of the long affidavit—the portion containing the standard oath of office—and to omit the involved legal language dealing with advocacy of overthrow of the Government by force or violence. In Mr. Chapman's case, the oath was administered by the late Supreme Court Justice Wiley Rutledge; and because, for the simple sake of brevity, he read only the first paragraph, the balance of the affidavit was struck out by a clerk.

If Senator Schoeppel was not familiar with this practice, he could have learned about it—and discovered for himself the simple and innocent explanation of the stricken paragraphs—by calling the Secretary of the Interior on the telephone and asking him a question. The plain fact is that Mr. Chapman, who has served the Interior Department in several capacities for a good many years, has on file there three separate affidavits in which the paragraphs stricken at the time of the formal swearing in ceremony of 1946 are included. Thus his loyalty to the United States is fully attested by oath. It is attested also by a long record of honorable and devoted public service.

ENRICO AND THE FOX

"Are we enemies then, old brushytail, that you
Should snap your eyes and sniff, become uneasily
A bush among the bushes? I am only Enrico,
A slow two-legged one with hard loud hoofs.
Truly, Fox, we should know each other better,
Our tastes are so alike; I am as fond
As you of eggs laid boastfully in the grass
By hopeful birds; and the birds are juicy, too,
Don't you think?. If one can catch them.
And there's the rabbit, you'll never like rabbit better
Than I do. And round, blue grapes suddenly
Sweet-and-tart in the first white morning!
"We are not really afraid, though we walk charily
And do not trust the shadows that have no long
Familiar smell. We are not really afraid,
Though sometimes, Fox, the shadows are very strange."

Marines And Army

The Marine Corps is a fine organization. From the Barbary Coast at the beginning of the nineteenth century to the present conflict in Korea, Marines have distinguished themselves on the field of battle for American ideals and principles. We Americans are proud of them. We are genuinely sorry when a Marine is killed or wounded in action.

The Army also is a fine organization, and we Americans are equally proud of it. The Army's record for valor predates even that of the Marine Corps. General Washington's ragged and hungry army fought and won for us our independence. That was before the Marine Corps came into its own.

The least glamorous of our fighting forces, it always has been the role of the Army to fight—and die—without fanfare or claptrap. Not given to self-assertiveness or over-publicity, the Army always has borne the brunt of the fighting—and the dying.

In every war, Army casualties are frequent and numerous. They might even be termed as commonplace. Even heroic dying, when it becomes commonplace, soon loses the public interest. Its news value depreciates. It does not capture the headlines. We expect our soldiers to die, if need be, in defense of our liberties. Casualty lists are apt to be taken too much for granted.

It is a maxim that whenever one member of a team is singled out for glamour or glory, all other members suffer by comparison. Let us look upon our armed forces as one inseparable team. Let not the Army man be the forgotten man. H. H. H.

Distrust Of People

Like "Anxious" in his letter of August 31, I am baffled by the current mental and political gymnastics.

Take your paper of September 1 for example. I find a head of The Constitutional Education League cited for contempt. I've been told this is a well-financed Fascist organization. I have read speeches in the Congressional Record that we are in as much danger from fascism as from communism. Has The Washington Post published anything of the nature of The Constitutional Educational League, or of the danger of fascism? Or does The Washington Post believe in fascism for our country?

We understand you advocate recognizing the Vatican as a world power. We are shown some of your front-page articles giving prominent space to fanatical utterances of a Catholic Cardinal, and told that you give the speeches of Protestant ministers more or less the go-by. Is The Washington Post a Catholic newspaper in favor of Catholicism for America?

As to the war in Korea and our support of reactionaries the world over, we are just as much at sea. We don't find that the newspapers attempt to enlighten us with full-bodied truth.

The United Nations is said to be behind us in Korea, but not in Formosa. Yet Acheson innocently tells the Chinese government that if it helps the North Koreans it will be going against the United Nations. In other words, they must not do what we are doing. Is that correct?

MacArthur talks out of one side of his mouth as the General of the United Nations, and from the other side as an exclusively American general advocating our making Formosa an American island. What does this mean? Are the General and Acheson just trying to outshine the Russians in double-talk?

Matthews advocates war with Russia, which seems sensible if only because it sounds straightforward and honest. Truman says he wants peace, and Formosa action by United Nations. Why, then, mere slaps on the wrists for these two high-ranking officials who it would seem should have been thrown out on their ear if Truman really meant what he said?

We are told almost 200 million Russians are deceived by Stalin. We are now being told that more than half of the population of our country was deceived by Franklin Delano Roosevelt four times. If we are so readily deceived how are we any better off than the Russians? And, further, why should we persist in this folly called democracy?

Why not drop the hypocrisy that seems to permeate everything until we spend most of our time hoodwinking ourselves? Why not return to simple honesty and recognize that we, too, are a nation of mutts being gradually pushed along the road to starvation through taxation, by Russian and our own Machiavellism?

B. H. GRAEME.

Alaskan Reservations

It seems it might be in order to ask this of Harold L. Ickes, who served as Secretary of the Interior from 1933 until 1946:

If he thinks Alaska native land rights may be "nailed down by the creation of reservations under the 1936 Act," why did he not create such reservations in southeastern Alaska where the natives of Alaska have taken the greatest interest in the question of land rights?

MARY LEE COUNCIL.
Secretary to Delegate Bartlett of Alaska.
Washington.

Time To Prepare

For years I had accepted the inevitability of war with Russia. Lately, however, I thought I discerned a thin, rickety chance of building a counterweight to Russian imperialism. Knowing that a Korean-type "civil war" in Germany (or certain other aggressions) would provoke a general conflict, Russia cannot move there until our preponderance of atom bombs has been offset. The Muscovite is unlikely to go off half-cocked as long as every day brings him nearer the power to pulverize our concentrated industrial centers (far more vulnerable than his)—or exploit this capability as a means of diplomatic intimidation.

It may be that we have two full years to prepare—a sickenly brief reprieve, of which Mr. Churchill warns Europe to take full advantage. Two years in which to produce antisubmarine devices, tanks and planes as fast as organized manpower can be trained to use them.

The encouraging developments I alluded to could support an indefinite peace by balance of power. They are: (1) New defensive weapons (being perfected, not mass-produced) which could enable a Western coalition to defend Europe against Russia's armies (2) The Schuman Plan and other manifestations that Europe is at last disposed to present a solid front to the aggressor, and (3) Korea, where America, by "grasping the iron hand of fate," is heartening allies and wavering neutrals.

It is only a whispering wraith of hope. But it might be translated into a firm foundation of peace if the people, having seized leadership in this crisis, can force Messrs. Truman and Johnson to address themselves to the business. If the precious moments are frittered away while we dream of "welfare," jockey for "Federal aid" and whimper about the "strain on the economy," we will certainly invite attack. And we might find ourselves with no "economy" to worry about.

EDWARD CAFFERY.

Biloxi, Miss.

August

In your issue of Sunday, September 3, 1950, you carried a story with the headlines "Unpoetic August Gave Us More Rain, Less Heat Than Normal . . ." and the first paragraph under the graph showing highlights of local weather during August, said . . . "Who ever heard of a poem about August?"

I'm guilty of having written one about 35 years ago when I was a student at a girls' school owned by the Lowreys and Berrys. I was in Profesor Perrin Lowrey's poetry class and the assignment was, "Write a poem on your favorite month." I was the only one to write on August and the only one in the class to get an "A" for her effort! This might never have come to light if I had not run across my husband's classic outburst against August in reply to your articles.

Here follow the two points of view held in the Gilchrist family which readers may find a bit amusing.

AUGUST

Keep thou my heart till summer comes again
O carefree month—the best in all the year.
In autumn's busy toil it has small part
And winter brings it care and pain and fear.

When ice and snow and freezing cold abound
Oh, August, hold my heart and let it rest
Safe in your promise of a summer sure to come
Cradle it against your sun-kissed breast.

The April rains will waken it I know
And other months will woo it, but in vain.
My calendar of life awaits but you,
Keep thou my heart till August comes again!

HIS (written after reading your article):

To AUGUST, the calendar's curse
I write this unorthodox verse.
If there never was one
Well it ought to be done
And there's no one who hates August worse!

It's a flaw in the calendar sheet,
It's so hot—pepper takes a back seat.
With paper cost high,
Even I wonder why
I don't call it "quits" and retreat.

It's not worth a poem's first letter,
Who cares if this August was "wetter?"
Filled with 31 torrid
Days that were horrid
The quicker forgotten the better!

I'll have to admit my present point of view is more or less in agreement with that of my spouse . . . but I well remember what August meant to me as a girl . . . that last, luscious summer month before school began . . . carefree, happy, vacation days that reached their climax in house parties, chaperoned beach parties and picnics seldom spoiled by rain!

Bargain Rate Defense

By Malvina Lindsay

Gadget's Triumph

(A meeting of the Association for Advancement)

Chairman—We have met to discuss how we can get Congress to give us more money for civil defense.

Mr. Stepp—This $30,000 the House gave us is peanuts! It wouldn't buy TV sets for dugouts. We should demand that the Senate restore the $290,000 requested in the budget.

Mr. Wadd—Where's the money coming from?

Col. Swagg—I'm fed up with this round-about stuff. We should just drop a bomb on—well, you know who, and be done with it.

Mrs. McAddle—What would be the difference in price?

Mr. Dare—As president of Atomic Age Citizens, Inc., I protest this immoral and unrealistic approach! We should have civil defense, of course. But our best defense is smart diplomacy. Why aren't we launching an answer to the Stockholm Peace Appeal, asking nations to cut all armaments, especially armies and submarines? What would the Kremlin say to that?

Mr. Hardpann—That's visionary. I propose we look into this expedition to settle in Antarctica that a group in Florida is organizing.

Mr. Vanderpuffer—What about the steak situation down there? Plumbing? Air conditioning?

Mr. Eagle—Has this Antarctica bunch been cleared by the FBI? I understand there's a lot of professors and scientists in it.

Mr. Hardpann—This is a hard-headed project, according to the literature. If you join it, not only will your hide be safe from A-bombs, but you'll get in on the grab—I mean the development of a new continent.

COL. SWAGG—Why should we run away from anything when we're getting the H-bomb?

Mrs. McAddle—What will that cost?

Chairman—Please stick to the subject.

Mrs. March—Congress will never do anything about our civil defense, so long as we don't have the vote. We should do something about that.

Mr. Stalactite—I object. It would be highly dangerous—at this time. The wrong sort of people would vote.

Mr. Brash—You'd rather be hit by a bomb?

Chairman—Order please.

Mr. Stepp—How are we on $30,000 to set up a defense organization with headquarters, stockpile supplies, provide warning signals, a radio net, train first aid workers?

Mr. Wadd—Is all that coming out of the taxpayers' pockets?

Judge Pudd—Now, now, let's keep our shirts on. There's too much propaganda about this bomb. People in subways or behind three feet of concrete or six feet of moist earth would be perfectly safe.

Mr. Stalactite—Yes, and don't forget the American spirit. After a bomb struck a million men—and women, of course—would spring to our city's defense.

Mr. Wadd—Why should we buy a lot of stuff? Why not use church bells and fire signals, oh yes, and motor horns for signals?

Mr. Stepp—And distribute Halloween noisemakers!

Mr. Dare—We're getting nowhere. Ordinary bombs, shells, bullets, also gas and germs can cause plenty of damage. Our fundamental defense is to proclaim our peaceful intentions by a disarmament proposal that'll take the wind out of Soviet propaganda.

Mr. Hardpann—That's unrealistic. We'd better be getting in on this Antarctic emigration.

MR. STEPP—Wait! I've a better idea! Engage passage on some flying saucers.

Col. Swagg—The quickest way to get peace is to hit the other fellow first.

Mrs. McAddle — How long would it take after that?

Chairman — The question is out of order. Mr. Nesselrode Groove, civic leader, has a suggestion.

Mr. Groove—We should make some kind of a study.

Mr. Wadd—Exactly! Now I know nothing about civilian defense, but I'm not going to ask the taxpayers to hand out $290,000 until I know it's needed.

Mr. Brash—We might drop a bomb as an experiment.

Col. Swagg—Yes, on the other fellow.

Mr. Stepp—Mr. Chairman! As Mr. Baruch says, we should at least have total planning—

Mr. Eagle—I demand to see this man's clearance by the FBI!

Mrs. March—Panic is the biggest thing we have to fear. We need funds for psychological plan—I mean preparation.

Mr. Hardpann—We don't want to get mixed up with any psychiatrists. We've got to be practical. Now this Antarctic expedition is something you can put your finger on.

Mr. Dare—This is juvenile! We should offer a disarmament proposal in the U.N.

Col. Swagg—I charge this man is an appeaser!

Chairman—Order! Our ace project woman, Mrs. Montclair St. Vitus has a suggestion.

Mrs. St. Vitus—Mr. Chairman, our members are probably unaware that the coming gadget in this country is the ornamental Geiger counter to detect Gamma rays. It's even going to be more of a rage than television. It would be terribly smart for our members to get these first. This would solve all our defense problems. I propose we appoint a committee to look into this.

Mr. Wadd—And to see if we can get a rate wholesale.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

As Between Moscow And Peiping

THE BOLSHEVIK newspaper Pravda used the fifth anniversary of the Japanese surrender to accuse General MacArthur of rearming the Japanese "as mercenaries to fight in Korea," and then called special and renewed attention to the Soviet-Chinese treaty signed last February. That treaty, we may remind ourselves, is a pact of mutual military aid "for the purpose of preventing a repetition of aggression and violation of peace on the part of Japan or any other state which should unite with Japan, directly or indirectly, in acts of aggression."

Lippmann

The article in Pravda accuses us of being "even more impudent aggressors than the Japanese Samurais" and of intending to make Japan "a base for military adventures against the Soviet Union and the national liberation movement of Asia." This Pravda article, which is obviously addressed primarily to the Chinese, throws a good deal of light, I would guess, on what has been going on between Moscow and Peiping. It is probable that this article gives us a condensed and popularized statement of the policy which the Kremlin has been using in order to bring Mao and Red China firmly within the Soviet orbit.

THE GIST of the policy has been to make Mao believe that Red China is threatened, as the treaty says, with "a repetition" of Japanese aggression backed by American power, and that Red China's only protector and defender is the Soviet Union. In the execution of this policy the Russian diplomacy has, as I see it, followed two main lines of action.

The one has been to keep Red China diplomatically isolated and yet to make it appear that Russia is struggling continually to get for Red China her rightful place in the United Nations. The Soviet game would be quite transparent were it not that we, for altogether different reasons of course, have also wished to exclude Red China from the United Nations. Even at that there have been moments when Mr. Malik had to think fast in order to make it sufficiently embarrassing and humiliating to keep the majority, which really favor seating Red China, from putting an end to the hoax.

But the maneuver to keep Red China diplomatically isolated could not in itself be carried on very long. Nor would non-intercourse with the western world be any assurance that the deep conflict of interest over Manchuria would not set the Chinese against the Russians, and that Mao would not, like Chiang Kai-shek before him, fall out with Moscow. The alliance has therefore to be made firm by a serious joint commitment, one which might involve the risk of war,—a commitment from which neither China nor Russia could draw away. I venture to think that the Korean enterprise was undertaken for that reason. That Korea should not be held by Japan, or by the United States based on Japan, is a common strategic interest of Russia and of China. Manchuria divides them. Formosa is of no great interest to Russia, and as compared with Korea, it is of only secondary interest to China. But Korea unites them—at least as long as there is a strong military power in Japan.

IT SEEMS to me that it is probably a misleading oversimplification to say that Korea was struck because it was a soft spot. To be sure Korea was a soft spot. It was a soft spot for all kinds of reasons including the fact that we had made no preparations and not even any plans to defend Korea. That may explain why the aggression was so naked, why it took the form of an orthodox military invasion. But even if Korea had looked like a harder nut to crack there is good reason to think that Korea would still have been chosen. Though the method might have been guerilla war rather than organized invasion, Korea is the one great objective in the Far East which binds China and Russia together against Japan and the United States.

The Pravda article, which I referred to above, does much to support this theory. One can imagine the Russians saying to the Chinese when they were in Moscow: "The Americans, who are still supporting Chiang, want Formosa and they want military bases in Japan. They have a puppet government in South Korea. The Japanese conquest of China began with Formosa and Korea, and you are threatened now with a repetition of the Japanese aggression, only this time the Americans are behind the Japanese and not against them. Let us make a treaty of alliance then to prevent a repetition, and let us act at once in Korea to deprive the Japanese and the Americans of any foothold on the mainland of Asia."

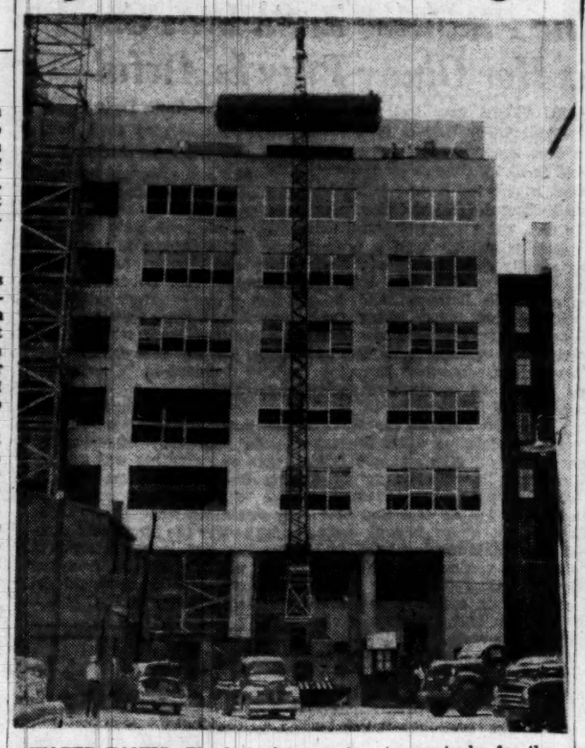
This theory assumes, of course, that Soviet Russia has had to work hard and has had to take a calculated risk in order to bring and to keep Red China within her orbit. The theory does not assume, as so many in this country do, that Red China is a Soviet satellite about which Moscow needs worry itself no further, a satellite in anything like the same degree as are, for example, Romania and Bulgaria. The theory assumes not only that there are differing national interests which even Communists are concerned about but, beyond this, it assumes that Red China is sufficiently an independent power that Moscow has to offer Peiping visible material reasons for an exclusive alliance.

If that is true, then we need not assume that the action of China, which could be catastrophic for the western world, will be directed exclusively from Moscow. For my own part, if Mao is indeed the puppet that so many of us in this country say he is, then we are in a jam, with little freedom of choice left to us.

But if the theory is true, and if Mao is in any substantial degree an independent or at least an autonomous power, and if he is still not wholly committed, then he can—if the United Nations do not fail—still be deterred from enlarging the war and he can still be induced by diplomacy to seek peaceable solutions.

Big Gear for New Building



WATER TANKS—The last of two water storage tanks for the fire protection system of the new Washington Post building is hoisted to the roof. It is part of the mechanical gear to be installed in the fan room which is the heart of the air conditioning and ventilating system. The tank weighs 21,000 pounds, is 21 feet long, 7 feet in diameter, and has a capacity of 7500 gallons. This is the last of the equipment to go in the fan room, having been preceded by dehumidifiers, heating coils, fans and other machinery

Tobey's Battle

By Marquis Childs

New Hampshire Primary

ALTHOUGH IT has received little national attention, one of the most important primary campaigns in the country is coming to a close in New Hampshire. It is important above all because of the powerful moneyed interests from outside the State seeking to decide the outcome.

Childs

Ranged against homespun Senator Charles Tobey are the enemies he has made by his courage and forthrightness in standing up against some of the cruder attempts at plunder in Washington. Among these enemies are:

John L. Lewis, boss of the United Mine Workers, who is reported to have put a large sum into the campaign against Tobey.

The Nationalist China lobby, directed by Alfred Kohlberg, wealthy Chinese importer of New York City.

Edwin W. Pauley, fabulously rich oilman and friend of President Truman, whose appointment as Undersecretary of the Navy Tobey helped to block.

Various assorted interests that have used the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to bail out bankrupt private corporations that in turn rewarded RFC officials with lucrative jobs.

A really thorough Senate investigation, with the power of subpena and the services of a first-rate investigator, could perhaps find out where the money is coming from. But there can be no doubt that it is pouring in. Reports from New Hampshire tell of free dinners offered by Tobey's opposition in every township.

TOBEY'S OPPONENT is J. Wesley Powell, a World War II veteran who was administrative assistant to Styles Bridges, New Hampshire's senior Senator. Actually, in spite of all his disclaimers, Bridges is the real opponent. He would control Powell's vote in the Senate, and New Hampshire would become his personal satrapy—a factor that is said to weigh in Tobey's favor.

Bridges' career is a fascinating study in the politics of power. He was at one time an associate of the late John C. Winant, who was an able and progressive Governor of New Hampshire. Bridges was appointed as a liberal member of the State Public Service Commission.

In recent years he has been aligned more and more closely with interests that wield great power in Washington. Through a Senate inquiry came the revelation that Bridges was being paid at the rate of $35,000 a year, in addition to his Senate salary, for serving as one of the three trustees of the United Mine Workers' welfare fund.

Lewis exerts absolute control over this fund of millions upon millions of dollars, just as he does over the treasury of the UMW. As in the past, he dictates how campaign contributions are to be made. After the Senate inquiry, Bridges resigned as a director of the welfare fund.

When Bridges was running for reelection in 1948 at least $2000 was contributed to his campaign by Kohlberg. A leading Bridges' ally in the current campaign is William Loeb who controls New Hampshire's leading newspaper, The Manchester Morning Union. Loeb is also head of the American China Policy Association which was formed by Kohlberg.

LOEB HAS sought in every way to discredit Tobey. The New Hampshire Senator ran a newspaper ad containing statements by various Republican Senators in friendly letters. The newspaper wired to each one of the Senators asking whether they had intended to "indorse" Tobey.

They wired back varying replies indicating they had not intended their statements as specific indorsements. Such a wire from Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts was headlined, "Saltonstall Repudiates Tobey."

Bridges is, of course, a power in the Senate. He is ranking Republican member of the Appropriations Committee, and Republican control of Congress would put him in the driver's seat. Some weeks ago the White House summoned him for a conference on the Korean war and foreign policy, with the intimation he would become the alternate to Senator Arthur Vandenberg, long ill, in the bipartisan approach.

New Hampshire, with its nickname of the Granite State, has been known for its sturdy independence. In view of this it is surprising to learn that Tobey's backers are deeply concerned. But in view of the general trend that appears to work against the "ins" and in behalf of the "outs," coupled with the preoccupation of many voters with other affairs, there may be good reason for their concern over the possible loss of a valuable public servant.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Conversation Near A Tank

WITH U. S. FORCES IN KOREA.—The tank stood on a high bluff, overlooking a flat green valley with eroded, scrub-covered hills beyond. Near the tank in a foxhole—for there was the usual ineffectual sniper fire—sat the lieutenant colonel. A spare man in hard condition, he still looked drawn and weary, which was understandable, since he had just lost most of his battalion.

The battalion had been utterly overrun in the assault on the Second Division position which began the current crisis in the Korean fighting. By the most lavish use of manpower to breach the tenuous American line, the enemy had torn a 7-mile hole in our front. But because of extreme shortages of transport, artillery and even ammunition, the North Koreans had been unable to exploit this great success, being halted where we were by the regimental engineers, cooks and bakers, with 200 divisional clerks in reserve.

These ill-assorted infantrymen held our bluff and the neighboring high ground.

Between bouts of serving as assistant target spotter for the tank, the weary lieutenant colonel almost volubly tried to explain what had happened to his outfit, which had been so terribly chopped to pieces in its first experience of hard combat. Occasionally the deafening roar and flash of the tank's big gun interrupted him, but always he continued again, in the same flat, unemotional voice.

What had happened was really very simple. Shortly after its arrival in Korea, the Second Division had been hurried into the line, on the Naktong River, to permit the exhausted thrice-decimated Twenty-fourth Division to go at last into reserve. The line to be held was appallingly long.

"We had to space the foxholes every 60 yards along the river," the lieutenant colonel explained. "But even then we were all separated on four little knolls, with no one holding the draws in between"—then in a louder voice to the tank crew, "Why don't you try that clump of trees on the big hill?"

THE TANK GUN roared three times. A smoke cloud covered the little tree clump, then feathered slowly away. A file of engineers moved out, very visible against the green ridge, to try to attack the hill. To cover the assault, shells sang overhead and thudded into the enemy positions from artillery in the rear. Still scanning the hill through his field glasses, the lieutenant colonel continued.

At first it had been very quiet for his battalion in the line, for the North Koreans, these days, need a good deal of time to build up even the manpower for a serious attack. Two nights before there had been a curious sort of torchlight parade, with much singing and shouting, on the enemy bank of the river. ("I guess they were getting sakied up," remarked the lieutenant colonel.) Artillery immediately fired on the paraders but this did not halt the fording of the shallow Naktong, the enemy infantry half walking, half swimming, their equipment in boats, with a screen of women and children refugees driven forward in the lead. At least 4000 North Koreans were involved in the attack on the lieutenant colonel's single battalion.

"We killed an awful lot of them," he said. "But they just flowed over and around our positions. We held the command post until 11 yesterday morning, when regiment ordered us to retire. Able Company was cut off, but was still directing artillery fire at 3 yesterday afternoon, when their radio transmission stopped. Almost all the men in the three rifle companies were cut off the same way."

Down in the rice paddies, the few score engineers had been halted by machinegun fire. As they turned back, a man in the rear of the file fell forward heavily. A thin, boyish sergeant, his face caked with dust, ran up to report that 17 men of Able Company had just filtered back through the enemy lines.

"That's good, that's fine, Davis," the lieutenant colonel said, showing emotion at last. "This is Sergt. Wilbur Davis of Baker Company. He ought to tell you his story." The tank firing resumed as Davis began, speaking very simply. Before they really knew what was happening, the platoon was surrounded by shouting enemy troops. They formed on the crest of the rise with two .40-caliber antiaircraft machineguns and a halftrack mounting four .50-calibers protecting the flanks with grazing fire.

THE NORTH KOREANS shortly made first one, then another yelling charge up the rise in heavy force. Both charges were turned back only two or three yards from the foxholes. At the end of the second charge, the machinegun ammunition was gone. In the lull Sergt. William H. Van Over volunteered to drive the halftrack to the rear, and returned with two new halftracks with loaded guns. Two further charges followed before dawn came, to reveal the slopes round about hideously littered with North Korean dead, and the little group on the rise cut off from all contact with the rest of the battalion. They decided to retreat. As they made their way through the unfriendly hills, Davis and a companion became separated from the others, and they alone got back.

"It's been like that with most of them," the lieutenant colonel said, explaining that he hoped at least half his battalion would eventually reach our lines. One gathered, however, from what was spoken, that it had not been "like that" with all of them. Our great superiority in fire power might have overcome the immense Korean advantage in numbers, if a small percentage of the green, softly trained troops had not been paralyzed by the confusion of the fighting and the multitude of the enemy, and thus prevented the battalion from acting as a thoroughly well-knit team.

The lieutenant told how another little party led by Medical Sgt. William Crawford had destroyed a machinegun nest with grenades and killed an enemy tank with their 3.5 bazooka on their trek to freedom. The tank nearby suddenly began to back off down our bluff, rumbling angrily. There was a lull in the fighting. The lieutenant colonel took one last look through his glasses at the enemy shells across the way. "I don't see anything over there," he said. "You just never see them until they're on you. I guess I'll go back."

Under trees, in the command post at the rear, Sgt. Crawford's little band were sleeping on the ground. Pfc. William Durand and Pfc. Jack Glick, 19 and 18 respectively, roused themselves almost enthusiastically to tell how they had stalked the North Korean tank. "We crept way up," Durand said. "But the best thing was we got her with the first round. We only had two. You should have seen those gooks run. It was grand."

Red Internment Substitute For McCarran Bill Introduced

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A "rough on Reds" substitute for the McCarran Communist control bill was introduced in the Senate yesterday by a group of Administration Senators but President Truman remained strictly non-committal on the compromise move.

The substitute, designed to head-off sweeping registration and other anti-Red features of the McCarran bill, provides for internment of Communists and other subversives in event of war or national emergency.

Administration sponsors, led by Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.), put it up to President Truman at an unusual White House conference.

Members of the group were said to have advised Mr. Truman that Congress is out to make an anti-Red record in keeping with "political temperament" of the country and the McCarran bill will scoot to passage unless a tough substitute is devised.

Some Sponsors Doubtful

Some sponsors of the "Red detention" substitute voiced doubt that the new measure or anything the Administration can devise at this point can avert passage of the Mundt-Ferguson registration plan and many other sweeping provisions of the McCarran bill.

During the conference Mr. Truman is said to have compared the McCarran bill with the alien and sedition laws and other legislation passed during a period of "hysteria," and urged Senators to do all they could to modify it. He said he was opposed to undermining the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

He declined to commit himself on the Red internment substitute, however, saying he preferred to wait for the "finished product" passed by Congress.

The Senate, meanwhile, nearing a vote probably late this week on the ominbus antisubversive legislation, heard two speeches in favor of the catch-all measure:

1. Senator Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) told the Senate registration of Communists and "Front" organization leaders is needed to drive Reds from "their cyclone cellar of concealment." Mundt called an earlier Administration substitute, tightening espionage laws and providing for the security of air bases and defense installations "molly-coddle stuff." He said the new substitute, providing "concentration camps" for Reds, is no solution either.

2. Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) said the McCarran bill "strikes at the very core of Communism" by (1) bringing Communist activities "into the open," (2) stopping subversive aliens before they reach our shores and (3) 'quarantining" subversive aliens already in this country. He said he believed the bill would "cripple the Kremlin army in America."

Before the Senate recessed overnight Senator McCarran moved to bring the registration provisions of his bill completely in line with the somewhat different Mundt-Ferguson measure, but Kilgore blocked immediate acceptance of the changes.

Friday Vote Plan Blocked

McCarran later asked unanimous consent to start voting on his bill and all amendments at 1 p. m. Friday but Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) blocked agreement pending a meeting of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee today.

These Senators joined with Kilgore meanwhile in cosponsoring the Red internment substitute for the McCarran bill: Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), Herbert Lehman (D., N. Y.), Frank Graham (D., N. C.), Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) and Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.).

Provisions of New Bill

The new bill authorizes the Attorney General to round up subversives if anyone of the following occurs: (1) invasion or imminent invasion of United States territory, (2) declaration of war by the United States, (3) insurrection in United States in aid of a foreign power or (4) declaration of an "internal security emergency" by Congress and the President.

"Safeguards" written into the bill provide persons interned must be given a preliminary hearing within 48 hours or as soon as possible thereafter and the Attorney may revoke detention if "reasonable grounds" are lacking.

In addition, a nine-member Board of Detention Review would be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate to hear appeals and modify or revoke internment orders.

Detained persons could also petition the United States Court of Appeals for review within 60 days. They would have the right to be represented by counsel in appeals to the board or the court.

"Reasonable ground" for detention would include:

Espionage or sabotage activity or membership in the Communist Party after January 1, 1949.

Knowledge of or receiving or giving instruction in espionage, counter-espionage or sabotage service of a foreign government or political party or for any organization seeking to overthrow the United States Government.

Other acts of "the same degree of gravity."

Rector Condemns H-Bomb Use Even In Self-Defense

DELAWARE, Ohio, Sept. 6 (AP). A Boston clergyman told Ohio Methodist ministers tonight the United States would not be justified in using the hydrogen bomb in self defense—even if another nation used it first.

Dr. Theodore Parker Ferris, rector of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church in Boston, said it is the church's responsibility to renounce the hydrogen bomb as an 'inhuman . . . unchristian instrument."

He made the statements in a speech prepared for delivery before the Ohio area Methodist pastors' school at Ohio Wesleyan University. Some 515 Methodist ministers are attending the program.

"There are some things that a man does not do regardless of the consequences," he said. "It is natural for a man to defend himself, but if he has to blow up the whole country to do it, he is likely to give up his natural rights in the interest of the total welfare. Self defense at the cost of such destruction as the hydrogen bomb would bring about is wrong."

Dutch Vote Wage Hikes, Block Price Controls

THE HAGUE, the Netherlands, Sept. 6 (AP).—The government ordered a general wage increase today but rejected union demands for renewed price controls.

The wage boost, demanded by the unions, was the second in Holland since this country's money was devalued.

The order calls for a five percent increase for annual incomes up to 3600 guilders ($980), and 180 guilders ($47.60) for higher incomes.

GI Gets 30 Years in Jail For Assault in Britain

WARRINGTON, England, Sept. 6, (AP).—An American soldier was sentenced to 30 years today on a charge that he stripped a young English chorus girl and criminally assaulted her aboard a speeding train.

The defendant, Corp. Robert R. Jones, Wartburg, Tenn., also was sentenced by an Army courtmartial to a dishonorable discharge. The findings are subject to review in Washington, D. C.

Lima Embassy Issues Call to Servicemen

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The United States Embassy issued an "urgent" appeal to American Navy, Air Force and infantry reservists in Peru, asking them to get in touch with the Embassy at once.

No reason was given for the call, but it was presumably issued in connection with America's partial mobilization for the Korean war.

Truman Vetoes Bill For Spanish War Vets

President Truman yesterday vetoed a bill to provide free outpatient medical treatment for all surviving veterans of the Spanish-American War.

The President said he was forced to veto the bill because it would put too great a strain on facilities for treating patients whose disabilities stem directly from military or naval service.

A Perfect Grandma In a Grand Comedy

By Richard L. Coe

"LOUISA," at Keith's, is a grand little comedy. I can't imagine anyone not enjoying it.

It gives you a nice suburban household comically upset because two oldsters are courting grandma. Spring Byington, Edmund Gwenn and Charles Coburn are the old folk, but the reactions of Ruth Hussey and Ronald Reagan and their family are just about as important.

You meet the bubbly Spring as an unhappy widow gone to live with her architect son after 10 years of loneliness in hotels. Grandma meddles without meaning to; her little words of advice around the house don't sit well with Mother Hussey, her teen-age daughter and her eightish son. Even the maid-of-all-work is exasperated and the hopes of Father Reagan for a vice presidency don't make a dent in the gloom.

The right nudge and an understanding heart push grandma on the right track, though, and pretty soon she's going to the movies with the impeccable neighborhood grocer. Her granddaughter explodes when grandma holds hands in the loge love seats, and, when she invites her elderly beau home for their mutual inspection, things are in a fine tizzy. On top of this, Reagan's boss arrives and—falls head over heels in love with winsome grandma.

From here on it's a question of the best man winning. It looks as though Coburn's ahead in a square dance and it seems as it maybe Gwenn's a bigamist.

Stanley Roberts, who wrote the screen plan from his own story, has been extremely clever about it. Though gradma is surely a nuisance in her son's house, he shows her from the first as a lonely woman of charm, which makes her courtship considerably more logical than would otherwise be the case. The reactions of the old folks' courtship on the two younger generations are immensely shrewd and you'll believe everything that happens.

Too, Spring Byington is perfect as "Louisa," a drama of a part for an immensely lovable personality. Gwenn and Coburn couldn't be improved on and you'll like them all. And if you saw "Our Very Own," the film's predecessor on 15th st., maybe you'll agree with me that, in its unpretentious way, "Louisa" recreates our pleasant suburbia far more effectively than the Goldwyn film did.

In fact, "Louisa" strikes me as the nicest little comedy to come along since "Sitting Pretty."

"LOUISA." Universal-International release produced by Robert Arthur. Story and screen play by Stanley Roberts Music by Frank Skinner. Photographed by Maury Gertsman. Directed by Alexander Hall. At Keith's.

KEITH'S also has an unusual short on railroads . . . This Universal-International special is called "Thundering Rails," and its rather lush wordage will hit straight to the hearts of the many who find railroads fascinating . . . The pictures are fine and you'll see some of our Union Station and the other end of the Pennsy-B. & O. line in the Nawth . . . And the MPA short explains some facets of screen costuming you've probably never given a thought to.

SENATOR GLEN TAYLOR (D., Idaho) was up at St. John Terrell's Music Circus in Lambertville, N. J., the other night and he's fallen big for the music-tent idea . . . The banjo-playing Senator wants to start one in Idaho . . . Speaking of which reminds me: there's a big rush on among theatrical people and others to get the rights to present musical comedies next summer at the Watergate; the "Kiss Me, Kate" success has made people realize there's a big audience for musicals in this thickly populated area . . . Which outfit will finally get the rights from the Interior Department is still iffy, but the gold rush is on for next summer.

BIBI OSTERWALD, whose songs and comedy made her a local favorite in the days when she was a Government gal, is now having the biggest week of her life—playing Carol Channing's Lorelei Lee in New York's "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." . . . Carol is out for the first time in nearly a year's run: laryngitis . . . Tell you more about Carol, the comedienne of the year, on Sunday.

THE VIERS MILL Theater will be starting a series of weekly talent hunts tomorrow night . . . The new Sidney Lust house between Wheaton and Rockville states that there'll be cash prizes each week with an ultimate grand finale with a Ted Mack talent scout on deck. . . . There's no age limit . . . Send your name, address, phone number and description of your talent to Dave Ginsburg, Sidney Lust Theaters, 711 14th st. nw.

THIS AFTERNOON at 2 and again tomorrow at the same time, there'll be demonstration performances on the Pollock miniature stages in the Chevy Chase Library. . . . This is the project sponsored by the Children's Museum of Washington. . . . The youngsters who'll show you how they work their miniature stages include Lowell Swortzell, Tommy Kilpatrick, David Freyman and Bruce Frederickson.

TONIGHT'S George Washington University Night at "Faith of Our Fathers." . . . President Cloyd Heck Marvin will receive a scroll for the work contributed by 36 members of the cast and technical staff of the Sesqui drama who are either faculty members, students or alumni.

THE CONNIE B. GAY hillbilly set has its final Western Moonlight Cruise of the season tonight at 8:30, aboard the Wilson Line's S. S. Mount Vernon. . . . Hank Williams and his Grand Old Opry cast will be aboard.

WINNING CHANCE: Spring Byington and Charles Coburn go under the bar at a square dance, which puts Coburn one up on his rival, Edmund Gwenn, in "Louisa," the delightful comedy which arrived yesterday at Keith's

Glass Marble Output Is Halted by Strike

OTTAWA, Ill., Sept. 6 (AP).—Production of glass marbles for the Nation's small boy sharpshooters was halted today at the Peltier Glass Company by a strike of AFL employes.

Harry Berkley of Ottawa, spokesman for 60 members of the Flint Glass Workers of America affected, said a 10 cent hourly wage boost and other concessions are sought.

The company, founded 60 years ago, is one of the Nation's biggest producers of "glassies," turning out several millions annually.

Dworshak to Inspect Guards From Idaho

Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho) will visit Fort Belvoir Va., this morning to inspect the Engineer Combat Battalion of the Idaho National Guard.

Dworshak will be accompanied by Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, commanding general of the District National Guard. Their host will be Maj. Gen. Douglas L. Weart, commanding general of the Engineer Center at Fort Belvoir

Supported by a Yellow Place Mat

The Plaintive ZaSu Is as Good As Her Olney Play Is Awful

ZASU PITTS may look like a frail, wispy lady to you, but she does hearty, heavy service to "Post Road," a comedy by Wilbur Daniel Steele and Norma Mitchell now holding the fort at Olney.

In fact, ZaSu is as wonderful as her play is awful, which is probably exactly right, for at least the play does give the little lady a chance to be bothered and bewildered. She's been taking the play out several summers now (her previous Olney appearance was in "The Late Christopher Bean," a fine play), and everywhere she's been people have fallen in love with the wan lady of the wispy hands and plaintive voice. On her Olney opening night, people fell in love with her all over again.

The play, poor thing, tells about the spinster keeper of a Connecticut rooming house under whose roof hides a kidnaping band and their infant victim. To protect the baby's life, the spinster even sacrifices her fair name, claims him for her own and thwarts the villains in fine style.

The authors have dreamed up supporting characters who are supposed to be boors, a creation in which they have been too successful. Not even the hammery overplaying of John C. Becher and Wanda Lyon can make you bear the spinster's sister and brother-in-law.

However, ZaSu and a bright yellow place mat walk away with the first act. There's something deliciously funny about watching ZaSu and that danged mat. She's busily ripping off threads, so as to make a fringe on all four sides, and it is at once a mark of the quality that so minor a trick can make you chuckle minutes on end.

Hazel Markel Appears

ZaSu's other activities include caring for what seems to be a baby, ducking bullets and lecturing an unctuous parson. It does seem about time for Anita Loos to get to work on that play she's been planning to write for ZaSu.

Rudolph Justice Watson has one of the juciest supporting parts and Mary Haynsworth strikes just the rightly unpleasant note as the nurse. Sallie Brophy is the little mother and Bruce Adams the conniving medico. Robert Wark, a stalwart of more literary skill than you would recognize from his part, is amusing as the forthright policeman; you saw him earlier with Paulette Goddard in "Caesar and Cleopatra."

Completing the company in a minor but extremely vital role is WTOP's busy lady of executive prowess and chatting accomplishment, Hazel Markel. Mrs. Markel, whose chapeaux and ensembles have dominated Washington parties much the way the Monument dominates the city, is appearing in a regalia which, ordinarily, from the most hospitable homes would get her instantly flung. Woman, 70, Is Trapped In Auto Wreck 3 Days

OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 6 (AP).—A 70-year-old woman, trapped since Sunday in a wrecked automobile, was found today in the Oakland hills. Her daughter was dead on the embankment.

Doctors said the mother, Mrs. Margaret Dolan, was expected to survive. She is the widow of James L. Dolan, Kansas City railroad executive. The daughter was Miss May Downing, 42, child of a former marriage.

Big 3 to Seek Advice of Asians on Issues recognized the Bao Dai regime in Indo-China last winter.

But it also showed awareness of all Asia's interest in the Korea and Formosa problems. Certainly hostile propaganda could make hay out of any attempt by the Big Three to dispose of Asian problems behind closed doors and behind Asia's back.

The countries to be consulted will include, presumably, Thailand and the Philippines, which have agreed to send troops to Korea, as well as India, Burma, Ceylon, Pakistan and Nationalist China. Later, when the Security Council and the Assembly discuss Formosa, Communist China probably will have a chance to be heard.

Again there are precedents for such an invitation, notably the Security Council's decision to hear Bulgaria and Yugoslavia on the Greek border issue, and the similar invitation to Albania at time Britain protested the mining of a destroyer in the Corfu Channel.

Policy on Formosa

On the subject of Formosa, the Secretary again insisted yesterday that the United States was trying to prevent both an attack on the island and an attack by Nationalists against the mainland. He was asked why the United States was still sending aviation gasoline to Chiang Kai-shek while trying to "neutralize" Formosa.

His answer was that the forces on the island had to be able to defend themselves along with the efforts of the American Seventh Fleet to prevent attack. But, he added, the United States would not encourage, mount or permit any Nationalist operations against the mainland.

The Secretary had much to say about the vast problems facing the Foreign Ministers, especially those involving the defense of western Europe. He said the range of their decisions probably would be greater than at any meeting in the past, and in the next four or five weeks the State Department would be working on problems as great as it normally faced in 50 years of peacetime.

Germans in Defense

He was more emphatic than before in saying some way had to be found to bring Germans into the defense of western Europe. The purpose of strengthening western Europe's armed forces, he recalled, was to portect the whole area againlst aggression; and western Germany was a part of that area.

But the Secretary was careful not to talk about German rearmament as a purely German effort, and he declined to say how German manpower could be brought into a combined plan for the defense of the West. One of the hardest jobs facing the Foreign Ministers next week is to decide how to step up the defense of the North Atlantic area, and how to fit Germany into it.

Acheson said the task facing the West was to translate paper plans of organization into actual men, equipment and command structure. Although he defended the record of the North Atlantic deputies, who have been wrestling with this problem for weeks without apparent result, he said all the North Atlantic treaty nations would have to do vastly more in the coming year to protect themselves.

D. C. Man, Companion Wanted in Cumberland

PLEASANTVILLE, N. J., Sept. 6 (AP).—Two youths arrested here in connection with a cross-country series of thefts are wanted in Cumberland, Md., for questioning about war bonds stolen from an automobile September 1.

Police Chief Walter Atkinson said Quentin Murphy, booked as living in the 1500 block of I st. nw., Washington, and Lloyd Hopkins of Los Angeles, already have been charged with carrying concealed weapons, transporting a stolen car from California and stealing property from several parked cars across the Nation.

100-Ft. Waves In New Storm In Atlantic

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 6, (U.P.)—A weakening hurricane collided with a cold front and reeled back across its destructive course in West Florida today while a giant new storm kicked up 100-foot waves in the Atlantic.

The receding storm left the fishing town of Cedar Key devastated and beach houses and cabanas toppling into the sea at the resort shores near St. Petersburg. Two persons were killed by falling power wires but 10 crewmen feared lost on a disabled tugboat showed up safe with their vessel.

Late today the storm whistled across the heart of Florida's 200-million-dollar citrus belt but was expected to do more good than harm there. Its diminishing gales brought torrents of badly needed rain which amounted to 9.78 inches around Jacksonville.

The new storm in the Atlantic was reported as a rip-snorter. Placed at 750 miles east of Melbourne, Fla., the hurricane blew up to 150 miles an hour and sent hurricane-force winds or better outward for 100 miles in all directions.

The gulf storm, after threshing about the Cedar Key area more than 12 hours, turned on its tail and whipped the west coast southward for the second time in 24 hours but it had little punch left.

Damage in the Tampa-St. Petersburg area was "conservatively" estimated at one million dollars from the storm's previous passage.

Man Charged With Operation

violently ill and went to Arlington Hospital the next day. She was placed on the critical list. Hospital authorities notified police.

She told police she first contacted Quantz last January, but learned she was not pregnant. When she learned recently she was pregnant, she contacted him again last week, she told police.

The operation was to have cost $100, she told police, but she said she had paid Quantz only $30.

The woman has been released from Arlington Hospital and was at police headquarters yesterday.

Furr and Chapman surprised Quantz in his room at 7 a. m. yesterday. They said he had "several hundreds of dollars" on him. Papers in his room, they said, showed he served time for a similar offense in Pennsylvania.

Police said Quantz first indicated he would talk, then declined to answer any questions when he was taken to police headquarters.

At the rooming house boarders described Quantz as "a man who kept pretty much to himself." In his room police recovered what they said was "surgical equipment."

The woman, who is petite and blue-eyed with honey-colored hair, told police she first heard about Quantz from a third friend, a gasoline station attendant. She was not employed at the time of the operation, police said.

At the arraignment, the case was continued until September 13.

Bishops in China Quit

LONDON, Sept. 6 (AP).—All European Anglican bishops in China have resigned in protest against Communist restrictions, the church's missionary society said today. The only European bishop remaining in the Chinese province of the church is at the British crown colony of Hongkong, the society's statement said.

Father Killed By Rifle Shot; Son, 18, Booked

MONTEREY, Va., Sept. 6 (AP).—A Highland County youth, who police said looked through the window of his home and saw his father choking his mother, was free today under $10,000 bond on a charge of murder.

Sheriff Glenn Hammer said the boy, Nelson Wright, 18, shot his father, Kenneth Wright, 47, a prison guard, at the Wright home near Patna last night.

Hammer gave this account of the shooting:

Nelson returning from a store, saw his mother and father struggling in the living room of the Wright home. The father started choking her.

Nelson, carrying a rifle, fired through the window, and the father fell, struck behind the ear.

Sheriff Hammer said members of the family told him the shooting climaxed a day of domestic difficulties at the Wright residence. Hammer said he was told that the elder Wright, a guard at the state lime grinding plant, Staunton, had been drinking and had become abusive.

Guards to Parade In Artillery Unit's Honor at Armory

The District National Guard will honor the headquarters battery of its 260th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Group, which goes on active duty Monday, with a parade at the Armory at 8:30 p. m. today.

Marching with the headquarters battery will be the 260th AAA gun battalion, and the 380th and 340th AAA automatic weapons battalions. Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, commander of the District Guard, will review the troops.

The 260th is commanded by Col. Leroy S. Mann, 5447 30th pl. nw. Leaving with the headquarters battery Monday will be the 171st Military Police Battalion.

FCC Denies Burying Calif. Crime Move

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Western Union and the wires it leases to carry horserace information made the news twice yesterday.

In Washington, the Federal Communications Commission said it hadn't "buried" a 1948 California request for an investigation of use of the wires by Continental Press Service.

Warren Olney of the former California Crime Commission last month said the FCC had buried the request. FCC wrote Chairman Kefauver (D., Tenn.) of the Senate Crime Committee that it wasn't true. FCC had told California, the commission said yesterday, that Western Union's tariff regulations "should afford State law enforcement authorities an effective means" at getting at the bookie problem.

California apparently took the advice for it subsequently went to court to successfully cut off the wire service.

In Ann Arbor, Mich., Western Union yesterday was ordered to open its books for inspection by county officials, the United Press reported. The county claims the telegraph company has worked "hand-in-hand" with bookies by accepting and transmitting bets.

It was disclosed some months ago that Western Union employes in several States were taking bets, on a commission basis, for East St. Louis, Ill., bookie firms. The Ann Arbor officials claim that the bookies had a contractual agreement with the company.

The court order, signed by Circuit Judge James R. Breaky, would permit examination of Western Union books from January 1, 1949, to June 24, 1950. Western Union attorneys said they will appeal the decision to the Michigan Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, in Washington the Senate Crime Committee is only waiting for the end of the present session of Congress before going to Kansas City for public hearings. A stop at St. Louis en route is a possibility, Kefauver said. Closed hearings in Chicago are expected to follow the Missouri sessions.

Wage Boost Given To 16,000 Workers By Kaiser-Frazer

DETROIT, Sept. 6 (AP).—Kaiser-Frazer Corp. fell into line with the auto industry's increased wage level tonight, giving its 16,000 production workers an 8-cent hourly boost.

An agreement with the CIO United Auto Workers also provided an additional 5 cents an hour for skilled workers, put into immediate effect a 4-cent hourly improvement boost that was to have been paid starting next June 1 and upped vacation pay and night premium pay.

It included an escalator cost-of-living clause using the formula worked out by the union and General Motors Corp. and included in the contract signed earlier this week by the UAW and the Ford Motor Co. Kaiser-Frazier and the union had signed a pension agreement less than a month ago, and the new agreement was written into that contract.

Citizens' Hoarding Is 'Honest Trait,' Sen. Malone Says

Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.) said yesterday wartime hoarding is an "honest American trait" and that it is communistic for President Truman to criticize it.

He also asserted in a prepared statement that the Administration has a lot of nerve objecting to hoarding by private citizens when the Government itself has hoarded millions of dollars worth of food in an effort to support farm prices.

"The tirade against provident American housewives for laying in supplies against a possible emergency comes with ill grace from an Administration which is the prize hoarder of all time," he said.

Such criticism, he said, "echoes the thoughts of communists who want to set up a welfare state."

Happy Is The Day When Backache Goes Away . . . .

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

After Crash

General Pulls Three From Burning Car

Brig. Gen. Miles Reber, 48, and an unidentified civilian pulled a 71-year-old woman and her two grandchildren from a burning automobile on the south end of the Highway Bridge yesterday.

Gen. Reber

The grandmother, Mrs. Dena Blume, and the children, Mary L. Ponton, 3, and Barbara, 9 months, all of 1347 Ridge pl. se., were riding in the rear seat of a car driven by Mrs. Blume's daughter, Mrs. Adeline E. Gray, 43, of 1735 13th st. se., according to park police.

Police said the gasoline tank of Mrs. Gray's car burst into flames when it was struck in the rear by a large truck loaded with 500 cinder blocks. The truck literally climbed into the rear luggage compartment of the car when the crash ocurred at about 11:45 a. m.

Mrs. Gray, police said, was southbound and watching for markers showing the way to the Navy Department in Arlington when she apparently made a wrong turn into a cutoff leading to the road to Mount Vernon, then quickly swung back onto the bridge approach.

Mrs. Gray admitted she had been watching for the markers but denied she swung into the cutoff. Her car was struck by the truck, also southbound, carrying the car for about 50 feet. The truck driver was identified by police as Clarence A. Carrol, 27, of 414 I st. ne.

Mrs. Gray, unhurt, got out of the car and tried to open a rear door to free Mrs. Blume and the children but the doors were jammed.

However, General Reber, chief of the Army's legislative liaison section, was driving by. He and the unidentified civilian managed finally to wrench open a door and pull Mrs. Blume and the children to safety. General Reber lives at 2737 Devonshire pl. nw.

The Arlington rescue squad took Mrs. Blume and the children to Arlington Hospital. The children were released after a checkover, but Mrs. Blume was admitted with a back injury. Her condition is good.

Park police said no charges were made but a hearing on the accident will be held in Alexandria Wednesday before the United State Commissioner.

Parents of the children in the car are Mr. and Mrs. Withers Ponton with whom Mrs. Blume lives at the Ridge pl. address.

County Democrats Meet

The Arlington County Democratic Club will hold its regular monthly meeting at 8:15 p. m. today in the Lyon Park Community House, N. Fillmore st. and Pershing dr., Arlington.

Va. High Court Rules Out Part Of Picket Law

STAUNTON, Va., Sept 6 (AP).—A section of the State's antipicketing law that bars persons from picketing a business of which they are not employes was ruled invalid today by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals.

The case was an appeal from the Norfolk Corporation Court's conviction and fining $25 apiece of Robert Edwards and Willie Savage, jr., after they picketed a Norfolk theater in an effort to force it to hire a Negro manager.

In its opinion, written by Justice A. C. Buchanan, the court dismissed the convictions and noted that the box office receipts dropped appreciably after the picketing began, and it conceded that the men were guilty of one section of the State's antipicketing law.

But it said the conviction "cannot be sustained," since conviction of any persons picketing a theater or meeting in a peacefpl manner—such as for moral or patriotic reasons.

Buchanan, however, appeared to make a suggestion to the General Assembly that some repair work could fix up the third section of the law when he wrote the opinion.

"We could, of course, add to or rearrange the words of the statute and make its third section apply only when there is a strike, but our function is to interpret the act as written, not to rewrite it."

British Experts Draw Up 6-Year Asia-Aid Plans

LONDON, Sept. 6 (AP).—The British Commonwealth of Nations today began drawing up a six-year program for helping Southeast Asia to raise living standards and thus beat back communism.

Experts met to measure the gap between the resources and the requirements of non-Communist countries in the whole restless region.

British officials reported that once the gap has been measured, the group as a whole probably will try to enlist American dollar and technical help to fill it. Represented at the conference were Britain, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Malaya, Hongkong and Borneo.

Ambrose Asks Dismissal of Fraud Charge

Former postal official Harold F. Ambrose yesterday petitioned District Court to dismiss the 24-count indictment charging him with accepting $295,000 fraudulently in stamp deals.

Through the law firm of Chase and Williams, Ambrose said that his constitutional rights to due process were violated by grand jury proceedings in the case.

He charged that the grand jury repeatedly interrupted sessions in his case to consider other matters.

Also, he said, the prosecutors violated the traditional secrecy of grand jury proceedings.

The grand jury had haled Joe Adonis, the New York gambling figure, before Judge Alexander Holtzoff, the petition related. Fihelly said that Adonis, who was one of the persons with whom Ambrose dealt in the stamp speculations, had refused to answer the grand jury's questions.

Adonis contended he had the right to keep mum lest he incriminate himself. Judge Holtzoff agreed with him.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE SPORTING NEWS, baseball's smartly-edited trade journal, is now taking a survey to learn whether the major leagues' farm systems have collapsed as producers of big league ball players. And there is, indeed, evidence that the productiveness of the farm systems is over-rated.

Teams with the biggest and most far-flung minor league chains are now suffering from a lack of talent. Most notable, perhaps, are the Cardinals, pioneers in the farm team business, who have dropped out of the National League race for lack of a first baseman, an outfielder who can hit, and some pitchers who can pitch.

Povich

That good Cardinal team grew old on Owner Fred Saigh, and with no replacements in sight. Brooklyn, second only to the Cards as minor league operators, is blowing the pennant as well for lack of pitching, outfielders and a third baseman. The Yankees, who owned or operated 22 clubs a year ago, haven't been able to come up with a first baseman.

The best thing the league-leading Phillies have come up with from their farm chain apparently was their manager, Eddie Sawyer, who was groomed at Utica for the job he is now doing.

MOST OF THE PHILLIES' pitching strength is represented by the bonus kids, Curt Simmons and Robin Roberts, who were limited to one year in the minors and thus don't qualify as farm system products. Their relief ace, Jim Konstanty, kicked around with the Reds and Braves before the Phillies "discovered" him.

Obviously, the minor leagues are not developing good ball players in any profusion. So it follows that the farm systems haven't been productive. It may be significant that a team without much of a farm chain, the Detroit Tigers, led the American League for most of the season. It was popular, once, to blame the Nats' failures on the lack of a good minor league organization, particularly the lack of a Triple A affiliate, but maybe that is no longer a sound excuse.

The Red Sox have roots in many minor league clubs, but can't come up with the kind of pitchers who could take the hardest-hitting team in history to the pennant. Cleveland went into the ranks of the colored leagues to pluck Larry Doby and Luke Easter for jobs they couldn't fill with farm-team graduates. The Braves built up their team chiefly by trades.

WERE THE NATS forced to depend on their farm system products, they would be in sorry shape at this time. The two players who have done the most to pull them up out of eighth place are Irv Noren and Eddie Yost. Neither of them ever wore a farm club uniform. Noren was bought for $70,000 from Hollywood, and Yost made the remarkable ascension direct from the sandlots to the majors without playing a minute of minor league ball.

The only man from the Nats' minor league holdings in the last half dozen years who has made good as a regular is Gil Coan, and he is not exactly a ball of fire yet. Mickey Vernon and Al Evans are farm team graduates, but they came up in the early '40s. So did Ray Scarborough, another who made good. Sid Hudson was developed under big league fire, not in the minors.

The two Cuban pitchers, Sandy Consuegra and Conrado Marrero came out of the Nats' B League Havana club and have done very well to be sure. But Havana is something apart from a farm-system club. It is operated chiefly as a profit-making franchise. Chattanooga, Washington's top affiliate, hasn't produced a good ball player with Coan's exception, in a decade.

MORE AND MORE the majors seem to be turning toward the bonus kids and the independently-owned Triple A clubs in the coast league for their top talent. Their own farm systems are either too slow to produce or too costly to maintain. In fact there is now a definite trend away from minor league holdings. Many clubs are dumping their franchises in the minors in favor of the less-costly working agreements.

When Jimmy Dykes called Joe McCarthy a "push-button" manager with the Yankees, he did not mean, exactly, that McCarthy merely had to beckon a good pinch-hitter from the bench, or signal for a winning pitcher to start the game. "I was thinking," Dykes later explained, "that whenever the Yankees needed a good pitcher or infielder or outfielder, McCarthy simply had to get on the phone to Newark or Kansas City, Yankee-owned teams."

It's significant that when the Yanks have been in need of first basemen, none of their minor clubs could provide one. Late last year they bought Johnny Mize from the Giants, and the other day they went into the National League to get Johnny Hopp from the Pirates. Yankees managers can't push buttons any more. You remember last spring they sold their Newark club, with no great sense of loss.

Mel Parnell Halts Champs As Stephens Leads Attack

BOSTON, Sept. 6 (AP).—Lefty Mel Parnell fanned the Boston Red Sox pennant hopes into a brisk blaze by taming the first place New York Yankees, 11-12, tonight in the opener of their crucial two game Fenway series. Junior Stephens powered a 16-hit Boston attack with four safeties, including his twenty-ninth homer, and a triple.

Boston now is 2½ games off the pace.

While clinching their seventh decision in 17 starts against the Yanks, the third place Bosox pounded Starter Ed Lopat for four runs on five hits in the second inning.

Stephens' homer, which gave him the American League runs-batted-in lead over Teammate Dropo by a 132-131 margin, came in the fifth inning after Lopat had ticked Billy Goodman on the right elbow with a pitched ball.

4 Yankees Threatened With Death in Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 6 (AP).—An anonymous letter writer tonight threatened the lives of four members of the New York Yankees—Phil Rizzuto, Hank Bauer, Yogi Berra and John Mize.

A pencil scribbled note, postmarked at Hartford, Conn., was received by Shortstop Rizzuto this evening. It read, in part:

"If the Yankees are still in the pennant race on the last two days of the season, and you dare to show up at Fenway Park to play the Red Sox, I have contrived to shoot you (Rizzuto), Bauer, Berra and Mize from the stands."

CHICAGO, Sept. 6 (AP).—Mike McCormick's single with two out in the ninth scored Dave Philley with the winning run tonight as the Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns, 6-5, before 3244 persons.

Ned Garver, who replaced Starter Cliff Fannin at the start of the ninth, suffered his sixteenth loss. Louis Aloma, working in relief for Starter Ray Scarborough, posted his seventh decision.

"IRON MAN" HITS, TOO—Big Don Newcombe, who held the Phillies to two runs and 11 hits in 16 innings last night, pulls up with a triple in the eighth inning of his 2-0 first game victory. Despite this big blow, Newcombe was yanked for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning of the second game and thus was deprived of credit for the Dodgers' 3-2 triumph scored in the ninth over Jim Konstanty. Phils' third baseman is Willie Jones.

Bums' 3-Run Ninth Gives Bankhead Victory in 2d

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—Big Don Newcombe blanked the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies, 2-0, on three singles tonight and came right back to hurl seven innings of the second game that Brooklyn won with a brilliant three-run rally in the ninth, 3-2.

The 6-foot-4, 240-pound Negro was deprived of credit for the first successful big-league iron-man stunt since Emil Levson of Cleveland did it in 1926 when he was yanked for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning of the nightcap.

Dan Bankhead pitched the last two innings and received the victory that kept the pennant hopes of the desperate Dodgers alive. The doubles triumph brought the Bums within 5½ games of first place.

The partisan crowd of 32,279 gasped when Newcombe came out for the second game. Last major leaguer to pitch both ends of a doubleheader was Bobo Newsom in 1940 when he beat Cleveland for D troit in the first, but lost the second.

The Phils immediately scored a run in the first, breaking a string of 32 scoreless innings. Waitkus tripled and scored on a fly in the third and those two runs were all the Whiz Kids got off Newcombe in his 16 complete innings.

Newcombe allowed only 11 hits all night. The powerful right-hander threw 106 pitches in the first game; 90 in the second.

Even after big Don departed, it was a drama-packed game. Pfc. Curt Simmons was the formidable mound opponent and the 21-year-old southpaw allowed only a scratch hit in eight innings.

In the fateful ninth, the National Guardsman struck out Pinch-hitter Eddie Miksis, his seventh victim. But Reese walked and Tommy Brown singled.

Campanella Breaks Thumb, Out for Year

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6 (AP). Roy Campanella, sturdy Brooklyn Dodger catcher, sustained a fractured right thumb tonight when hit by a foul tip in the eighth inning of the second game of a double-header with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Willie Jones was at bat when the injury occurred. Harold Parrott, traveling secretary of the Dodgers, said that Campanella probably would be lost for the remainder of the season.

Behind Consuegra

Griffs Shut Out A's, 3-0

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats slapped down the Athletics, 3-0, last night in a racy sort of contest with Senor Sandalio Consuegra the man of the hour and fifty minutes.

The little Senor won the battle of pitching tykes against Bobby Shantz, pint-sized lefthander of the A's before a cool but cozy little gathering of 3731 customers.

Statistically, the A's out-hit the Nats, 6 to 5, but they never did recover from the wounds of a first-inning triple swatted by Mickey Vernon that figured in two quick washington runs.

Vernon Whacks Triple

By their victory the Nats were catching up with those bullies, the seventh-place A's, who had licked 'em ten times in 16 previous contests this season.

Consuegra was discombooberating the A's with his curve-ball flipping for the most part. They were pounding it into the dirt most of the evening, and not until the seventh inning did a Washington outfielder make a putout.

The Nats jumped Shantz for their two big runs all of a sudden in the first inning, after two were out, and without much warning. Irv Noren fired a single into centerfield, and then Vernon lashed out.

The drive Vernon swatted off the right field fence was loaded with two runs. Noren dashed home, and Vernon streaked into third base, only to continue home himself when Ferris Fain took the throw from right field and heaved it far off the beam past third.

The Nats finally wound up with their third run of the ball game in the third inning after kicking up an awful fuss and threatening to get a lot more.

Yost launched the session with a walk and scampered to third on Michaels' perfect hit-run single to right. Noren grounded to Fain and Yost slid home safely under Fain's tardy throw to the plate.

Ostrowski, Dente Pop Up

After Vernon moved runners to second and third with a sacrifice, Mele was handed an intentional pass to fill the bases with one out. But Shantz smartly deflated the Nats at that point by getting rid of Ostrowski and Dente on infield pops.

For the rest of the game, the Nats could achieve only one more

Tribe Held To 8 Hits

DETROIT, Sept. 6, (AP).—The Detroit Tigers climbed to within half a game of the American League lead as they came from behind twice to beat the Cleveland Indians, 5-3, tonight.

Hal Newhouser held the Indians to eight hits as he posted his 13th victory against nine losses. Early Wynn and Chico Pieretti, who relieved in the eighth, gave up the same number of hits.

Wynn was charged with the loss.

The setback kept the Indians, 4½ games behind the league leading New York Yankees. Allie Clark homered for the Indians in the ninth inning.

The Tigers tucked the game away with a big four-run seventh inning as they won the opener of the important two-game series before 52,555 fans. Detroit's Vic Wertz was taken out of the game after a foul tip bruised his left foot while he was at bat.

Yanks' Ed Ford Fails Physical; House Deferred

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP).—Ed Ford, 21-year-old New York Yankee lefthanded pitcher, who has won five straight, today failed to pass his Army pre-induction physical examination, and was placed in the "status undetermined" class.

A spokesman for the recruiting station said Ford had a letter from his physician stating he has a medical history of an illness. The spokesman is forbidden by regulations to disclose the nature of Ford's ailment.

Meanwhile in Bessemer, Ala., Frank (Pig) House, Detroit's $75,000 "bonus" catcher, was reclassified and deferred because he is married.

Howard U. Squad Works on Punting

Howard University's football team held it first contact drill yesterday, with emphasis on punting and punt returns.

Bill (Bugs) Jackson, quarterback from Montclair, N. J., got off the best kicks, and Buddy Hertz, freshman halfback was impressive on the returns. Howard's first scrimmage is set for Saturday. The Bisons open two weeks later against Bluefield, W. Va., State.

Glenn Davis Starts For Rams Tonight

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP).—Glenn Davis, Army's three-time All-American player, will be in the starting backfield for the Los Angeles Rams when the Californians meet the New York Football Giants in the annual Tribune Fresh Air Fund Game tomorrow night.

It will be his first appearance on an Eastern gridiron since he was injured in the 1947 game. Backfield mates of Davis will be Dick Hoerner, Bob Waterfield and Tom Kalmanir.

Blackwell, Hits Law and Bucs Win, 3-2

Cincinnati, Sept. 6 (AP).—Ewell Blackwell hit Vernon Law with a pitched ball to force in the ninth-inning run that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3 to 2 victory tonight over the Cincinnati Reds. Two infield singles and a walk had filled the bases with two out before Blackwell's pitch hit his mound opponent.

hit, Mele's single in the fifth. But Consuegra wasn't letting go of his 3-0 lead.

Mickey Grasso helped him over the hump in the fifth when the A's raked him for a pair of singles and drew a walk, without getting a man to third base. Grasso's contribution was a smart pick-off play against Bill Hitchcock, who opened the inning with a safe bunt and wandered too far off first.

Consuegra's shutout was threatened again in the eighth, when Rookie Bob Rinker led off with a pinch-hit single to right to celebrate his major league debut with the A's. Rinker came up from Youngstown of the Mid-Atlantic League with a .392 average. But the Nats wiped out that threat with their third double play behind Consuegra.

IN SHORT . . . Shirt sleeves suddenly went out of style at Griffith Stadium last night as the temperature nose-dived. . . . Before the game, Bucky Harris got his first look at Julio Moreno, rookie righthander from Havana. He liked Moreno's lively delivery and appraised him as "pretty pert." . . . The Nats yesterday exercised options on eight players with their farm teams: From Chattanooga, Pitchers Lloyd Hittle and Bobby Ross, First Baseman Fred Taylor and Infielders George Genovese and Willie Miranda; from Augusta, Ga., Catcher Hal Keller and Pitcher Bill Dozier, and from Charlotte, Pitcher Diz Sutherland. Only Taylor and Keller will join the Nats before the season ends. . . . Gene Bearden goes against the A's tonight. They'll pitch Hank Wyse.

Weatherman Stiffens Pep

"I'd like to say you didn't miss anything," Pep said, "but you did. You missed everything. He did everything to me that first fight."

"We ain't kidding ourselves," Viscusi said. "Saddler figures to be a smarter fighter now than he was nineteenth months ago. It's this way: Willie had the title since 1942 and he was pretty used to it, and he took it a little too easy with Saddler the first time.

"Then for three months he didn't have the title, and he began to miss it. Once you've been champion, you don't ever want to give it up. Well, Saddler had it, and now he's had nineteen months without it, and he's missing it too. He'll be the hungry fighter this time."

"Sure," Viscusi said, "but Willie's got so he likes that 45 per cent himself. Willie likes nice things."

New York Favored By 7 Points

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 6.—The unbeaten Washington Redskins reach the end of the exhibition road tomorrow night with the rebuilt New York Yanks posing the most serious barrier the Washingtonians have been called upon to hurdle in their five-game coast-to-coast travels.

The kickoff is scheduled for 10:30 p. m., Washington time.

Guided by Coach Red Strader, the Yanks are composed of the best players of the dissolved New York Yankee team of the All-American Conference plus the cream of the crop of the New York Bulldogs of the National Football League.

Owner Ted Collins, who has dropped a carload of money trying to field a winning pro team first in Boston and later in New York, is the sponsor of the present outfit and believes he has finally come up with a team which will not be kicked around, as were his previous productions.

Apparently, the betting fraternity here believes likewise. They have established the once-beaten Yanks 7-point favorites to stop the Redskins, who have conquered the Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco 49ers, Detroit Lions and Chicago Cardinals.

While the Redskins feature the passing of Harry Gilmer and Sammy Baugh plus the threat of a running game as executed by Bill Dudley and Fullbacks Bob Goode and Pete Stout, the Yanks boast of the passing and quarterbacking of George Ratterman plus the running of Buddy Young, the swiftest man in football, and George Taliaferro, a hard-driving halfback.

WMAL Carries Game Tonight

Tonight's Redskins-New York Yankees football game will be broadcast locally over Radio Station WMAL, 630 on your dial. Game time is 10:30 p. m., Washington time.

Hamner's glove before Furillo struck out.

But, with two out, Gil Hodges singled home Reese and Brown with the tying runs. When the throw-in was cut off, Robinson wound up in a rundown between third and home.

Catcher Andy Seminick threw wildly and Jackie scored with the winning run.

Dear Folks: At Timonium

I knew it would come sooner or later. G. H. N. writes to find out the name of the longshot that got so much publicity before the last Kentucky Derby. I had to think twice before remembering his name was Hallieboy. Incidentally, I haven't heard of him since. Big horse doings Saturday at Fair Hill, Md. (Up Route 40 to Northeast, Md., and turn left) when the Cecil County Breeders' Fair, Inc., stages its annual program featured by the Foxcatcher National Cup Steeplechase. Three other jumping events and two flat races on the card. The big race is at almost 4 miles and the entire layout can be seen from the stands.—BILL.

Terps' First Scrimmage Riles Tatum

University of Maryland held its first football scrimmage yesterday. Joe Petruzzo reeled off a 70-yard touchdown run and Bob Shemonski scored on sprints of 57 and 25 yards, but Coach Jim Tatum almost blew his top.

"It was a very disappointing exhibition," Tatum stormed, "one of the worst first scrimmages in my coaching career. Ball carriers didn't cut through the right holes, passers weren't hitting their targets, and tackling and blocking were sloppy."

The scrimmage lasted 2 hours and 15 minutes, and Tatum indicated that his boys would get twice as much work today, beginning at 6:45 a. m.

As a result of yesterday's first rough session, three Terps nursed minor injuries. Guard Marvin Kramer bruised his hand, Fullback Dave Cianelli and Punter Jack Targarona suffered pulled muscles.

Louise Sayer, Omolecki Win

The defending champion and the medalist won their first-round matches in the District of Columbia Publinx championships for women yesterday at Fort Dupont.

Champion Louise Sayer defeated Rachel Yap, 5 and 4, and Medalist Dorothy (Dot) Omolecki, longest hitter in the tournament, ousted Macy McAmis, 4 and 3.

Quarter-finals are slated for today.

FIRST FLIGHT

Dorothy Omolecki defeated Macy McAmis, 4 and 3; Heidi Fairchild defeated Dotty Lahoss, 5 and 4; Audrey Cook defeated Joan Cragg, 5 and 3; Helen Konopa defeated Georgia McKeever, 4 and 3; Louise Sayer defeated Rachel Yap, 5 and 4; Margaret Davies defeated Edith Cunningham, 1 up; Joe Dibella defeated Lulla Mae Kennedy, 5 and 3; Carrol Hardy defeated Mary Carraher, 5 and 3.

SECOND FLIGHT

Marzaret Rogers defeated Louise Frazee, 4 and 3; Eloise Bell won by default; Frances Kirkwood won by default; Roberta Grumberg won by default.

Ambassador Honors Champs On Anniversary

The Ambassador Hotel swimming team celebrated its tenth anniversary yesterday with a splash party and a 90-pound cake, floated in the middle of its pool.

Trophies were presented to Coach Bill Armstrong, who started the club, and the following club members who have won national championships:

Map Service Girls Win Softball Title

Ann Herndon pitched a two-hit, 3-0, victory over Van's Aces as the Army Map Service girls' softball team captured the class B championship of the Recreation Department League on the Monument Grounds yesterday.

Shirley Geary, with a single, double, and triple, and two runs batted in, paced the winners' attack.

Curtis Throws Dillon at Turner's

Bud Curtis defeated Jack Dillon in 21 minutes with a cradle hold in the feature wrestling match last night at Turner's Arena. Steve Karas and Ronald Meeker won the two-man team match, defeating Lou Bertucci and Les Ruffin.

In other bouts, Sammy (Mr. Canada) Berg and Red Ryan drew in 30 minutes and Ken Ackles defeated Jim Austeri in 17 minutes with a body press.

Tom Boggs' Five Singles Pace Cops

The Police Department scored 12 runs in the fifth inning and eliminated Marine Corps Institute, 18-3, yesterday in the city sandlot baseball tournament on the South Ellipse.

Tom Boggs led the Police attack with five singles in five trips.

Today, the Cops, with a 2-0 tourney record, take on the Fire Department, 1-1, 4:30 p. m. on the South Ellipse.

Burnap Gains Junior Finals

George Huguely and Ed Burnap gained the final round of the Columbia Country Club Junior Golf Tournament with victories yesterday.

Huguely defeated Bill Werber, jr., by default, and Jack Furey, 2 and 1, while Burnap ousted Bob DeOrsey, 3 and 2, and Bob Redick, 3 and 2. Huguely and Burnap meet for the championship at 10 a. m. today.

In the second flight, Guy Harper, jr., defeated Bill Banks, 1 up, and Joe Divver downed Verne Holleman, 2 up, in the morning, and John McHale won from Buddy Divver, 2 and 1, in the afternoon round. Harper and McHale play for the title this afternoon.

Army Medics Win Two in Tourney

Defending champion Army Medical Center won its first two games in the Military District of Washington softball tournament yesterday at South Post, Fort Myer.

A. M. C. defeated South Post, 9-2, and Fort McNair, 12-6. First team eliminated in the double elimination was Fort Myer, beaten, 9-1, by Fort McNair, and 12-11, by South Post.

Other results: Vint Hill, 19, Arlington Hall, 1; Fort Belvoir, 6, Vint Hill, 2. The tourney continues with six games today.

Bullis Bent on Avenging High-Score Losses of '49

By Bill Gilbert

Harry Deming, football coach at Bullis Prep, is seeking revenge against some of the teams that ran up the score against him last year.

Deming is angry at two schools who refused to yank their first teams after piling up comfortable margins against Bullis. "I hate to lose," Deming says, "especially when they beat your ears off."

This year, though, he has a team that, although it lacks reserves, is still capable of handing out the punishment that Bullis received last year.

Deming has been aided in his drive for a comeback by the addition of six Washington area high school stars. Backs Leo Speros of Wilson, Bill Larrimore of Montgomery Blair, Jack Gilfillen of Washington-Lee and Norman Henry of George Washington, End Franny Gleason of Central and Center Tee Phillips of W-L bolster Deming's hopes of improving last seasons' 2-6-1 mark.

Bullis' backfield is a well-rounded group that includes good passers, a hefty fullback and a scatback. Bob Stimac of Barberton, Ohio, Bill Spangler, Johnstown, Pa., Dick Maravic, McKeesport, and Bill Henderson, Baltimore, give Bullis a good amount of weight, speed and ability in its attack.

Stimac, Spangler and Maravic are good passers. The latter is a left-hander who, at 205 pounds, can plow, too. Henderson, 5 feet 9 inches and 165 pounds, is the scatback. All four local backs can break through and run also.

Jim Byron heads the list of six ends, all of whom are over the six-foot mark and weigh more than 190. Byron stands 6 feet 4 inches and tips the scales at 205.

Caps' Al Sawyer Honeymoons Here

Caps' Rookie Alan Sawyer already is in town—a full month before the local NBA entry is scheduled to start practice.

Sawyer married a week ago to the former Marjorie Lindquist in San Pedro, Calif., is spending his honeymoon in Washington.

The former UCLA ace joins Bill Sharman, Caps' No. 2 draft choice, who also is on hand.

Hillenbrand, W-L High Star, Goes To Wake Forest

Bruce Hillenbrand, selected by The Washington Post as captain of its All-Metropolitan scholastic football last season yesterday enrolled at Wake Forest.

The 19-year-old Washington-Lee High of Arlington graduate was sought by 10 colleges and several major league baseball teams, including the New York Yankees.

Fife fee, 9 inches tall and 185 pounds, Hillenbrand was a triple-threat halfback and a distance-hitting centerfielder at W-L. For the Ballston Indians sandlot baseball team this summer, Hillenbrand batted :520.

Among the schools interested in Hillenbrand were Maryland, William and Mary, Washington and Lee, North Carolina, N. C. State, Clemson, Kentucky, Tennessee and Florida.

HAIR GETTING THIN?
GROOM IT WITH KREML

TO AVOID THAT GREASY LOOK—MAKE HAIR LOOK MORE ABUNDANT

There's nothing better than Kreml to neatly groom thinning hair or sparse locks. Kreml doesn't look the least bit greasy, sticky or gooey. No dirt-catching film shows through on the scalp. Kreml always keeps hair and scalp looking and feeling so clean. AND SO VERY IMPORTANT—Kreml removes dandruff flakes (more noticeable with sparse hair); it lubricates a dry scalp, giving it a delightful tingle. Change to Kreml today.

School Opening Will Find 1800 On Part Time

8000 Go To School in Alexandria

The slow trek back to school continued in the Washington Area yesterday as an estimated 8000 pupils reported at Alexandria and teachers from Catholic schools prepared to resume classes for 26,000 students.

The Alexandria opening was a half-day session devoted principally to registration of pupils who failed to sign up last spring, to distribution of books and to assignments to classrooms.

Full-day sessions will start today at 8:45 a. m. and will end at 3 p. m. for most elementary students and at 3:20 for high school pupils. In the first grade and the first semester of the second grade, classes will close at 2 p. m.

Although the tide of returning pupils was swelled by 1000 new scholars, Alexandria, unlike neighboring communities was untouched by overcrowding, school officials said. They attributed this to a long-range planning program which foresaw the current emergency as early as the mid-30s.

Part of the increase was absorbed by the opening of the new Parker-Gray Negro High School on Madison st. with a 450-student capacity and an addition to the Mount Vernon Elementary School on Mount Vernon ave. The new unit contains 14 rooms and an auditorium adequate for nearly 500 students.

Catholic schools of the Archdiocese of Washington will reopen this morning. Yesterday the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, was celebrant at the annual mass for the 1000 teachers at St. Matthews Cathedral.

On Monday, school will resume in the District, Prince Georges and Montgomery counties in Maryland and in Falls Church, Va. New students will enroll in Montgomery this afternoon and Friday morning. In Falls Church, pupils will report Friday for room assignments.

In Garrett County, Md., parents of Kitzmiller pupils, angry over a proposed school consolidation forcing many children to travel 17 miles a day, kept the youngsters out of classes. Only 34 of the expected 300 showed up. Parents said the withholding would continue until written assurance is received that the bus runs have been cut down.

White Pupils East Of Anacostia River Affected; Group Hits Negro Student Shift

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

More than 1800 District school children will attend part-time when classes resume Monday, it was reported yesterday to the Board of Education.

School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning told board members that all the half-day scholars will be in white schools east of the Anacostia River.

Twenty-eight classes at Patterson School, 21 at Congress Heights, 2 at the Orr and 1 at Kenilworth will be on half-day schedules, he said.

A Temporary Condition

However, most of the students will go on full time before the end of the year. The new Simon Elementary School, expected to be ready for occupancy in December, will house the overflow from Patterson and Congress Heights. Orr school classes will be on full time when alterations now under way are completed, Dr. Corning said.

To prevent the further spread of part-time education, the board took two steps:

1. Approved the use of empty classrooms in Taft Junior High School to house an excess of white elementary students at Bunker Hill School pending construction of an addition at Bunker Hill.

2. Assigned Negro junior high students in the Anacostia area to attend classes in the old Birney Elementary School and Annex.

Frst Assistant Superintendent of Schools Garnet C. Wilkinson said that from 350 to 400 students will be sent to the buildings to provide additional space for elementary students in the Garfield, Turner and new Birney Elementary Schools. A junior high principal will be assigned to the new junior high unit and junior high equipment will be moved in, Dr. Wilkinson said.

Parents' Group Protests

At present only seventh and eighth grade students will attend Birney. Older students will be sent to junior high schools outside the neighborhood.

Dr. Wilkinson said the arrangement will continue until the new Negro Douglass Junior High School is built. Funds for the school are in the current budget.

He assured board members that the plan which will go into effect next week has the support of parrents and civic leaders

But Gardner L. Bishop, president of the Consolidated Parent Group, appeared before the board and presented a petition signed by 670 families urging the board to assign the Negro junior high students to the white Sousa Junior High School.

Protest Meeting Tonight

Bishop scheduled a meeting of parents for 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Campbell A. M. Church, 2500 Nichols ave. se., to "protest school board action."

In his statement to the board Bishop described Wilkinson's plan as "deplorable and deplete," and said the Consolidated Parent Group will "continue to arouse parents to protest."

Bishop was one of the leaders of a parent-inspired strike that three years ago kept the Negro Browne Junior High School students out of classes for nearly a month. The strike was in protest to assigning junior high students to elementary buildings.

Rankling under Bishop's criticism, Board Vice President Adelbert W. Lee said the record shows "the board has been eminently fair in removing part-time education for colored children.

"White Children Neglected"

"The neglected children are the white children," he said.

In other actions yesterday the board:

Approved a Senate bill that will provide flight experience for high-school aviation students.

Protested the application of a liquor license at 1127 Howard rd. se. because of proximity to the Birney School.

Retired four teachers with long records of service. They are:

Miss Isadore A. Hardy, 1763 T st. nw., kindergarten teacher at Simmons School.

Mrs. Edyth C. Alexander, former teacher of mathematics at Eastern High School.

Miss Elizabeth H. Hoyt, 4410 38th st. North, Arlington, Va., elementary school art teacher.

Mrs. Grace M. Warfield, Edgewater, Md., Noyes School teacher.

3 Arrested in Car, Shoe Shine Parlor On Gaming Charge

Vice squad detectives yesterday, arrested three men on numbers charges.

First they entered a shoe shine parlor at 209 K st. sw. on a "routine investigation" and arrested Edward G. Jackson, 50, of 1135 Harvard st. nw., and Clarence A. Bowser, 53, of 1531 1st st. nw.

Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, said when his men entered the shoe shine parlor they saw numbers slips lying on a chair next to Jackson and Bowser, so they searched the two men and found them in possession of numbers slips.

Later, Blick's men stopped Leo A. Bottoms, jr., 22, of 70 Rhode Island ave. nw., as he was driving in the 3300 block of Bladensberg rd. ne. Blick described Bottoms as a "pickup man" and said numbers plays were found on his person and 400 unused numbers books were discovered in the rear of the car.

In neither case, Blick said, did his men have a warrant. All were charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. They were released in $1500 bond each for appearance in Municipal Court.

School Site Plan Approved In Fairfax

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday voted to amend the county's subdivision ordinance to require builders to "reserve" sites for schools, parks and playgrounds in future developments.

Under the proposal, which must be advertised in local papers before it can become final, no plans for future subdivisions will be approved by the county planning commission unless they provide "suitable and adequate" areas for schools and recreation. The sites then would be acquired by the county through negotiation with the owners.

Board members said the amendment is in accordance with an act approved by the Virginia General Assembly this year.

Also at yesterday's meeting, the board authorized Arlington Hospital to campagn in Fairfax County for funds to build an addition to the institution. Permission was granted at the request of Clark Daniel, director for the drive, who said he wanted to be sure the campaign would not conflict with any Fairfax plans to build a hospital of its own.

Daniel said the proposed addition would cost $375,000, with the hospital putting up $165,000 against Federal aid grants. He estimated the Fairfax share of the cost at about $29,000 on the basis of hospital figures showing 15 percent of its patients come from Fairfax.

Man Electrocuted When Crane Hits High Tension Wire

A 40-year-old Washington construction worker was electrocuted in Bethesda yesterday, when the crane on which he was leaning came in contact with a 2300-volt high tension wire.

Harry Lewis, 304 L st. sw., was digging a sewer trench at Arlington rd. and Bethesda ave. His job was to guide the crane bucket in and out of the trench. The accident occurred when the crane brushed an overhead high tension wire.

Lewis was employed by the Circle Construction Co., 657 A st. se.

Montgomery County police preferred no charges against the operator of the crane, Charles H. Hubble, 25, 1518 59th ave. Hillside, Md.

Dr. Emile G. Bauersfeld, acting medical examiner, issued a certificate of accidental death.

'Wire-Tap' Quiz Set for Today Is Postponed Until Tuesday

Today's scheduled open hearing in the Senate investigation of wire tapping has been postponed until 10:30 a. m. next Tuesday.

The subcommittee had planned to hear Mrs. Frances Dustin, administrative assistant to Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), and William J. Nolan, once a partner of Police Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon in an automobile business. Both will appear Tuesday.

Committee aides explained the postponement was ordered because several members will be out of town today. Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) acting subcommittee chairman, is in West Virginia.

Mrs. Dustin probably will be quizzed about the payment of $100 to $125 made by Brewster to Shimon for expenses in checking a man whom Brewster said shadowed him during the 1947 Senate inquiry into Howard Hughes' wartime plane contracts.

Nolan already has testified that Shimon told him about tapping the telephone of the late Senator Josiah W. Bailey (D., N. C.). Tuesday Bailey's son, in a letter to Brewster, said he did not believe his father's phones were tapped

Beltsville Man, Freed on Bond, Bounces Back Behind Bars

A short time after a Beltsville (Md.) man got out of the Hyattsville jail under bond on a disorderly conduct charge yesterday he was arrested by a Maryland State trooper and charged with six other offenses.

To make matters worse, the bondsman who had sprung him from the "clink" withdrew the bond and turned him back to the police.

The man, Warren H. Covington, 29-year-old gasoline station employe, originally was jailed Tuesday on a disorderly conduct charge brought by his wife, Mildred.

He was picked up the second time by Trooper J. P. Martinuk after he reportedly drove off with another man's automobile from the gasoline station.

The trooper said Covington became abusive and dared Martinuk to shoot him. The result of this was that Covington was returned to the station in handcuffs.

Martinuk charged Covington with drunken driving and disorderly conduct. Additional charges of disorderly conduct and assault and battery were brought by Mrs. Covington and peace bonds were asked by the wife and her brother. These charges stemmed from another altercation during Covington's short stay outside of bars. Martinuk said.

Covington was held under a total of $2100 bond for appearance in Hyattsville Police Court September 11.

McKenney Hills Citizens Elect New Officers

New officers were installed last night at the first fall meeting of the McKenney Hills Citizens Association. The group met at the VFW Building, Hayden dr., Silver Spring.

The officers are C. J. Barry, president; Harry Love, vice president; Mrs. Colin Michael, secretary, and J. Richard Browne, treasurer.

Virginia Board Acts Friday in Swanson Case

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 6. (Spl.)—The University of Virginia board of visitors will act Friday on the application of Gregory Swanson, Martinsville Negro attorney who received clearance yesterday from a special Federal Court to attend the graduate school here.

A ranking university official, who asked that he not be quoted by name, said any possibility of an appeal by the board from the decision is "remote."

The inference that Swanson will be admitted to the graduate law school for the fall term is "quite justified," the official said.

A three-judge Federal Court held here yesterday that the university must admit Swanson and other applicants "similarly situated."

Any appeal from the court's decision would have to be decided upon by the board of visitors, the university official pointed out.

In Richmond today Governor Battle conferred with Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., on problems presented by the decision.

Architect DeMers Chosen for Base Housing Project

The Potomac River Naval Command yesterday announced the appointment of Victor de Mers of 1211-A Connecticut ave. nw. as architect for the 1000-unit housing development to be built at the Patuxent River Naval Air Station, Md.

Civilian and military personnel will rent quarters. The development will be built and operated by private capital with a Federal guarantee for mortgages. The site is Government-owned land on Three-Notch rd. Plans call for bids in about four months and contruction to begin two months later.

Units will rent for $67.50 monthly to enlisted men and civilian employes, $90 for officers. Of the 1000 units, 530 will be for enlisted men, 370 for civilians, 100 for officers.

Trial Date Is Set In Assault Case

A hearing on charges of drunkenness and assaulting a police officer, lodged against Beverly L. Pendergast, 19, of 5750 N. Washington blvd., Arlington, was continued yesterday in Arlington County Court.

Police said Pendergast, an employe in The Washington Post pressroom, was arrested in a gas station at Washington blvd. and McKinley rd. about 10 a. m. Tuesday. They said he kicked two officers who took him into custody. Pendergast was released on $500 bond, pending trial September 22.

Plumber Killed, Engineer Dies in 2 Area Accidents

D. C. Pedestrian Crushed by Bus Wheel; Identified By Fingerprints

District Traffic Toll:
1950 deaths to date 45
1949 deaths to date 40
Total 1949 death toll 71

A man was crushed to death under a bus in the District and another man fatally injured in Arlington in early morning traffic accidents yesterday.

At about 7 a. m., a man identified through fingerprints as Harry J. Dougherty, jr., 41, a plumber, fell under the rear wheel of a Safeway Trails bus at 7th st. and Mount Vernon pl. nw.

The wheel passed over his head, police said. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital. The bus, empty of passengers, was en route to the company terminal, 12th st. and New York ave. nw. The driver, Charles H. Shanoltzer, 28, of 1628 B st. se., was released in the custody of a company official, pending an inquest.

Police said the bus, traveling west on New York ave., had turned into Mount Vernon pl. Dougherty, they said, walking south on 7th st., had started to cross Mount Vernon pl.

Witnesses told police Dougherty suddenly toppled from the curb, fell first against the side of the bus and then slid under the rear wheel.

Dr. Richard Rosenberg, deputy coroner, said an autopsy showed Dougherty had a bad heart and could have suffered a heart attack.

Police said Dougherty was identified through fingerprints taken when he was arrested on an assault charge on April 2, 1934.

Tattooed on his left arm, police said, was a woman's face, bearing "My Dutch."

Marvin Walsh, general manager of Safeway Trails, declared the fatality occurred after a heavy Labor Day weekend during which his company carried 30,000 passengers an estimated 100,000 bus miles without a single accident.

Dorsey Conger Blakely, 66, a Lorton, Va., engineer, was pronounced dead on arrival at Arlington Hospital after his car struck the rear of a tractor trailer truck at 4 a. m. in the 2300 block of Shirley hwy., Arlington.

Dr. W. C. Welburn, Arlington County coroner, issued a certificate of accidental death. Police said they learned Blakely was a diabetic, subject to blackouts.

Edward R. Saunders, 26, of 1510 Columbia st. nw., driver of the truck, was booked on a technical charge of manslaughter. Later he was released by order of Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker, who said there was "insufficient evidence" against Saunders.

Pants Taken To Cleaners; So Is Theft Suspect

Because a pair of stolen pants got home, Samuel W. Woods, 32, of 90 Logan ct. nw., was in the toils of the law yesterday.

Woods was held for grand jury action under $1000 bond set in Municipal Court in the theft of two clothes-filled suitcases.

According to police, Woods sold a pair of blue trousers from one of the valises to Mrs. Annebelle Pettus, of 74 Logan ct. nw., and she decided to have them cleaned at Mobley's Valet Shop, 83 L st. nw.

Julius Mobley, 44, the proprietor, examined the pants for a second and called police.

The trousers belong to Mobley's son.

Falls Church Promises School Transportation

The Falls Church School Board announced last night it will work out "some means" of transporting the city's first and second grade students living "the greatest distance" away to the Madison-Jefferson Elementary School.

Falls Church now has no school bus system, but does have one bus available.

2000 Enjoyed Vacation At Boys' Club Camps

The Metropolitan Police Boys' Club ended its summer camping season yesterday, as several hundred youngsters from two camps in Scotland, Md., reluctantly returned home.

Lieut. Forrest L. Binswanger, supervisor, announced that approximately 2000 boys, 8 to 16, received two-week vacations over the ten-week season.

Own House

Man Admits Five Cases Of Arson

Clarence W. Satterwhaite, jr., 24, has confessed setting his house on fire five times to scare his wife, police reported yesterday.

According to police, Satterwhaite said he admitted he had set fire to 652 6th st. ne., on October 11 and November 15, 1949, and January 13, January 17 and August 28, 1950.

All the fires were minor, police said, except that of January 17, when $500 damage was done.

In his confession, police said Satterwhaite revealed he was having trouble with his wife and hoped that if she feared him she would pay him more attention.

Police entered the case on the complaint of Robert E. Dove, 5808 44th ave., Capitol Heights, Md., owner of the 6th st. house.

Satterwhaite was arrested at 10 a. m., yesterday by No. 9 Precinct police and an inspector from the Fire Marshal's office. The confession came after several hours of questioning, police said.

Satterwhaite is scheduled to be arraigned in Municipal Court today.

8 Cases Raise Polio Total to 242 in Area

Eight new polio cases were reported for Greater Washington yesterday, bringing the total this year to 242. Two of yesterday's cases were reported for Washington making 103 for the year, as compared with 52 for the same period of last year.

They are a 15-year-old girl from the 1200 block of Half st. se. in Gallinger Hospital, and a 14-year-old boy from the 4800 block of Glen Brook rd. nw. in Children's Hospital.

Arlington County also had two new cases, bringing its total to 19. Both are adults—a 23-year-old woman from the 5800 block of N. Four Mile Run dr. and a 31-year-old man from the 800 block of S. Glebe rd., both in Gallinger.

Fairfax County had three new cases, bringing the total to 31. They are a 12½-year-old boy of Rte. 3. Vienna, in Children's Hospital; a 5½-year-old boy from Manassas, also in Children's and a 6-year-old girl of the 1500 block of Timber la., Falls Church, listed as a 'delayed" report involving a case first diagnosed early last month. The child has been treated and released from the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Montgomery County had its thirty-seventh case, an 8-year-old boy from the 7900 block of Sleaford pl., Bethesda, who is being treated at Children's.

Hit-Run Driver Given 30 Days And Fined $210

Robert Nelson Juntwait, 34, of 101 Virgina ave., Falls Church, yesterday was fined $210 and given 30 days in jail on speeding, reckless driving and hit and run charges in Arlington County Court.

The charges against Juntwait, an engineer, grew out of an accident August 9 on Shirley hwy. near the Pentagon. His auto struck that of Mrs. Mary M. Williams, 37, of 3230 Valley dr., Alexandria.

According to testimony, Juntwait hit the right side of Mrs. Williams' car as he passed her, causing her car to turn over twice. She and her 4-year-old son, David, escaped injury. Juntwait noted an appeal and was released on $1000 bond.

The Bird They Called Abe

None Could Tell the Pigeon, That Blase Pigeon, to Fly

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

A TIRED, disconcerted pigeon flew into an eighth floor office of the Ring Building yesterday afternoon and in manner blase refused to leave.

It happened that the office was that of the Aircraft Supply Co., distributors and representatives of the Hiller helicopter.

Knowledge of matters aeronautical didn't help. Nobody—including a retired admiral in the office—could order that pigeon to fly. The best that could be done was to name it: Abe.

"You got off the airways a little," Company President Barnie Vierling told Abe.

ABE pecked around the office, occupied normally by Vice President Warren Rockwell. He pouted a little and rested his eyes, shutting both top and bottom eyelids.

"Pilot of ours walked in," Vierling said. "Al Bridgford. We greeted him with the fact that there was a 'student' of his here that wanted to be checked out. He laughed like the rest of us.

"Rockwell came in," Vierling continued, "and we told him there was a visitor who wouldn't leave. He about fell through the floor.

"We gave Abe crackers and nuts and some water in a whiskey glass. Think he'll touch it?"

Abe picked up a tobacco crumb under Rockwell's desk instead.

"We put him on the windowsill and he waits there until we move away and then he hops back into the office.

ADMIRAL F. W. ROCKWELL, son of the vice president, looked in next.

He said to Vierling: "All fixed yet?"

"Still here," Vierling said.

The admiral said he walked into the ofice about 1 p. m. and watched Abe at rest on the ledge for about five minutes. The window—at that time—was closed. A secretary from a next door office opened it and a determined Abe entered.

"I called the Animal Rescue League," said Vierling. "First thing they ask is about the bands around Abe's legs. I tell them and they give me a phone number to call, but nobody's in.

"So I called again and asked what to do. They said Abe was probably on a long flight and got all tired out. They said give him some water and some food and let him rest.

"I asked how long it would take him to rest, and my God! they said, 'Oh, maybe four or five days.'"

AT length, Mrs. Pasquale, office secretary, announced that Vierling had decided to take the bird home.

"We can't leave him overnight. We just found out the building management has some rule about pets.

"But Mr. Vierling will bring him back in the morning," she said, "and we'll let him rest some more in the afternoon. Maybe then he'll be all rested and leave."

She didn't sound really happy about the thought.

Maryland Candidates Hit 10-Day 'Stretch'

GOP Criticized

Lane, Tydings Address Rally At Kensington

By The Associated Press

Office-seekers of all faiths intensified their efforts in wooing the support of the electorate yesterday as the lively Maryland primary entered into its final 10 days.

In the heated Democratic gubernatorial contest, Governor Lane contended that he has the "indorsement" of his primary opponent, George P. Mahoney. Lane said Mahoney has "no quarrel whatever with the way my administration has conducted the affairs of Maryland. But he insists that he can do everything * * * for millions of dollars less."

On the other side, Kenneth R. Hammer, former State commander of the American Legion, urged support of Mahoney and said that Lane has "turned his back on his comrades in arms."

Hammer said the governor "paid no attention" to veterans organizations until election year, and that credit he has taken for veteran legislation is "entirely misleading."

Mahoney himself concentrated on labor votes, addressing a group of union representatives in his Baltimore campaign headquarters hotel.

"I am 100 percent for the honest aspirations and ambitions of labor to organize, to bargain collectively and to set decent standards of hours and wages and conditions of employment in American industry," he said.

"My platform is an open document for all to see. In it I have stated my stand on labor. My opponent has given labor no recognition in his platform."

In Washington, Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) "wholeheartedly" indorsed Senator Tydings for renomination in the September 18 Democratic primary.

It was the first time that O'Conor had made a public statement regarding this year's State primaries.

Tydings, seeking his fifth straight term, is opposed for the nomination by former Representative John A. Meyer and Hugh J. Monaghan, both attorneys of Baltimore.

Meyer said yesterday he was troubled over the "apathy" within the party over the senatorial contest. Meyer said Tydings' record in Washington ought to have a "plain decision" within the party before the general election in November.

Republican Challenges County Democrats

John R. Fletcher, Maryland Republican State Central Committee chairman, yesterday challenged the Prince Georges County Democratic party to place its candidates on the same speaker's stand with the GOP.

In a telegram to State Senator L. Harold Sothoron, whom he opposes for the county's seat in the State Senate, Fletcher said the GOP has accepted several invitations from independent organizations to debate issues with the Democrats. They have always been informed that the opposition "refuses to participate," Fletcher said.

He offered to try to arrange a schedule which would "fit in with plans" of the Democrats.

Tawes to Be Elected Without Opposition

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 6 (AP).—J. Millard Tawes will be elected in November to a four-year term as comptroller of Maryland without opposition.

He is the nominee of his own Democratic Party, and the September 5 deadline for nominating by petition was passed up yesterday by the Republicans. So Tawes is in.

This will mark the second time since 1938 he will have been elected to the post without either primary or general election opposition.

A roll call of Republican "opposition" to national security measures and a defense of Maryland's sales tax featured a rally of the Montgomery County Democratic Victory Committee last night at Kensington.

The principal speakers were Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) and Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., both seeking renomination in the September 18 primary. All of the Victory Committee slate were present.

Tydings declared he had always been an advocate of strong national defense and scored the GOP for opposing many defense measures before World War II and since.

Specifically, he criticized the GOP for opposing the Selective Service acts of 1939 and 1940, for opposing legislation permitting postwar purchases of such critical war materials as rubber, tin and manganese, and for opposing an appropriation for additional ships and planes.

He charged, too, that most Republicans voted against aid to Italy and Greece following World War II.

"You can't live in the same atmosphere in which you might have lived in 1900," declared Tydings. "None of us can live in such a world until the world settles down to a philosophy of live and let live."

Lane said he knew the State sales tax would be unpopular, but that he decided it was necessary when he took office because of the poor condition of the State's schools, mental institutions, hospitals and roads.

He announced that Montgomery County received $1,263,405 in State funds in 1947, whereas this year it will receive $3,121,428—a direct result of the sales tax.

He said the county's tax assessment would have gone up at least 75 cents a hundred except for this.

The expected increase in school population was also cited by Lane. He said the State's school population, now 320,000, is expected to soar to 450,000 in the next seven years.

Traffic Safety Signs Painted on Sidewalks at Schools

The Washington Post

TO SAVE CHILDREN'S LIVES—The Junior Chamber of Commerce and the commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board yesterday began their joint program of painting sidewalk safety signs in front of D. C. schools in an effort to reduce child traffic deaths. Surrounded by a group of youngsters at the Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw., are, left to right; Marie Harding, a Board of Education employe, A. Julian Brylawski, chairman of the education committee of the traffic advisory board, and Dave Allentuck, chairman of the Jaycee "Back to School Week" project

200 Attend Stamp Session Opening Here

The 64th annual convention of the American Philatelic Society was called to order in the Shoreham Hotel yesterday by Wilbur F. Cannon, of Davenport, Iowa, with about 200 members and friends present.

The invocation was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Creighton. The president spoke briefly, welcoming the delegates and numerous reporters were presented. Special committees on by-laws, appropriations, chapters and units, and place of next convention were named and reports will be presented later.

The bourse and exhibition were formally opened at 10:30 a. m. and will close at 10 p. m. The feature of the first day was the auction of 1151 lots sold in two sessions at 2 and 8 p. m. John A. Fox of New York was auctioneer.

Today at 1 p. m. a visit will be paid to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the annual banquet will be held at 7 p. m. when the exhibition awards will be made.

Southeast Folk Finally Rid of Stagnant Pool

It took a while, but a Southeast Washington neighborhood which complained about a stagnant pool has had its complaint attended to.

Health Department officials yesterday made a reinspection of the pool area in the rear of 556 Lebaum st. se., and found that the water, in which mosquitoes were breeding, had been drained.

Owners of the property are nonresidents, which resulted in a two-month delay between the time the complaint was filed and the condition was corrected.

Under the law, they had to be notified by registered letter of the condition and given a "reasonable time" to correct it. Health Department officials said that this week they received the final registered letter receipt from the absent owners and immediately ordered the reinspection. Eventually, the pond area is to be filled in.

Maj. Ribble Is Overcome

Maj. George M. Ribble, Salvation Army official, was found unconscious under a car yesterday in a garage behind his home, 819 Quintana pl. nw.

Maj. Ribble

Suspicions of Ribble's wife, Mrs. Ethel Ribble, and prompt first aid by police may have saved the life of the 45-year-old official.

Police said Mrs. Ribble told them she noticed the garage doors were closed and, thinking it unusual, went to investigate with her daughter, Marjorie, 18. They opened the doors, shut off the car motor and called police.

Police received the call at 12:20 p. m. Pvts. James Stargel and O. P. Williamson of the Sixth Precinct, riding in a scout car, were only a block away and reached the scene in a matter of seconds.

Stargel and Williamson took turns givng artifical respiration to Ribble. They worked over the unconscious man for 15 minutes until Rescue Squad No. 2 arrived and administered oxygen.

Ribble was taken to Gallinger Hospital where last night his condition was described as "fair."

Police said Mrs. Ribble told them her husband had been dependent recently but did not say why.

According to Salvation Army headquarters here, Ribble is second in command to Col. W. W. Bouterse, who is business manager, divsional secretary and in charge of public relations.

Dr. Rolla Dyer Gives Up Post, But Not Work

Dr. Rolla E. Dyer, who preferred medical research to the practice of medicine, will retire as director of the National Institutes of Health, on October 1.

He will not quit work, however. In Atlanta, Ga., officials of Emory University announced he would assume the post of chief coordinator of medical research at Emory University Medical School.

Because of Dr. Dyer's preference he is credited with helping save the lives of thousands. He is known internationally for his research on infectious diseases, particularly those on typhus, Q and Rocky Mountain spotted fevers.

Dr. Dyer, 64, is retiring under mandatory age retirement requirements of Public Health Service. He spent 34 years in the service, the last eight as director of the Bethesda, Md., institutes.

Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, surgeon general, who last night announced Dr. Dyer's retirement, credited him with expanding the service's intramural research program to "substantial attacks on the growing problem of chronic, crippling and killing diseases."

Dr. Dyer was a member of the Institute's research team which first proved that Rockey Mountain spotted fever is widespread in many tick-infested areas east of the Rockies. He found that a newly recognized fever in this country was identical to Australian Q fever. He helped develop a vaccine against typhus fever, after he and others discovered that the disease is transmitted from rats to man by fleas.

And in the course of his work, he contracted several laboratory infections, including typus, Q fever and erysipelas.

Dr. Dyer received his medical degree in 1915 from the University of Texas, and practiced medicine for six years before joining the Public Health Service.

Mrs. Pomeroy To Be Buried At Hopewell

Private funeral services will be held at Hopewell, N. J., for Mrs. Elizabeth E. Pomeroy, 68, of 1255 New Hampshire ave. nw., killed Tuesday in a fall from an incoming train near Union Station.

The services will be at the family's historic home at Hopewell, near Trenton, which was Washington's headquarters before the Battle of Monmouth. Burial will be in the family plot there.

The family has suggested that, instead of flowers, contributions be made to the American Cancer Society.

Mrs. Pomeroy's husband, Eugene C. Pomeroy, a retired Washington attorney, is related to Joseph Medill, one of the founders of the Chicago Tribune.

Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy were returning from a visit to their son, Livingston Pomeroy, who lives at the Hopewil House, when she vanished from the train.

Mrs. Pomeroy, born in Winter Park, Fla., had lived in Washington since her marriage about 1900. The couple had traveled through Europe and Asia.

Surviving, in addition to Mr. Pomeroy and the one son, are two daughters, Mrs. Josephine Marincola of Rome, Italy, whose husband is Baron Phillip Marincola, and Mrs. Catherine P. Collins of New York City.

Another son, Eugene C. Pomeroy, Jr., a former reporter of The Washington Post, was killed in Malaya during World War II after he joined the Indian Army as a captain.

Virginian to Succeed To Dr. Rustin's Pulpit

A Virginian who made his name in Texas will succeed the Rev. John W. Rustin as minister of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

The Rev. Albert P. Shirkey of St. Paul's Methodist Church, Houston, was named yesterday to the pulpit of the largest Methodist church in the East.

His appointment was announced by Bishop Charles Wesley Flint, in charge of the Washington area, with the consent of Bishop A. Frank Smith of the Houston area.

Dr. Shirkey is expected to take over his new pastorate early in October.

Dr. Rustin will leave the church after 14 years. He preaches his farewell sermon September 17, after which he will become minister of the Belmont Methodist Church in Nashville.

Dr. Shirkey, who served three years as pastor of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church, 3146 16th st. nw., preached as a guest minister of the Mount Vernon Place Church here on August 27.

The 46-year-old pastor is a native of Staunton, Va., and is regarded as one of the outstanding ministers of Methodism. He was graduated from Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., and Union Theological Seminary, Richmond. His degree of doctor of divinity came from Trinity Uinversity in San Antonio, Tex.

Dr. Shirkey came to Washington in 1935, as one of the brilliant young ministers of the Virginia Conference. He had served three small Virginia churches before then.

He greatly increased the membership of the Travis Park Methodist Church, San Antonio, where he served from 1938 to 1948 after leaving the Asbury Church here. He was named to the Houston Church last year.

His appointment here ends a month-long search by the Mount Vernon Place Church which has a membership of 4500.

During the past summer, Dr. Shirkey was director of the Religious Commission of the World Brotherhood in Strasbourg, France.

The new minister has served on many important committees of the Methodist Church, and was secretary of the Crusade for Christ. He has been for many years a Protestant adviser of the National Conference of Christians and Jews. He is married and has three sons.

Cumberland Bans Red Publications on Streets

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 6 (AP). It is now against the law to sell or give away Communist publications on the streets of Cumberland.

An ordinance passed by the mayor and council last night by a unanimous vote also provides that all local Communists must register themselves as such a city hall.

The ordinance was passed after a stormy, 90-minute session frequently interrupted by jeers and cheers. It took several police to preserve order.

Philip Frankfeld of Baltimore, chairman of the Maryland-District of Columbia Communist Party, was booed roundly by most of the 90 spectators who crowded into the council chamber when he described the law as "the picayune, hysterical, peanut ordinance."

Thomas B. Finan, a spokesman for the American Legion, urged its passage, saying:

"Let not the mayor and council sell our common sense and heritage short."

The measure had the backing of several veterans' organizations and other groups.

Besides Frankfeld, three other Communists argued against passage. One was George Meyers, Labor Secretary of the State Communist Party. He said the ordinance is "pro-Fascist."

The other two who told the council they were Communists identified themselves as Arthur Schuesterman and Boyd Coleman, both of Cumberland.

Under the ordinance, each violation is punishable by a fine of from $10 to $100 or, if the fine is not paid, a jail sentence of from 10 to 30 days.

Brazilians Celebrate Holiday

By Elizabeth Maguire

TODAY is the national holiday of Brazil. Members of the Brazilian colony will be received by the Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco at the embassy between the hours of 5 and 7.

One eminent caller will doubtless be Admiral Flavio Medeiros, Chief of Staff of the Brazilian Navy, who is in Washington for several days before going on a tour of United States Navy installations.

Last evening the admiral and his three aides, Comdr. Fernando Carlos de Mattos, Lieut. Comdr. Francisco Maia, jr., and Lieut. Oyama Sonnefeld de Mattos, were honored at a buffet supper party given by Rear Admiral and Mrs. Milton E. Miles in the garden of their home at Kenwood.

The admiral's flag flew until sundown from a miniature yardarm set up in the rose garden. Guests, numbering 28 were seated at small tables on the lawn. The menu was very American, including corn on the cob, soda pop, and ice cream.

Another Brazilian party is the reception which the Brazilian Ambassador to the Organization of American States and Senhora Accioly will hold this evening at their Spring Valley home from 9 to midnight for members of the colony.

Brazil's national day dates back to September 7, 1822, when Dom Pedro I declared Brazil independent from Portugal. For the succeeding 67 years Brazil was ruled as an empire. In 1889 the country became a republic.

YESTERDAY was Nebraska Day, and it was celebrated here at a small dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Trester at the Carlton Hotel. Nebraskans invited to the party were Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Francis P. Matthews, Senator Hugh A. Butler, Senator and Mrs. Kenneth S. Wherry, Representative and Mrs. Karl Stefan, Representative and Mrs. Arthur Lewis Miller, the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Otto Seyferth, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Johnson.

VISITORS HONORED:

LORD MACKINTOSH of Halifax, visitor from London, was the guest in whose honor the Undersecretary of the Treasury, Edward H. Foley, jr., entertained yesterday at a luncheon in the Carlton Room of the Carlton Hotel. Vernon L. Clark, assistant to the Secretary and national director of the United States savings bonds division, was joint host with Mr. Foley. Lord Mackintosh, chairman of the National Savings Committee of England and Wales, was in Washington just for the day, returning in the afternoon to New York, whence he will sail shortly for England.

MISS MARY ANN BRUMBAUGH of Westport, Conn., is visiting her fiance, James Grant Hellmuth, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hellmuth, on Military rd. Miss Brumbaugh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Brumbaugh, and her wedding will take place September 30 in Westport. Fred Vinson, jr., South Trimble 3d, and James Crane, all of Washington, will serve as ushers.

WEDDING BELLS:

John Hugh Adam Watson, new First Secretary at the British Embassy, is moving into a new home in October with a new bride. The diplomat will wed Miss Katharine Ann Campbell Saturday in the First Church of Wenham, Mass., and after a wedding trip in the Adirondacks, the couple will come to Washington.

Miss Campbell is the daughter of William R. Campbell and the late Mrs. Campbell of Wenham, and she is a cousin of the United States Ambassador to London, Lewis Douglas. She met Mr. Watson while stationed in London with the Office of International Finance of the United States Treasury.

Mr. Watson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Watson of Chaindon Old Manor, Sussex, England. He attended Rugby and Kings College, Cambridge, and in 1937 he entered the Foreign Office, serving in Bucharest, Cairo and Moscow.

DIPLOMATIC DOINGS:

NASROLLAH ENTEZAM, new bachelor ambassador of Iran, will arrive in town this morning by train from New York. The Ambassador has served as Minister of Foreign Affairs for his country and more recently as head Iranian delegate to United Nations.

THE AMBASSADOR of Pakistan, M. A. H. Ispahani, will entertain tonight at a buffet dinner for Maulana S. M. Abdul Aleem Siddiqui Al-Quadiri, eminent Islamic theologian, who is visiting here from Karachi. The dinner will be a stag party at 7:30 o'clock at the embassy. Guests will include heads of missions of Middle East countries and representatives of the Moslem population in Washington.

On Friday evening, Mr. Siddiqui will lecture at the Middle East Institute on "Principles of Islam."

NEWS FROM VACATIONERS:

MRS. JOAN HALEY of Alexandria has returned from a vacation in New England where she spent two days as the guest of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge at Northampton, Mass. The former First Lady is reported in fine fettle, civic minded and interested in the World Series. She wears her snow-white hair brushed back in waves, and her eyes have a pretty sparkle. Always well dressed, Mrs. Coolidge looked specially well in a coral red boucle suit with three strand choker pearls.

SCOTT KIRKPATRICK entertained in Atlantic City recently at a buffet supper party held at the pool of the Brighton Hotel. Guest of honor was Nita Naldi, queen of the silent movies and leading lady of the late Rudolph Valentino. Miss Naldi has just returned to the United States after living in Europe a number of years.

PROUD PARENTS:

A FUTURE Washington debutante, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Clinton Keith, was born Saturday, September 2, at Greenwich Hospital, Greenwich, Conn. Mrs. Keith is the former Miss Jocelyn Freer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Freer of this city.

District Fashion Show Merry-Go-Round Opens Annual Autumn Whirl

By Peggy Preston

SEPTEMBER'S first week sees Washington's fashion show merry-go-round warming up for its usual autumn whirl.

Most of the big charity-sponsored shows will not take place until later in the season. But in shops and hotels the sleek, trim clothes of fall, 1950, are already being paraded by an array of slim, young models.

Novel note in today's roster of showings is struck by New York Designer Janice Milan, who is in town to help model her own fall collection at Woodward & Lothrop's. Miss Milan, who makes clothes that are especially pleasing to the young career girl, will officiate at a series of informal shows throughout the day, beginning at 10:30 a. m.

MODEL DESIGNER — Janice Milan, whose name is found on the label of popular career girl fashions, is in Washington today to officiate at an all-day showing of her fall collection at Woodward & Lothrop's. Here she models one of her own designs, a one-piece torso frock of worsted jersey

Miss Milan's apprenticeship in the fashion field began several years ago when she was attending law school. In her spare time she worked as a model, and her interest in law gradually diminished as she became increasingly fascinated by the many and varied aspects of the fashion world.

In due course she dropped her law studies, became a full time sample and showroom model. As such she gleamed a basic knowledge of fabrics, design and production. Later, she worked her way up to the position of sales manager of her firm, then stepped out on her own as a designer.

One of her self-appointed jobs is to travel from city to city, presiding at her own fashion shows, and doubling at her old love, modeling. She is frequently accompanied by her teen-age daughter, Florence, whose ambition is to follow her mother's profession.

THOSE of you who plan to sew-your-own fashions this fall will be interested in the current series of showings in the fabric department at Lansburgh's. Opening yesterday, they will be continued today at 11 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. Miss Hildegarde Stephens, stylist for a nationally known pattern company, will be commentator.

"Corner Drugstore" is the title of today's teen-age fashion show which Lansburgh's will present at 11 a. m. in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower. Showing their "fountain favorites" will be students of local junior and senior high schools, members of the store's Teen Fashion Board.

REGULAR Saturday luncheon-fashion shows open this week in the Crystal Room at the Willard. Phyllis Bell, director of the Phyllis Bell School of Modeling, will emcee the show each week, her students playing the role of models. Eleanor Lee, Director of Public Service, WTOP, will be co-commentator this Saturday. Fashions will be from the Jenny Shoppe.

Penwomen to Hear Mrs. W. R. Chapline

Mrs. W. Ridgely Chapline of Washington will be guest speaker September 8 when the Alexandria Branch, National League American Pen Women, resume their activities with a luncheon meeting at the George Mason Hotel.

Mrs. Chapline has lectured in the United Sates and abroad. While in Europe she was the guest of the Buiten Zorg (Girl Guide Hostel) and photographed Queen Juliana and the Princess Irene . . . both mother and daughter are ardent members of the organization. Mrs. Chapline assembled and edited 3000 feet of colored movies of the Girl Guides. She has also made films of the Queen of England and Princess Margaret.

Just How Glamorous Can Make-up Be?

Fifth day of Margaret's two weeks' beauty program
By Ann Lawrence

COMES THE formal dance and the college miss wants a more glamorous make-up than she usually wears around the campus.

The question is just how glamorous can such a make-up be, without appearing artificial? Too much make-up is not a sign of sophistication, but rather, of bad grooming, and can make the wearer look "hard" and old beyond her years.

To show Margaret that she can wear more cosmetics than her usual powder and lipstick, when the occasion demands, she was given a complete course in make-up, from powder base to the finishing touch of eye shadow.

Her powder base had to be light, non-greasy and non-clogging to the pores. It had to give color to her face, for naturally she is rather pale and under night lights, her face is drained of almost all its color. At the same time, the base would have to tone down her freckles, without seeming to mask her whole face.

To accomplish this triple purpose, a foundation with a firmer-than-cream consistency was chosen. Yet this one is so light of texture that it cannot be felt on the skin. It is applied with the fingertips.

She started by placing dots at strategic points . . . two at the base and one on each side of her neck, another on her chin, one at each side of the jawline, one in the center of each cheek and one in the middle of her forehead. Then using a light motion of her fingertips, she worked from her neck up to her forehead, spreading the cream easily and smoothly over the entire surface. She paid special attention to her temples and the area just in front of her ears, for these spots the amateur usually overlooks.

When she finished, she was delighted with her skin's smooth, mat-like surface. Her freckles had almost entirely disappeared. The golden-sun color of the base seemed to bring out the blue of her eyes and the lights of her auburn hair.

Then we handed Margaret a mirror. Look at the back of your neck, she was told. There, plainly, she could see a streak where she had not blended the base around her ears and at the back of her neck. There were two definitely different tones of skin. It was easy to remedy, of course. Just another dot of base at the far sides of her neck, smoothed out until there was no noticeable difference.

With short hair, the base must extend far back and delicately fade out, or you won't match up, coming and going

Hooked Rug Exhibit Opens 'Y' Program

The Alexandria YWCA will begin its fifth year September 11. Fall and winter activities will include classes for women and business girls, children, Y-Teen boys and girls; a wide variety of educational, social and service programs.

Women's activities will open with an exhibit September 11 at 8 p. m. of the hooked rugs made in YWCA classes during the past years. Mrs. Augustine Bresnahan, instructor, and four judges will award ribbons for the best rugs. Dr. R. Ferrell Mrs. E. R. McIntyre, Mrs. A. S. Doremus and Mrs. Ruth Glotfelty, all of whom hook rugs, will serve as judges. Anyone who is interested in submitting a rug in the guest division may do so by bringing the rug to the YWCA, 126 N. St. Asaph st. during the day on September 11.

The popular Ladies Day Out program will be continued Tuesday and Wednesday mornings, 10-12 a. m., with child care for children under school age. Tuesday morning women may have their choice of classes—art taught by Mrs. Sigsbee Gilham, hooked rugs taught by Mrs. Augustine Bresnahan, ceramics taught by Mrs. Roy Wilson, and textile painting taught by Mrs. George Lovejoy.

Wednesday morning there is shorthand taught by Mrs. W. M. Van Sant, sewing taught by Mrs. Charles Bilisoly and advanced textile painting. Evening activities include: bridge by Mrs. J. C. Williams (Monday); art by Mrs. Sigsbee Gilham (Monday); tole tray painting by Miss M. Manning (Tuesday); hooked rugs by Mrs. A. Brensahan (Wednesday); Business Girl's Club, Miss Beth James (Wednesday); ceramics and sewing by Mrs. Anna White (Thursday).

Mary Haworth's Mail

Woman Ends Visit With Married Daughter When They Spat About Child Training; 13-Year-Old Needs Discipline, Grandma Feels; Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I will state my problem as briefly as possible, then anxiously await your reply. I am the grandmother of three little girls, the eldest 13. My daughter has never allowed any interference in the rearing of her girls and I have respected her ruling.

On a recent visit to their summer home I was shocked to learn that little Rose, the 13-year-old, is being allowed to have dates with a boy friend, and to sit out in his car after an evening movie, until 1 or 2 a. m. My daughter thought it was all so cute—little Rose having her first romance. That being her attitude, I held my peace.

One evening during my stay Rose had a party for her friends; and my daughter insisted that the balance of the family go to a show, so the youngsters wouldn't think they were being "spied" on. That certainly isn't the way I reared my daughter, as I commented to her; but evidently she considered it none of my business, so I said no more.

Should Grandma Curtail Favors?

The following morning, immediately after breakfast my grandchild Rose prepared to go out for the day, without helping to wash up her party dishes or straighten up the house. That was just too much for me. I called her back and told her to wash the dishes and I would dry them. I told her she was enjoying privileges as a member of the family, and should share the work of the family as a member also.

To my embarrassment, my daughter told her to go play, and after Rose was out of earshot, Maude gave me a good scolding. I suddenly realized that the only interest I am allowed in my grandchildren is as baby-sitter. I am often called upon to baby-sit a week at a time, while Maude goes off with her husband on one of his business trips.

After the scolding I packed my bags and came home. We parted friends, but inasmuch as Maude wants a hands-off policy, I wonder if I should make that my policy, too? Next time I am asked to baby-sit, should I politely decline, on the pretext that I have other plans? Or should I make it plain that I grant no more favors where the children are concerned? They are financially comfortable and can well afford a baby-sitter. Please help me.

R. R.

Present Policy Isn't Advisable

DEAR R. R.: It seems to me that your daughter's policy with her 13-year-old is dangerously loose, the kind of thing that produces rotted character in the so-called "best of families." This business of the child's being allowed to sit out in a car with a boy, after a movie date, until 1 or 2 a. m., is pathetic and ridiculous, also in the worst of taste.

I suppose your daughter thinks she is encouraging early growth of naturally good behavior in her child and that child's friends, by giving them a feeling of being free agents, fully vested with their parents' trust, in the matter of having romance—via unchaperoned parties and late-parking dates. Also I suppose Maude says to herself, "Children are only young once, let them have their fun," as she excuses Rose from the work of cleaning up after kid parties, so that Rose may go play.

And I believe Maude's laxity along these lines represents revolt against the relentless training in decorum and duty that she got in her childhood. The training you gave her, in other words; which is the kind you feel your grandchildren should have. Maybe you went to one extreme; but certainly she has gone to the other; and in blindly fighting your ideas, she is making herself a poor mother. Or rather say, she is manifesting serious immaturity, the result of an overly supervised, inwardly resentful early experience.

Daughter Still Feels Immature

Because her emotions and judgment aren't ripe, she can't be much more than a child in relation to her own progeny. And I suppose there's an element of tasting forbidden fruit—from the viewpoint of her childhood—in her fond enjoyment of Rose's "cute little first romance." It takes a lot of doing, to give children the firm guidance and flexible discipline required to build in conservative substance of character. It is an assignment that must be worked at and thought about, deeply, every day; and Maude is letting this arduous teacher-guardian duty go by default, mostly.

So much for the background (as I see it) of your spat with Maude. Perhaps this slant on her mistaken tactics may help you to feel less miffed at her. And if she reads this discussion it may relax her resistance to your views. For advice, don't stop baby sitting if you enjoy it and have the time for it, or find it a means of being a good influence on the granddaughters. However, if it seems a tiresome thankless task, by all means politely excuse yourself, but don't have a sulky break with Maude. When you think she's wrong, speak out if you like; then take her rejoinder in good part, even if she's rude and wrong again.

Where the Bus Stops at F

Ask Anne

Today's $64 Question Is: What's Difference Between A Cornice and a Valance?

What is the difference between a cornice and a valance? Could cornices be made of cardboard, then covered with material?

A. L. T., Arlington.

Valances and cornices give very much the same effect. Both are top finishes for windows that serve to cover fixtures, give a unified effect to the draperies, sometimes to broaden or shorten the apparent length of windows.

Cornices, though, are hard affairs, usually made of wood or metal, while valances are strips of fabric, gathered, draped or in plain flat shape.

Usually, cornices are painted, but sometimes they are covered with wallpaper or fabric. If you are clever at household engineering, you might devise and put up one of heavy cardboard covered with fabric.

Better, I think, would be a valance with buckram inside to stiffen it. You'd have to put up a valance board to hold it, though. This is a narrow board the length of the window width. It is nailed to the top of the window frame to make a ledge that sticks out. To this your valance is tacked so that it will hang down over the top of the draperies. Instructions for putting up the board and making the valance of fabric and buckram are in the "Singer Sewing Book," by Mary Brooks Pickens (Singer). You can find this at the Public Library.

DEAR ANNE:

I am being married soon and the wedding will be formal. My friends have given me a miscellaneous wedding shower and I would like to know if shower gifts should be displayed at the wedding reception, along with wedding gifts.

Lollie, Maryland Park, Md.

It's perfectly proper to display the shower gifts, too. Arrange them all on one table or mix them in with other gifts, as you wish. (Only exception would be lingerie and the like, which are too personal to include.)

DEAR ANNE:

About the recent discussion in your column on where to buy the little baskets for "Coeur a la Creme," a shop in Georgetown has them on order and expects some from France this month. (The telephone number is Michigan 1919.) They will take special requests, to be filled when the baskets arrive.

A Reader, Washington.

DEAR ANNE:

Please tell me the proper way and wording to reply to a wedding and wedding reception invitation. I am especially in doubt about the closing and signature, if any. The invitation is sent to Mr. and Mrs. ——.

Arlington Woman Explains Why

Red Cross Disaster Workers Are Always On Call

By Sonia Stein

MRS. RUTH SEARLE packed her bag last February to go on a disaster call for the Red Cross and didn't recross her own threshold in Arlington Village until August.

As one of the American Red Cross' disaster workers, Mrs. Searle never knows where she's going until a sharp ring of the telephone alerts her for an assignment somewhere — anywhere there happens to be trouble. In less than 24 hours she has to cancel her appointments, cut off household deliveries, pack her suitcase, say goodbye to her family and be on her way.

From one disaster area, she may be assigned directly to another. That's what happened to Mrs. Searle this spring. From a flood-ravaged area in Missouri, she went to one in Minnesota. From there she went to West Virginia before returning home.

Reports of a hurricane headed for the United States East Coast had her hanging nervously at the radio in late August. She was hoping there would be no disaster call until after her son's wedding, September 2.

But now that she has safely dispatched her son and his bride in a shower of rice, she's ready for another assignment, anywhere, anytime.

MRS. SEARLE loves her job and it's easy to see why. A warm-hearted person who finds people "fascinating," she is in a key position to help people in need. After many years of social work in Detroit where funds were scarce, Mrs. Searle enjoys being able to help storm-tossed people with the funds of the vast organization that the Red Cross is.

"Americans are a nation of givers, and it is through their generosity that the Red Cross replenishes the funds which must flow out continuously for needy cases," Mrs. Searle points out, yet it's surprising how few of these Americans who give the money are aware that the Red Cross is constantly using it in rehabilitation work. Those in stricken areas who need help find out, but it's a grim way to learn.

Mrs. Searle has often been surprised at how little most people understand about the Red Cross. Often they will say, "Yes, I need help but I'm not in a position to pay the Red Cross back." They are astonished to find that repayment is not necessary. (The next year's Red Cross drive in disaster areas always shows a sympathetic increase, however.)

THE RED CROSS tries to "meet need" rather than replace loss, in handling disasters. A man with two children in a 10-room house will certainly not be given a 10-room house to replace the one he lost in a flood. But he will be given a house large enough to accomodate his family. The rehabilitation work is costly—over $150,000 was dispensed within five weeks in the flood area between Parkersburg and Clarksburg, W. Va. this summer—so it must be handled by experienced personnel who recognize a sharp dodge when they see one.

One case involved a man who asked for furniture to replace some he'd lost in the flood. Since he had a number of small children, he was granted emergency beds, stove and other furniture. But investigation showed that the man had not actually lost anything in the flood. He'd been dispossessed for failure to pay his rent, and had his furniture safely stored away in a boarded up house.

Such cases are very rare indeed, Mrs. Searle says. Most people try to draw on their own resources. One widow who did housework to support herself and her daughter, asked for emergency bedding and furniture. Her case was clearly legitimate and a purchasing order was made out for her. But she came back later that day and said she'd found a way to manage without the Red Cross' help.

"Everybody's been very nice to me. Friends have given me furniture, and I had $50 in the bank." The woman who had nothing in the world but $50 and a considerate heart, spent her funds rather than take help from the Red Cross because "somebody else might need it worse than I do."

FILLING the needs of disaster victims is by no means a cut-and-dried job. The Red Cross, gigantic organization though it is, is human enough to realize that a radio is a necessity to a bedridden invalid. A piano is not a necessity to one household, but to a piano teacher it certainly is. Money for clothing is apportioned according to need: The girl on the farm and the girl who attends high school in town clearly have different requirements.

The Red Cross even takes into consideration such niceties as plumbing. The family with indoor plumbing before the flood, gets indoor plumbing after the flood. Those who got along without it before, get along without it afterward.

BASING its handling of disasters on 68 years' experience with 4400 major disasters, the Red Cross has formulated rules which stand pretty well under most circumstances. But periodic four or five day conferences with disaster workers are held in each area to see what new ideas may have been gleaned. "Often the conferences are broken up by disaster calls," Mrs. Searle remarks. Since the Red Cross considers any emergency affecting more than five families and which the community cannot handle, a national disaster, the staff is kept busy hopping—by train, plane and muddy automobile.

Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

WHEN A RED CROSS disaster worker gets an assignment, she has to pack, cancel all her appointments, kiss her family goodbye and be out the door within 24 hours. Mrs. Ruth Searle of Arlington Village has done it many times, responding to disaster calls in all parts of the Nation

Immediate relief—emergency feeding and mass shelters—is usually taken care of by volunteer workers of the community who are already on hand and who know the community resources best. The out-of-town workers take over the rehabilitation phase, doing what they can to keep the money spent right within the community, since that helps to rehabilitate industry in the community.

"SOMETIMES I think I've lived my whole life to do this kind of work," Mrs. Searle says, with a glow in her nice blue eyes. She had left the Red Cross last year after serving in England as a club director during the war, and then in Washington as a worker with returning medical cases. And she had broken her back and was in a heavy cast. Quite settled down you might think. But when she got a chance to do disaster work, she fretted and fumed over her back injury and was on her way to the flood in Missouri the day after the cast was removed.

Her son had to scout through the closets to dig out summer clothes for his wandering mother when winter turned to spring, and to summer and she still hadn't set foot in the door. (He's an old hand at buying clothes for his mother: He had to scour Washington last Christmas to get his mother two maternity dresses—something that would fit over the bulky cast so the ever-active Mrs. Searle wouldn't be tied to the house by a mere broken back.)

And he's used to having her away from home. When he was still in training as a pilot in Florida, during the war, his fellow cadets used to kid him because his mother was overseas with the Red Cross. "Looks like somebody had to go," they'd say.

DURING the worst phases of the disaster, the Red Cross workers are on 24-hour call, seven days a week. But they usually get several months off during the quiet season. They are not paid when they are not working, which is one reason some social workers do not feel they can afford to take such a job. And it is, of course, no job for anyone who must be with her family.

But, "It's a very satisfying job," Mrs. Searle says. And it's not lonely. The disaster workers get to know each other well and often meet again on new assignments. "We never say goodbye to each other, just so long," Mrs. Searle explains:

THOSE triple-vision mirrors are so uncompromising, revealing size, front and back view as it were . . . full effect.

"My, these sizes seem frightfully small—are you sure these are 16's?" you inquire suspiciously.

"They're 16's . . . but they do seem a bit snug," the salesgirl answers sympathetically. "I'll just see what else there is . . ."

In a few minutes she returns. "Let's see if you like these styles better," she says brightly.

Zipping smoothly into the first one, you say happily, "Well, this is more like it. Yes, this seems to be a perfect fit." Then suddenly suspicious, you ask, "What size is this?"

"That's an 18 . . ." adding hastily, "but they seem to run smaller."

"An 18!" you bristle indignantly. "Why I've never worn more than a 16 in my life . . . never!"

In self-defense you explain that you really haven't gained much weight . . . maybe 6 pounds . . . well, or 7. But a whole size larger is absurd. You conclude it must be the cut—clothes aren't like they were in the good old days.

TO SHOW what can happen over a summer of soft living . . . Let's say your spring outfit was a size 16 and it fitted just right . . . with a trifle easing through the waist and over the hips. But the necessity for the easing meant you were crowding that size. Then the accumulation of just a few extra pounds will force you into a larger size.

Loss of muscle tone, as well as the extra weight, figures in. Soft muscles bulk out . . . in other words, they take up more space and more material.

If you decide to take the 18, don't rationalize that the dresses run smaller this season. The sizes are the same—you're not. Why not trim down those 6 pounds and added inches—new fat is easy to lose—then you can slip into your regular size.

Bank Earnings Set New Peak In Six Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Operating earnings of Federal Reserve member banks in the Fifth District reached a new high of $74,441,000 in the first six months this year.

This was a gain of 7.4 percent over the $69,342,000 in the same 1949 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night.

The figures are from 478 regional banks, including the 17 member Reserve banks in Washington.

Total expenses for the half year were $44,603,000, against $42,339,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Net profits of $19,299,000 stood at 9.5 percent of average total capital accounts, against net of $17,214,000 or 8.9 percent during the similar 1949 period.

Accounting for the major part of the earnings increase was the continued expansion in bank loans, which stood at a record high of $1,733,000,000 on June 30, or 13.7 percent above that of mid-1949.

Cash dividends, though increased 7.1 percent over the like 1949 period, were actually at an annual rate of 3 percent of total capital accounts. Member banks of this district clearly were strengthening their capital positions, since they carried more than two thirds of their net profits this year to surplus.

HONORED: Bond Geddes, retired executive vice president of the Radio-Television Manufacturers Association, was honored yesterday with election to life membership in the Washington Trade Association Executives at a luncheon in the Mayflower. Robert C. Hibben, W.T.A.E. president, cited Geddes' part in elevating the trade association movement. Geddes was a charter member of W.T.A.E. in 1928 and has been an officer and committee member under many administrations. Before entering trade association work, Geddes was manager of the Washington bureau of the United Press and later was chief of the Capitol staff of the Associated Press.

PRICE HIKES: Television price increases, ranging from $5 to $55 a set, were put into effect yesterday by seven makers. They were Motorola, Zenith, Crosley, Hallicrafters, Olympic, Tele-Tone and Air King. It was the second round of increases for Zenith and also on some of the Tele-Tone models. Boosted costs of materials of components were given as the principal reason.

BIG ORDER: The Pennsylvania Railroad has ordered an additional 214 Diesel-electric road freight and passenger locomotives and switchers. They will cost about 55 million dollars and are expected to be received by June, 1951. The new equipment, along with a 39-million-dollar order for 226 Diesel-electric locomotives placed last November, will enlarge the Pennsy's Diesel fleet to 1034 locomotives. And it will increase the total cost of the railroad's program since 1947 for new rolling stock, including freight cars, to 488 million dollars.

EARNINGS: Ingersoll-Rand reported net income of $7,347,090 or $3.62 a common share for the six months ended June 30, against $9,767,009 or $4.82 a share in same 1949 period. Other earnings statements:

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Sept. 6 (AP)—Wheat drifted lower after a steady opening and wound up with losses extending to more than a cent on the Board of Trade today.

Oats also sank for moderate losses, but the rest of the market held up well enough without showing any pronounced strength. The best performance was turned in by lard, which spurted from the opening song in line with gains of cottonseed oil at New York.

Wheat ended ⅜ to 1⅛ lower; corn, ⅜ lower to ⅛ higher; oats, ⅛ to 1⅛ lower; rye unchanged to ⅝ lower; soybeans, ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, and lard, 13 to 28 cents a hundred pounds higher.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP).—Cotton futures established new season's highs for the second consecutive session today.

In early dealings gains extended to almost $3 a bale. But when prices exceeded 40.50 cents a pound in nearby deliveries, the market encountered increased hedging and profit taking brought moderate recessions.

Final prices were $1.80 a bale higher to 15 cents lower.

The new crop months sagged on news that legislation to tighten controls on cotton acreage has been deferred which will probably mean no restrictions on the 1952 crop. Unfavorable crop news continued to stimulate trade demand for futures.

275-Pound Bundle of Joy

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

LITTLE FELLOW—Born September 2 in the Rome zoo, this baby elephant, named Remo, tipped the scales at 275 pounds. His mother is Juliet, the first elephant ever to give birth to two calves in captivity. Her first born, Roma, now two years old, weighed 242 pounds at birth and now weighs over half a ton. Zoo attendants are helping Remo to his feet shortly after he was born. Elephant mothers usually kill young born to them in captivity

Hardy of Virginia Heads Unit To Check on Defense Spending

A Virginian will direct a House group in a new job of checking on the expanding program of defense buying.

Representative Hardy (D., Va.) and the Government operations subcommittee he heads as chairman have been given the task of watching the spending of new defense funds.

Similar work was done during World War II by a Senate committee headed by President Truman while he was a senator.

Chairman Dawson (D., Ill.) of the committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments said Hardy's subcommittee was selected to do the work rather than have it done by a special subcommittee.

In a statement for the Congressional record, Dawson said Hardy's group "has worked very hard during the Eighty-first Congress and has brought about in a workman-like manner many important improvements in government operations.

"This subcommittee has proved by its past actions that its members, both Democrats and Republicans, are interested in getting a job done and not in grabbing headlines," he added.

"We, therefore, decided that this important assignment would be given to Chairman Hardy and his subcommittee on Government operations."

Other members of the subcommittee are Representatives Bolton (D., Md.), Burnside (D., W. Va.), Bolling (D., Mo.), Shelley (D. Calif), Hoffman (R., Mich.), Riehlman (R., N. Y.), and Lovre (R., S. Dak.).

Hardy said the spending of large amounts of money in relatively short periods of time causes "an unusual impact upon the economy of the United States"

Arlington Board Approves Purchase of Fire Building

The Arlington County Board last night voted unanimously to take over the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department building and convert it into a headquarters for the Arlington Fire Department.

The building, at 10th and N. Hudson sts., Arlington, was offered by the Clarendon Fire Department board of trustees for a payment of $75 a month for 20 years. They stipulated that a room for the use of the Clarendon volunteer organization be provided in that building or in any future building constructed as an Arlington headquarters.

The board also voted to allow the Arlington School Board to borrow $200,000 at a rate not exceeding 1¼ percent interest to meet current operating expenses. The money will be paid back out of current taxes.

Later in the meeting, Board Chairman Daniel A. Dugan turned to the Griffenhagen report—a "critical examination" of the county's police department made by a public administration consulting firm at the request of City Manager A. T. Lundberg.

The Griffenhagen report makes 14 major recommendations for improvement of the Police Department, including proposals for one-man scout cars, better public relations and stronger supervision within departments.

Dugan called the report, submitted to the Board on August 26, "stupid, idiotic and childish."

He criticized the $1800 report for not being specific and said he would "not vote to appropriate one single dollar for payment" until the Griffenhagen Associates make clear exactly what is wrong with the department and give their recommendations for improving it.

Board Member Mrs. Florence Cannon disagreed "entirely" with Dugan. She said the report could not be expected to "name names." While it is "not a condemnation" of the police department, it points out things that are wrong with the department and gives proposals for improving it, she said.

City Manager Lundberg stated that he has requested the Washington consulting firm to send a man to go over the report with the board.

A three-member committee, appointed by the Board upon a proposal by Mrs. Cannon, is at present investigating the police department but has not as yet made its report.

Bechtel in County Board Race Again

Jacob C. Bechtel, 73, of 5931 S. Carlyn Springs rd., Arlington, yesterday entered the November 7 race for a vacant seat on the Arlington County Board. The filing deadline was last night.

A carpenter and an Arlington resident since 1922, Bechtel will run as an independent against incumbent board chairman Daniel Dugan, a nonpartisan, and Democratic nominee Fred Bach. Bechtel polled 113 of a total 6815 votes cast in last year's county board election, won by Robert W. Cox.

Wool Fabric Prices Boosted for Third Time Since June

NEW YORK, Sept. 6, (AP)—Price advances on men's wear worsted fabrics for next spring were posted today by American Woolen Co.

The increases amounted to 42½ cents a yard on popular priced line worsted, and 47½ cents a yard on higher-end Puritan Mills worsteds.

Today's action was the third increase by American Woolen in its lines since last June 1. It brings the total advance on popular priced line worsteds since that date to 80 cents a yard, and on the higher-end to $1 a yard.

The new prices will apply to the company's lines for delivery in the first quarter of next year.

Woolen and worsted fabric manufacturers have pointed to sharply rising raw wool costs as making price increases necessary.

Naval Stores

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 6 (AP).—TURPENTINE—81¼ cents; offerings and sales, 640; receipts, 464; shipments, 131; stocks, 11,468.

15 Are Charged In Prince Georges Gambling Raid

A raid on a Tuxedo, (Md.) social club early Sunday netted 15 persons and a quantity of gambling equipment and liquor, Prince Georges County police revealed yesterday.

As a result of the raid on the Sportsmen's Club, 5550 Tuxedo rd., Seymour Whitcup, of that address, was charged with selling liquor without a license and released under $500 bond for appearance in Hyattsville Police Court September 14.

The other 14 were charged with disorderly conduct and released after posting $8.50 collateral each. Whitcup also faces an earlier charge of selling without a license. He is to appear September 15 in Marlboro Police Court, police said.

Rhode Island in State Of War Emergency

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 6 (U.P.).—Rhode Island officially was under a state of war emergency today with the newly organized State civil defense council planning appropriate action.

Gov. John O. Pastore said he proclaimed the emergency "because of unsettled conditions prevailing throughout the world and more particularly of the conflict in Korea."

'Crime Does Not Pay,' And He Can Prove It

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6 (AP).—Garry A. Juljev, 20, with a record of five terms in State institutions, was jailed again today on grand theft charges.

As he changed into prison garb, the jailers noted this legend tattooed on his left thigh:

"Crime does not pay."

MASTER OF ALL!

Located in exclusive Hillwood. When you see this home you will know what we mean. If it's luxury living you are looking for, by all means call for appointment. Situated gracefully on a gorgeous ½ acre of velvet green, beautifully studded with shrubs and trees, you will see this most impressive home. The architecture in general is English Tudor, constructed of solid 12-inch stone walls, thick slate roof and steel joints with concrete subfloor. Entering the home across from the front door, you will see a gracious living room, 18x25, with fireplace; huge formal dining room, oversized kitchen, 1st floor bath and pine-paneled den with fireplace. From the same side hall we have a winding staircase to 2d floor where there are 4 bedrooms and 2 baths; plus huge dressing room off the master suite. There's also a stairway at the end so the smaller bedroom and bath could be used for maid's room. Full basement with asphalt tiled floor and ½ bath. 2-car attached garage. Total price, $45,000.

Play Can Be More Important Than Study

(This is the fifth of a series directed to parents whose children are about to start to school. Dr. Hymes is Professor of Education at George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. These articles were selected from "Three To Six," just published by Public Affairs Committee, New York.)

By James L. Hymes, Jr.

CHAPTER FIVE

Starting-to-school children love to play. You have found this out in your living-room and kitchen and yard and in the grocery store!

This age loves make-believe and building and running and jumping and touching and seeing and trying. They are building roads or airports or stores or hospitals or filling stations.

They are "driving" boats or planes or horses or cars. They are pilots or cowboys or mother or doctors, mailmen or truck drivers or cops.

A good school doesn't say: "Let's change them."

A good school doesn't say: "No more play for you now. You are old enough—or you ought to be—to get down to serious work."

A really good school wants children to play. It wants to capitalize on play. Its idea is: give them the space and the materials and the experiences so they can play more and better.

Play is in the young child's nature. This is what young children find it natural to do. Good schools try to make the most of it.

Kinds of Play Important

Play is the nursery school business. It is the center of a good kindergarten too. And 6-year-olds are also play-children—we tend to forget that.

They all love play, but play of a special brand. Look at your child again and you will see what kind fits him.

Play for this age is not the "organized game." These children can't take rules and regulations, even simple ones. This age is too individual and too self-assertive to fit comfortably into any one else's game. They want to make up their own.

They can enjoy a little bit of "ring-around-the-rosie" and "London Bridge is falling down." But think for a second and you will know: children never organize these games themselves. And they don't want a steady diet of them. It is something else they are after.

Their Own Ideas

Play for this age is not simple amusement, either: wind-up toys and expensive gadgets that do all kinds of tricks. Young children can get some fun out of these but the thrill soon wears off. This age has too many ideas of its own to be content with being amused.

Nor is play sitting down quiet. Some people think: these are little children so they need little games. They drill youngsters day after day on little games, finger plays like: "Here is the church and here is the steeple" and "The itsy-bitsy spider went up the water spout."

Young children are amused for a while, but remember: this is an active age, brimming with its own notions.

Imaginative Varieties of Play

These children want raw materials: sand, water, blocks, paints, clay, boards, barrels, boxes . . . unshaped materials that they give their own form to.

These children want supplies that go along with these raw materials: boats and cars and planes (all simple), tricycles and wagons, tools of all kinds, dolls, costumes . . . supplies that they can use in their own way to shape the play as they want to.

These children want new ideas flowing into them: trips, stories, music they hear, new events and ideas, pictures . . . a framework for their play.

And these children want to be let alone. They want to work out their ideas in their way. They want to be on their own.

Remember your kitchen cupboard or your back yard, the attic or the garage, the old trunk or the bottom drawer that your child always gets into. You will know what the stuff of good play is.

Even when you know your child is like this, it is hard to be patient about play. We all seem to want our children to grow up quickly. We wonder if life should be all play and no work.

Good schools let children play, but they capitalize on play. Play is play but play is learning.

Schools don't say: Children only want to play . . . it is too bad we have to let them. They take a positive approach: These children like to play. Wonderful! There are lots of good learnings that come best that way.

Play teaches you to talk. Language grows and stretches, all the while you make-believe.

Play teaches you to plan. You learn to think ahead and organize, to fit things in where you want them to go, all the while you are pretending.

Play Features Cooperation

Play teaches you to work with others. You wait and you share, you give and you take.

Play makes the body strong. You are busy and active and bustling, all through your building and making and your spur-of-the-moment games.

Play makes you more curious. And play gives you facts.

There is nothing soft and easy here. Children love it, sure. This is their nature. But play, in a good school, is work. It is very different from no learning.

Schools are saying: Let us nail down the learnings we can get now. Let us make the most of these years and not let them slip away.

Friday: Children love to learn to read but you can't speed up their desire until they have "grown enough."

163d Battalion Leaves Friday For Michigan

The 163d Military Police Battalion of the District National Guard, which was federalized Sunday, leaves Washington Friday for an indefinite period of training at Camp Custer, near Battle Creek, Mich.

The group will parade at 12:15 p. m. from the Armory at 20th st., and East Capitol sts., to the B. & O. freight yards north of Eckington pl. ne. Lieut. Col. George O. Weber, commanding officer of the 163d, will head the parade, and the 257th Army Band will provide music.

The battalion, now part of the regular Army, consists of five companies. It is the third D. C. Guard unit to be ordered to active duty. An advance detail left for Fort Custer Monday.

Damage Suit Settled, Miss Bankhead Says

BEDFORD VILLAGE, N. Y., Sept. 6 (U.P.)—Tallulah Bankhead today said she had received a "substantial sum" for the unauthorized use of her name in a singing commercial in which "Tallulah the tube of shampoo" invited listeners to "take me home and squeeze me."

The actress had filed a one million dollar damage suit against Proctor & Gamble, NBC, CBS and Benton and Bowles advertising agency on the ground that everyone identified the name "Tallulah" with her. She would not reveal the amount of the settlement.

Has She the Time?

How Does Wife Stand On Daytime Video?

NEW YORK (NYHT).—In trying to fill profitably the hours before baseball and Howdy Doody, the television industry has asked: Does the housewife like, and does she have the time for, daylight television?

Last week brought a partial answer. Dr. Ernest Dichter, a psychiatrist who has been analyzing radio audiences for years, announced that he had been probing just that question and had come up with a finding. It was, in effect, that the housewife watches, but does not like to admit it.

"I don't have the time," most housewives told Dr. Dichter's investigators. Nevertheless, Dr. Dichter said, "There was definite evidence" they were watching daytime programs.

Then, Dr. Dichter aimed a psychological haymaker. The reason housewives say they don't like daytime television (even though they watch it) is that they have a "fear of loss of recognition as the 'sacrificing' and 'harried' member of the family."

All this leads to another paradox, according to Dr. Dichter. While wishing to be thought of as sacrificing, the little woman resents being considered merely as a housewife—she doesn't particularly like the programs presenting only domestic material. She will, however, find time to watch a show that treats her as a thinking citizen.

The end is not in sight. The paradoxes are in the hands of the television industry; it's up to them to carry the ball. Dr. Dichter thinks that eventually television will find ways to properly camouflage their entertainment to the housewife's taste. Possibly means will be found to induce women to shop, cook, clean house and rest at different hours than they do at present. As for the husband—he has nothing to lose but his meals.

NEW YORK (AP).—Red Barber's weekend college football roundup is returning to the CBS radio network this fall for its third season. But there will be some changes made.

For one thing, Red won't be in charge this time. He is turning that duty over to his partner, Connie Desmond, because he will be giving his attention to television football. However, he is expected to participate weekly at the end of each video assignment.

For another thing, the series will have its first sponsor. The start has been scheduled for October 7, to continue through the college season.

Red Barber

As in the past, the roundup is to consist of 20 games, five of which are direct live pickups. A half-dozen others will be covered in lesser detail and the rest will be handled on a summary basis.

Inaugurating the series in 1948, Red had to overcome considerable network skepticism over whether the plan would work. But he persisted, and with the help of listeners kept plugging until a successful format was worked out. One aim, it was explained, was intended as radio's answer to television coverage of football.

The Catholic Hour, now in its twenty-first radio year, is to change time on NBC October 1 after broadcasting at its present spot since its inauguration. The new assignment will be 2 p. m., four hours earlier. It was explained that the shift would enable a greater number of stations to carry the program.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Gold is on vacation. His column today takes the form of a letter to his managing editor.

Dear Boss:

Anybody who thinks Washington is a "boom town" ought to visit Detroit these days.

As you know, the auto industry has been working at full speed since the end of the war, to fill the demand for new cars. By the beginning of 1950, officials here thought they had just about reached a peacetime peak.

Since then, the Korean war and a brand new boom have been superimposed on the old. More than 75,000 additional jobs opened up, and the number of employed hit 1,141,000 for Detroit alone—well over two million for the State of Michigan. In this city, they figure that 96.1 percent of all employable persons have steady jobs.

If you're an experienced tool machinist, diemaker, electrician, pipefitter or pattern maker, Detroit is your oyster. Any auto plant in town will welcome you with open arms. In fact, skilled labor of almost every description is being snapped up wherever it can be found.

Like most industrial workers, Detroiters think money was meant to be spent. The result is that business is so good most merchants are ready to admit it's "not bad." Personally, I'd be willing to settle for one day's take at the huge J. L. Hudson Co. store on Woodward ave.

The Michigan State Fair is paying fabulous prices to bring in some of Hollywood's biggest names, on the sound theory that Detroit wants the best, and can afford it. Wherever you turn, you see unmistakable signs of prosperity.

Even the city's brand new war memorial is built on a lavish scale. It's a huge, severely modern edifice on the waterfront, providing offices and meeting rooms for the various veterans organizations.

A scale model in the lobby explains that the Veterans Memorial Building is part of the Detroit City Planning Commission's "master plan" for this end of town. Eventually, it's supposed to include a civic auditorium, convention hall, City-County Building and mall—complete with pool.

That City-County Building, incidentally, came off the architect's drawing board some 20 stories high and 536 feet long. When officials learned that it would cost 20 million, they sent the architects back to work with a sharper set of pencils, and asked them to please trim it down to the 16 million available.

You see, in spite of its prosperity, Detroit has other needs for its money. For one thing, the city is trying to get more than 87,000 of its residents out of slum areas.

Right now, noses are being counted in the 119-acre section of Lower Gratiot-Orleans, where some 2000 families will soon be evicted to make room for a modern housing project.

Some revealing statistics about these folks could give a sociologist subject matter for a book. Almost half of the slum families came to Detroit in the past 10 years; their average income is almost $3000 per family, and they pay less than an average $35 per month in rent—yet 85 percent of them have no savings whatever.

This is a terrible thing to say about anybody, boss, but it looks to me like they're even worse managers of money than newspapermen are.

—o—

We have just held a council of war, to decide on the remainder of our itinerary. I was in favor of heading down Telegraph Road to Toledo, and then over to Cleveland. Bernice suggested skirting the lake on the Canadian side, emerging at Niagra Falls.

"I vote for Canada, and that makes it two to one," ruled Walter. "Besides, you've always said you never had time for a honeymoon, so now you can go to Niagara Falls."

Bernice managed to keep a straight face. "That's an excellent idea, Walter," she said. "What every honeymoon needs is a 14-year-old kibitzer."

And that's how we came to pull up to the American side of the Ambassador Bridge to Windsor, Ont., and wonder what manner of border inquisition lay ahead of us.

We'd never been out of the country before, and prepared for the worst. But the whole thing took less than 5 minutes.

After we paid our 60-cent toll, we pulled to one side and answered a few simple questions about our citizenship, destination, plans and valuables.

We declared our cameras, a portable radio and the trusty coffee grinder on which I am writing these dispatches, were handed a travel permit, and that's all there was to it.

When we leave Canada, the guard explained, we'll surrender the permit and be asked whether we took the cameras, radio and typewriter back out with us. If we take out (refrain from selling here) everything we bring in, all will be well.

"What shall I do about my American dollars?" I asked.

"Spend them," grinned the guard. "What I mean," he added, "is that you don't have to take a wad to the bank and get it changed. You can spend your dollars as you go along, and the shops and restaurants and others will give you the legal premium on each transaction. You get $1.10 in Canadian money for each of your American dollars."

"Gee," said Walter, "eleven dimes for a dollar. This is the country for me."

He has a good point. I tendered a dollar in payment for a newspaper and got $1.05 in change. You can't beat that kind of business deal, boss.

Bill

P. S. Canadian parking meters work fine on American nickels, and the red flag has the same annoying habit of popping up before you're ready to return to your car.

President Unburdens to Physician

By Drew Pearson

It's supposed to be a White House secret, but the President's personal physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, has been giving the Chief Executive a course in psychotherapy.

Gen. Graham

The treatment takes the form of regular talks between the President and General Graham, in which Mr. Truman unburdens himself about the aggravations that go with the job of being President.

In these sessions, Truman pours out his innermost secrets to his doctor—such things as the worry he had over dropping the A-bomb, his worry over his dealings with Stalin, over his decisions to send American boys to fight in Korea.

Graham analyzes the President's concern, and helps to relieve the tremendous strain under which every President labors.

Incidentally, General Graham keeps a verbatim record of these conversations which, some day should be among the most important reading in history.

Malik Will Stay

At the dinner he gave U. N. colleagues after retiring as president of the Security Council, Russia's Jacob Malik was jokingly reminded of his walkout from the Council last January.

"Was it just a coincidence that you came back when the Council was preparing to seat the Chinese Nationalists?" inquired one of his guests.

Malik insisted that this wasn't the case, but that the "rules of procedure" called for him to assume the presidency of the Council during the month of August.

"I came back to observe the rules," he said seriously.

"Well, in that case, you will have to find a new reason for staying on here, since your term as president has now expired," persisted the the guest.

"Oh, that isn't difficult," grinned the Soviet official. "When we want to do something, we can always find a reason."

Gen. Bradley Chafes

Gen. Omar Bradley isn't advertising it, but he is so fed up with Secretary of Defense Johnson's roughshod attempts to dictate strategy, plus General MacArthur's indifference to orders from Washington, that he would like to get out as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"You are a lucky man," he recently confided to a general who was given a command outside the Pentagon. "I'd give my right arm to be leading troops again. I just don't know how much longer I can stand this."

Army's Democracy

Under the Army's G-3 training section, trainees are to be treated as individuals, not cattle; and the new approach will be to use more reason and less force.

Roughly 70 percent will be given specialized combat training, such as infantry, field artillery, and tanks. The remaining 30 percent will be trained for service units, such as the engineers, quartermaster corps and signal corps. The cream of the crop will be sent on to advanced schools for additional technical training.

An Ear for All

Secretary of Defense Johnson, allegedly a stanch Democrat, uses a stanch Republican to handle "political matters."

This came out the other day when a prominent Midwestern businessman called upon Johnson.

"The Administration has lost the confidence of the people out where I come from," declared the Midwesterner.

"Why is that?" asked Johnson.

"They didn't like this false economy program you had before the Korean war," the businessman retorted bluntly. Then, as an afterthought, he added: "Of course, they don't blame you as much as the Administration."

"That is very interesting," mused Johnson politely. "I would like you to tell that to my assistant secretary who handles our political matters."

Then Johnson brought in Assistant Secretary of Defense Paul Griffith, a diehard Republican.

The Labor Front

William Green will be re-elected without opposition to his twenty-seventh term as president of the American Federation of Labor when the AFL opens its annual convention in Houston, September 18 . . . For the first time in history, a whole day of the convention will be devoted to politics, including a fund-raising drive for the federation's badly bent League for Political Education, organized to defeat Congressmen who fought for the Taft-Hartley Act and against Fair Deal legislation . . . AFL leaders are greatly concerned about rank-and-file indifference to the league, which has received less than 10 percent of the $2 per capita voluntary contributions set for all AFL unionists . . . convention spokesmen will bluntly warn members that they will have to dig down if they want to elect Labor's friends and defeat its foes in November.

Policy in Orient

U. N. Ambassador Warren Austin has warned the White House that the majority of members of the U. N. Security Council are opposed to U. N. forces going beyond the 38th Parallel in Korea.

Even more important, Austin has informed Washington the U. N. would definitely oppose further American intervention in China. Austin went so far as to state privately that the United States would run into heavy opposition at the U. N. General Assembly to MacArthur's policy of support for Chiang Kai-shek. Only the Philippines, Austin reported, favor Chiang, and virtually every other Pacific nation is doing business with or has recognized Mao Tse-Tung's Communist regime.

As a result, Secretary Acheson will review American Far Eastern policy with British Foreign Minister Bevin in about one week.

Ambassador Douglas has warned the British to stop shipping machine tools to the Russians—or else . . . Douglas called secretly at the foreign office before flying to Washington and told Hector McNeil that Britain must cancel its contract with Moscow or face a tremendous wave of anti-British feeling in the United States . . . to soften the blow, he said the United States was prepared to give Britain more Marshall Plan dollars to buy timber and wheat which the British have been getting from Russia in exchange for the machine tools.
